Hide-and-Seek in Kingston Backyards

By WALTER S. CLARK

Authorities today revealed details of a hide-and-seek episode through backyards and wooded areas in uptown Kingston in which a 19-year-old Marine deserter played a leading role until his capture by city police climaxing a massive manhunt.

Douglas R. Perry, who formerly resided at the Huntington Hotel, was back in custody this morning, confined in a county jail cell where he awaited the arrival of military police. He had earlier escaped from custody.

While state troopers, deputy sheriffs and city police set up roadblocks to search passing vehicles and patroled the streets, Perry was in a hideout for about nine hours under the porch of a residence at Washington Avenue and Pearl Street. From that vantage point he watched the movements of authorities as they passed on foot and in prowl cars.

Today, the youth was arraigned in city court on a charge of escaping from custody. Then he was taken back to the county jail under close guard of authorities.

After his apprehension at 10:15 p. m. Thursday, Perry's greatest concern involved his wallet containing about $20. He had dug a hole in the dirt under the porch at Washington and Pearl, and buried the money for safe-keeping until he could return to pick it up.

The extensive manhunt yesterday was the second in the area this week. Gary Sickler, 27-year-old suspected slayer of a 20-year-old Wappingers Falls woman, escaped from custody in Poughkeepsie and was the object of a massive manhunt until he was apprehended in a wooded area near Chelsea Wednesday night.

Authorities said that notice had been received from the Marine Corps that Perry was wanted as a deserter. Search conducted by troopers and deputies from the office of Sheriff William B. Martin, and yesterday afternoon the BCI and a deputy took the long brown-haired youth into custody on a Town of Saugerties highway near the home of a relative.

Perry was questioned and subsequently handcuffed and put in a police car. The arresting officers took the youth to the county courthouse on Wall Street, and as they drove into the parking lot Perry leaped from the vehicle still in motion and fled "like a deer" on foot.

The officers, joined by other deputy sheriffs in the immediate area gave chase. They pursued the youth across Green Street through backyards, over a fence and stone wall to Washington Avenue and near the Tannery Brook. Perry's pace was too much for his pursuers, who were armed, but didn't fire a shot, presumably because Perry had not committed any crime.

During the chase the handcuffed youth toppled down an embankment. He appeared injured but he leaped to his feet and continued his flight. Minutes later authorities lost sight of him.

Meanwhile, the sheriff's office notified state police at Kingston, and a 13-state alarm was sent over the teletype wires.

Scores of troopers from area stations, details of deputy sheriffs and city police were alerted and outside authorities converged on the city. Roadblocks were quickly set up on all roads leading from Kingston.

Officers at the roadblocks stopped all vehicles leaving the city and closely checked the occupants. Long lines of cars were seen in several places as the search for Perry went on.

Although the marine still had the cuffs on his wrists, no one reported having seen the escapee after authorities lost him in the vicinity of Washington and Lafayette Avenues.

The search continued for some nine hours as the mercury clung close to 90 degrees.

Shortly after 10 p. m. Sheriff's Sergeant Warren Swarthout received a telephone call. A resident excitedly reported he saw Perry hurrying along South Washington Avenue. The sergeant realized that city police were in that immediate vicinity and he called headquarters.

Radio calls alerted uniformed officers and detectives on duty near the spot where the youth was seen. Moments later they came upon Perry and took him in custody. Perry offered no resistance. He was taken to police headquarters and booked for escaping from custody.

Later he was lead to the jail where he was locked in a cell. After he disclosed that he had buried his wallet and money with personal papers in a hole under the porch of the Washington Avenue house, authorities got the wallet.

Perry showed some signs of relief when he knew his money was safe, and he was safe in confinement in the jail cell.

Summit Question: Bomb Halt Now?

By MERRIMAN SMITH

HONOLULU (UPI) — President Johnson, repledging America's commitment to help South Vietnam defeat aggression, today searched with Nguyen Van Thieu for a mutually acceptable way to do it.

The South Vietnamese president was reported to be worried Johnson would be more willing than he to compromise with North Vietnam. Thieu thinks Washington is overeager in their search for a settlement of the war, Saigon sources said.

Johnson was meeting privately with Thieu in the first of two days of high level talks. Upon the president's arrival Thursday he assured Thieu America's "pledge to help your people defeat aggression stands firm against all obstacles and against any deception."

"I have every reason to look to the future with confidence," Thieu replied, but sources in Saigon indicated South Vietnam's leader was not so confident.

Vows No Sellout

He left for the Honolulu summit by vowing he would "never surrender to the Communists" or "sell out" his nation in his talks with Johnson. He appeared worried Johnson will stray from the Saigon government's belief that the only way to handle the Communists is to trounce them in battle, sources said.

As the two leaders and their senior advisers began their summit conference in military headquarters overlooking the Pacific, they were beset by rumors from all sides of the world. There were rumors peace was near; that the Vietnam War was about to burn again with brightness unmatched since the Communists' winter Tet offensive; that all bombing was to be halted.

The first meeting was for 10 a.m., HST (4 p.m., EDT) at Camp Smith, site of the U.S. Pacific command headquarters, to be followed by a working luncheon. Johnson entertains them tonight at a dinner at the Koko Head estate of the late Henry J. Kaiser, where the American President established his headquarters. Thieu and his advisers were in the Royal Hawaiian Hotel on Waikiki Beach.

Airstrip Confab

Even as Thieu's chartered jet transport leveled off for a landing at Hickam Field late Thursday afternoon, Secretary of Defense Clark Clifford felt it necessary to hold an airstrip news conference to slow speculation from Saigon where Clifford and Thieu talked earlier in the week.

As a result of Clifford's remarks to reporters, it became clear that two prime items before Johnson and Thieu involved a question of whether to halt all U.S. bombing of North Vietnam targets in an effort to help the Paris negotiations; and whether the South Vietnamese would be willing to talk face-to-face with representatives of the National Liberation Front, political arm of the Viet Cong.

Denies Agreement

There was one published report Clifford in Saigon had persuaded Thieu to agree to these two propositions. Clifford denied it vehemently, shouting over the roar of jets on Thieu's plane as it pulled to a stop before Johnson and a party of U.S. dignitaries.

"The question of the bombing halt never came up in conversation with any of the Vietnamese," Clifford said. "We particularly omitted referring to that (in order) to leave that up to Thieu and President Johnson. Also, no question came up about negotiations with the enemy on the part of the South Vietnamese for the same reason. We wanted to leave that up to President Johnson and Thieu. The only time I saw Thieu was in a meeting where there were 14 people and we never discussed this subject at all."

Johnson, flying from his Texas ranch on a nonstop flight of nearly eight hours, reached Honolulu Thursday about three hours ahead of Thieu. The President took a helicopter from Hickam Field to the Kaiser estate where he spent about two hours hearing first hand reports on the situation in Saigon from Clifford; Ambassador Ellsworth D. Bunker and Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff. Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Richard Hemls, director of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) also were at the meeting.

Czechs Debating Course; Soviets Hint Intervention

PRAGUE (UPI)—Czech Communist leader Alexander Dubcek today battled party Stalinists over his defiance of the Kremlin and his program of democratic reform. In Moscow the Soviets hinted at an Hungarian type intervention in Czechoslovakia.

Dubcek, his friends and foes in the divided party central committee, debated the fate of his reform policy in the baroque splendor of Hradcany Castle's 300-year-old Spanish hall. The first party secretary opened the showdown meeting with a report on Eastern Europe's greatest crisis since Red army tanks crushed Hungarian freedom fighters 12 years ago.

In Moscow, the Soviets for the first time made charges of American aggression plans for Czechoslovakia and of anti-Communist rebel plots in its onetime satellite. The charges came in the party newspaper Pravda. It publishd an editorial pledging "all necessary help" from the Soviets in maintaining Red rule in Czechoslovakia.

In the Soviet capital, the Pravda reports gave a clear sign the Russians, although hoping to avoid it, are clearly ready for intervention to preserve what they consider Communist security and ideology.

In London, UPI diplomatic correspondent K. C Thaler quoted high diplomatic sources as saying the Soviets are trying to arrange a weekend meeting of Dubcek and Leonid I. Brezhnev, the Soviet party first secretary. The sources said the meeting may take place near the Cezch-Soviet frontier. They said Brezhnev hopes to pressure Dubcek into making concessions under the threat of Russian armed intervention.

In Moscow, authoritative Communist sources said Brezhnev will fly to Cechoslovakia for the meeting in a few days. They said the Russian leader, who had demanded the meting be on Soviet soil, finally surrendered to Dubcek's pleas he could not leave Czechoslovakia during his party crisis. In Prague, a Slovak Communist leader said Thursday night such a meeting would take place soon in Czechoslovakia.

In Paris, French Communist party First Secretary Waldeck Rochet announced his hopes for Czech-Soviet mediation in a summit meeting of Europe's Communist leaders. Then he boarded a plane for Prague to press his peacemaking mission.

But for the moment Dubcek's crisis lay in Spanish hall.

Party sources said 40 of the 110 central committee members favor Dubcek. Another 40 want the return of Stalinist Antonin Novotny, ousted as first secretary by Dubcek in January.

The battle for democracy will depend on 30 members thus far uncommitted in the struggle that is shaking Eastern Europe in the greatest Communist crisis since the abortive Hungarian uprsing in 1956, the sources said.

Dubcek made a nationwide broadcast Thursday night appealing for the support of all Czechs in his stand against the Kremlin. He vowed that the forces of Communist reform will not make "the slightest retreat from the path we took in January."

The debate inside the spired hall on a hill overlooking the Vltava River—called the Moldau in the days when Prague waltzed with Mozart under Germanic rule—took place behind closed doors. For the moment it overshadowed the other forces and events triggered by the Czech withdrawal from the Kremlin line.

In Moscow, UPI correspondent Henry Shapiro reported that the most authoritative sources are saying the Russians want to avoid at all costs the propaganda disaster of an Hungarian type intervention.

GI's Hit Cong Camp In Surprise Attack

SAIGON (UPI)—American armor and infantrymen overran a Communist base camp near Cambodia Thursday, killed 37 North Vietnamese soldiers and sent scores of others fleeing in such haste they left behind food, weapons and ammunition, U. S. headquarters said today.

The battle in the rolling rubber plantation country 72 miles north of Saigon cost the Americans 4 killed and 23 wounded in a full day of off-and-on fighting, the announcement said.

Spokesmen said the U.S. soldiers, tanks and armored personnel carriers apparently surprised about 150 members of the North Vietnamese army 237th regiment in a base camp used for regrouping and retraining.

Uncover Weapons

Allied soldiers sweeping Saigon's outskirts in attempts to head off another offensive into the capital found four Communist weapons caches.

U.S. intelligence sources said they had "low-level information" of Viet Cong plans to launch terrorist or rocket strikes on the city this weekend to coincide with the 14th anniversary of the signing of the 1954 Geneva accords.

Only Thursday, Viet Cong artillerymen hit the giant oil storage complex at Nha Be, six miles southeast of Saigon, with 15 rocket, mortar and recoilless rifle rounds, headquarters said.

U.S. B52 Stratofortresses staged seven thunderous raids on all sides of the capital Thursday and early today to try to head off a gathering of Viet Cong soldiers, spokesmen said. An eighth B52 strike was targeted for the Central Highlands.

American pilots flew 112 missions into North Vietnam Thursday against anti-aircraft fire described as moderate to heavy, the command said. No Communist MIG interceptors or surface-to-air (SAM) missiles were sighted.

Civilians Killed

South Vietnamese police reported 10 new Viet Cong acts of terror in which 10 civilians were killed and 24 others kidnaped, 13 of them from one village in northern Quang Ngai province.

Far south of Saigon, near the Cambodian border, 900 South Vietnamese soldiers were taken off Nui Co To (superstition) mountain and replaced with U.S. Special Forces troops and their mercenary sidekicks.

Allied commanders hoped the "Green Berets" and their sidekicks could do what the government troops wouldn't—venture down the slopes of Nui Co To and invade the labyrinth of caves reportedly loaded with Communist men and supplies preparing for a trip to Saigon.

The South Vietnamese, most of them lowlanders, had refused to budget off the top of the 2,000-foot peak, 12 miles from Cambodia, because of their fear of "evil spirits" lurking on mountains. They were helicoptered to the top of the mountain last Friday.

In yet another development involving Cambodia, the Cambodian government said today it had captured a U.S. Navy boat carrying a crew of 11 Americans and one South Vietnamese who sailed into Cambodia on the Mekong River.

Cambodian Prince Norodom Sihanouk said the crew would be returned for the price of one tractor or bulldozer for each man. There was no immediate U.S. or South Vietnamese statement.

Closer to Saigon, Communist artillerymen Thursday night fired 15 rounds of mortar, rocket and recoilless rifle fire into an oil and gas tank farm several miles southeast of the capital, spokesmen said.

Damage was said to be light.

Thar's Oil in Them Hills

Vast Oil Reserve Tapped in Alaska

By THAD POULSON

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Gov. Walter J. Hickel sees the discovery of oil in Alaska's Arctic region as a key unlocking the state's vast potential and a stabilizer of its economy.

"It's tremendous," the governor kept saying Thursday after hearing that reserves estimated by oil experts at 5 to 10 billion barrels had been found in the Prudhoe Bay area along Alaska's Arctic coast.

The Arctic Slope is an expanse of endless tundra inhabited only by caribou, wolves and an occasional roving band of Eskimo hunters.

The area, some 390 miles north of Fairbanks, is a region long eyed with anticipation by petroleum geologists.

The U.S. Navy's Petroleum Reserve No. 4 lies to the west of the Atlantic Richfield-Humble discovery, in an area where the temperature merely toys with the freezing point—even during the long summer days when the Arctic sun never gets below the horizon.

Degolyer and MacNaughton, a Dallas oil consulting firm, said the new discovery has the potential of developing into one of the world's largest fields.

Located on a 90,000-acre block of federally leased land, the new discovery apparently confirms what petroleum geologists have long thought, that the Arctic Slope is a vast storehouse of oil and gas.

Gov. Hickel feels the oil income from the huge federal holdings on the north slope could be used to meet native demands for $500 million to drop claims blocking the state's efforts to select the 103 million acres promised by the statehood act.

He also sees it as possibly leading to the elimination of state income taxes, which brought in $31 million in the last fiscal year.

Alaska, which ranks 10th among the 32 oil producing states, received direct income from oil and gas production taxes, lease bonuses, royalties and rentals of over $40 million for the fiscal year ending June 30. The state's general fund budget for the year was $104 million.

The governor listed as his first priority the extension of the federally owned Alaska railroad from its northern terminus at Fairbanks the remaining 400 miles to the north coast.

Besides relieving the oil industry of the immediate need of building a $400 million pipeline to get the oil to ice-free tide-water, the railroad, he said, would provide a "two-way haul" to open up thousands of square miles of unexplored wilderness.

"We haven't even begun to tap the mineral potential up there," Hickel said.

Committee Testimony

Fortas Gives Critics the Facts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Abe Fortas has told Senate critics the Constitution allows him to lecture and write about issues that come before the Supreme Court, but forbids him to answer questions from members of Congress about the same matters.

Fortas repeated this theme over and over Thursday before the Senate Judiciary Committee as he testified for the third day on his qualifications to succeed Earl Warren as chief justice of the United States.

Roughest Meeting

It was by far the roughest meeting yet for Fortas. But prospects were that today's session would be the last for him, opening the way for committee questioning of Homer Thornberry, named by Johnson to fill the vacancy created by Fortas' elevation from justice to chief justice.

Fortas did tell the committee he was opposed to Communists holding defense jobs or teaching school and that he approved of Congress' right to investigate subversion.

And, he said, "there is under our system of government no place for lawlessness or violence."

But when pressed by Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., to relate these beliefs to recent Supreme Court decisions in which he took part, Fortas drew the line.

"My constitutional responsibility requires me, however unpleasant it may be, to decline to answer questions of the kind you have propounded," Fortas said.

"I regret it. I repeat, I regret it deeply," he added.

Fortas said "judges . . . may not be held to answer before any other branch of the government for their views." He called this a principle "that is fundamental to our tripartite division of government."

Thurmond said "it might be hard to explain to the public" how Fortas could make lectures and otherwise expound on his views and then say he could not answer questions "when you come before the Judiciary Committee for a promotion to be chief justice of the United States."

"You have expressed your views to the President when he has called you down there, and over the telephone, haven't you?" Thurmond asked.

"No, sir," Fortas replied. "Never."

Thurmond pressed: "And he got the benefit of your views on matters, did he not?"

Fortas: "Never."

Thurmond: "Why shouldn't a senator have the benefit of your views?"

Never Been Asked

Fortas: "I have never, never been asked by the President nor have I expressed my views on any pending or decided case—never, senator, never."

Meanwhile, a speech on the Senate floor underscored again the fight that lies ahead after committee hearings on the Fortas Thornberry nominations.

Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., said he still planned to vote against the two and called the nominations "an extreme and flagrant example of making the court a political football."

Baker is one of 18 Republican senators who have declared their intention to oppose Fortas and Thornberry down the line. Several Southern Democrats also have said they would vote against the two.

LBJ's Foreign Aid Bill Gets Slashed

By DANIEL RAPOPORT

Washington (UPI)—President Johnson thought he was mollifying House foreign aid critics when he made the 1968 request the lowest in history, but he was wrong by $1 billion.

When the House got through with the authorization bill Thursday, only $1.9 billion was left of the $2.9 billion Johnson sought.

If that figure holds up in Senate action, it would be the lowest authorization bill in the 20 years of the foreign aid program.

But funding the program is yet to come, and the appropriations process may cut into foreign aid spending plans even further.

Backers of the administration nevertheless are celebrating—in their own fashion. It was grin and bear it or no program at all.

They took some consolation from the final House vote on the authorization Thursday, passage by the substantial margin of 233 to 184. Last year the margin was eight votes.

The 10-hour session saw a $600 million cut of the Foreign Affairs Committee endorsed by the House, and a further cut of $307 million added for good measure.

The previous lowest authorization was $2.6 billion approved last year, followed by a record low appropriation of $2.3 billion.

The appropriations subcommittee, headed by arch aid foe Rep. Otto Passman, D-La., goes to work on the bill next week. The panel considers the $1.9 billion authorization an absolute ceiling.

Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., a supporter of the overseas assistance program, said today that if the administration doesn't get busy and make an all-out effort to stave off further disaster, the subcommittee and parent Appropriations Committee will send to the floor a bill in the neighborhood of $1.6 billion.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee was meeting on the request today in closed session. No final vote was expected.

Police in Three Cities Guard Against Violence

By United Press International

Police were on the alert in Akron, Ohio, San Francisco and Stockton, Calif., through the night to guard against new outbreaks of violence that erupted in the three cities on preceding nights.

In Glasgow, Ky., a short distance from Mammoth Cave National Park, a state trooper stood watch at the home of Gov. Louie B. Nunn while other troopers searched for the man who tossed a bomb onto the governor's lawn.

Occasional thunderstorms helped squelch violent activity in Akron where a tight dusk-to-dawn curfew was maintained on the industrial city of 290,000 residents, 20 per cent Negro.

Shortly after the curfew was put into effect Thursday night, 70 persons were arrested. Many had to be flushed from an Afro-American Liberation Society storefront office and a barber shop next door.

Police tossed in tear gas bombs to rout about 30 persons from the office and another 30 from the barber shop. Police clubbed anyone disobeying their orders.

With relative calm restored, National Guard troops were withdrawn at midnight to a nearby stadium.

Several hundred hippies in San Francisco's Haight-Ashbury district gathered in the streets Thursday night, and threw bottles and rocks and set at least two bonfires. Police made their nightly sweep of the streets to secure the district.

Only a handful of hippies was arrested Thursday night, compared with the 63 arrested the two previous nights in the nation's 12th largest city.

About 50 miles inland, police officials reported quiet at the housing development in southeast Stockton where violence had been reported the two previous nights.

Governor Nunn flew to Washington Thursday from Frankfort, Ky., where he had been when the dynamite bomb was tossed onto the front yard of his Glasgow home. The bomb blasted a small hole in the yard about 20 feet from the house and broke a window.

Bombs Are Exploded At Mexican Bureaus

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Bombs were exploded today at two Mexican tourist bureaus, the offices of two foreign airlines and an office of the Shell Oil Co. A sticker declaring "Unite Cuban Power" in Spanish was attached to each of the bombed buildings.

The terrorist bombings appeared to be the latest in a series of bombings across the nation at consulates or tourist offices of nations that trade with Communist Cuba. Since April, six such bombs have been detonated in New York. There have been other bombings or attempts in Chicago, Miami and Newark, N.J.

No injuries were reported in the bombs exploded here today.

The blasts all of which caused extensive damage, ripped the Mexican National Tourist Bureau in Beverly Hills, and, in Los Angeles, the offices of the Mexican Travel Agency, ticket offices for Air France and Japan Air Lines and the Shell Oil office building.

Police said the bombs apparently were dropped through the mail slots of the front doors in each case.

The Mexican Tourist Bureau blast was believed caused by a plastic explosive. All of the bombs were fused.

Negroes to Get Apartments In City Projects

NEW YORK (AP) — The Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. has agreed to make more apartments available to Negroes and Puerto Ricans in three large housing projects it owns.

The move was announced Thursday following discussions with the City Commission on Human Rights which had charged the company with "deliberate, intentional and systematic" exclusion of such persons.

Metropolitan, one of the city's biggest landlords, said it would stop giving preferential treatment to relatives of tenants in order to find room for minority group applicants.

The commission's complaints centered on the Stuyvesant Town, Peter Cooper Village and Parkchester developments, which have a total of more than 23,500 apartments. Metropolitan also owns a predominantly Negro project in Harlem.

Postal Cuts Unbearable

Cutbacks in postal services due to the general personnel-cutting provision attached to the recently enacted President's tax-increase bill will be felt in Ulster County beginning Saturday, July 27, when all first and second class offices will remain open but for two hours on Saturdays.

Effective immediately, the extension of all city and RFD routes will be halted. This means all new dwellings both in and out of the city will not be eligible for mail deliveries.

There also is the likelihood that many third and fourth-class post offices in the county will be closed permanently. Countrywide, 347 of these small post offices will be closed permanently by the end of August and thereafter an additional 100 third-class and 150 fourth-class every month.

Post office service has deteriorated so much in recent years that these latest cuts seem unbearable.

The House Ways and Means Committee thought Postmaster General W. Marvin Watson was bluffing when he told them he would have to make these cutbacks because he must economize unless the Post Office Department is exempted from the reduction in force necessary to meet the budget cuts, mandated by the President.

We are all for the economy measure that requires a six billion dollar budget cut in spending as the price of passing the President's 10 per cent tax surcharge. We do not think the post office or any other department is doing its part by such tactics. This is a time to show how well the departments and agencies can serve with lower budgets, not to soak the public in retaliation.

Recently a commission appointed by the President recommended that the department be converted into a non-profit government corporation operated by professional management and with no ties to the political patronage system. If we ever have an efficient, economical postal department, it will be under the supervision of trained and experienced business executives.

Wasted Congress Session

Congress is in a turmoil over President Johnson's hint that he might have to call members back to complete important legislative work after the national party conventions.

"I dread the idea of a wasted session," one important Democrat said anonymously when the word was passed around Capitol Hill. He spoke for members of Congress of both parties. Post-convention sessions are anathema to them all.

To a typical Congressman, the election campaign must begin as soon as the national conventions name their candidates for President and Vice President and pass the party platforms that will give him his ideas for fighting for his seat. With all seats in the House and a third of those in the Senate at stake, the majority of members will be occupied with election; their minds will be far from the legislative forum.

That is one reason why a post-convention session is wasted effort and no one knows it better than the President who fought such recalls when he was the President who fought such recalls when he was the Democratic leader of the Senate.

Usually, post-convention sessions produce little more than political debate. Members frustrated that they cannot be at home on the hustings get as much political lineage as they can on the floor, hoping that it will trickle back to their states and make up for their personal absence.

All that the President can hope to accomplish by recalling the Congress after the conventions is to put pressure on them to act on his "must" legislation. But he may defeat his own purpose by souring them on his program.

The best that can be hoped for now is that in the remaining days before the first convention opens August 3, Congress will act on the "must" measures, appropriations especially. Then the President would have to be satisfied and let them go.

For the first time, the nation's work force has passed 80 million—82.2 million to be exact. The boost was the result of the early summer flood of youthful job seekers. It left 4.9 million unemployed and 77.3 million employed, an all-time record.

Britons will not change their clocks back in October when daylight saving time would have ended for the winter. They begin British Standard time, an experiment for three years, six hours head of American Eastern Standard time. They will equate with Central European time.

Re-enlistments in the armed forces last year were lower than the previous year, probably because the war had become more ferocious. In all cases Negroes were re-enlisting at a much higher level than whites. Negroes have found greater acceptance and standing in the armed forces than outside.

Penalty of Disagreement

David Lawrence Says

Definite Peace Formula Must Await Election

WASHINGTON — The belief is growing here that the Vienam war will not be ended by the Paris negotiations or even a cease-fire obtained until after the presidential election in the United States in November.

The North Vietnamese government seems convinced that the anti-war movement inside the United States, as evidenced by the protest demonstrators and the large number of supporters of Senator McCarthy, adds up to a readiness on the part of the American people to accept almost any formula that will stop the fighting. Certainly, looking at it from the point of view of the Hanoi government, there is no advantage in making concessions now if less than four months hence there might possibly be a willingness in America to agree to a "peace at any price" arrangement.

Much talk is heard about a large-scale military offensive by the North Vietnamese. This has been postponed from time to time, but it looks as if the Communist game will be to launch such an attack before the November election in this country so as to exert an even greater pressure for a makeshift peace.

The presidential candidates in the current political campaign have not clearly stated their respective positions on a Vietnam war settlement. All favor the parleys, and various hypothetical provisions of a possible agreement have been mentioned. But the real problem has not been faced. It is that the United States and its allies cannot afford to put their faith in paper promises. The North Vietnamese are not willing to accept an American pledge to withdraw its military forces under certain conditions—the withdrawal is demanded first.

Oddly enough, while many public figures, including some military men, have argued that victory on the battlefield is impracticable for South Vietnam and its allies, the North Vietnamese think that, after the big-unit efforts are stopped, guerrilla warfare can achieve its objectives.

Meanwhile, there are indications that officials of the Saigon government are a bit apprehensive that the United States may make the kind of concessions that can lead to the overrunning of South Vietnam by the Communists. This uneasiness, of course, results from the protest movement inside the United States, including the speeches by various political personalities who are contending that the Vietnam war is "none of America's business."

So until the November election takes place, a definitive formula to bring peace appears to be more and more improbable. There will be carefully phrased statements in the platforms adopted by both party conventions urging an "honorable peace." Such declarations, however, are likely to be ambiguous and will not give a clear-cut outline of what American policy will be after the inauguration of a new president in January.

It may be expected that the president-elect will appoint a commission to re-examine the entire Vietnam problem and will ask for bipartisan consultations before coming out with definite proposals for peace. This could be accompanied by coincident efforts through Great Britain and other countries in the hope that the Soviet Union can be persuaded to use its influence to bring about a cease-fire.

It is tragic that the principal powers of the world are divided, and that there is no sign of an agreement similar to that which was made in 1954 in Geneva. Yet the Moscow government really has the key to peace. The nature of its alliance with the North Vietnamese has never been fully exposed. There is nevertheless talk of a "detente" between the United States and the Soviet Union. Major agreements on such subjects as nuclear weapons are supposedly being considered seriously at present in the Kremlin. A dangerous situation in Southeast Asia, however, is allowed to continue with the openly acknowledged help and support of the Soviet government.

Once the American elections are over, the new president of the United States will first have to clear up the vagaries in Soviet-American relations and make a definite effort to test whether "mutual trust" has become a realistic fact in the nuclear age.

Soviet and U.S. in Accord On Urging Mideast Peace

By LEON DENNEN
(NEA Foreign News Analyst)

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (NEA) — For the first time since the end of the war in June, 1967, the United States and Russia are jointly urging Israel and the Arab nations to agree to direct or indirect peace talks on the Middle East.

East European diplomats see this as another sign that, despite the war in Vietnam, the Soviet leaders are moving slowly toward an accommodation with the United States in some areas of conflict. It accounts, they believe, for the failure of President Nasser's recent mission to Moscow.

Egypt's president went to Russia with a request and a veiled threat. He sought more Soviet arms and the Kremlin's aid for prompt action to bring about Israel's withdrawal from conquered Arab territory. He intimated that he would seek closer relations with the United States should Moscow deny his request.

The Russians, it seems, were not impressed by Nasser's diplomatic blackmail since they are themselves currently engaged in secret bargaining with Washington about peace in the Middle East.

Leonid Brezhnev, chief of Russia's Communist party, went through the usual ritual of castigating "American - Zionist imperialism." However, according to the East European diplomats, he warned Nasser to seek a diplomatic solution.

Peace between the Arabs and Israel is still only a dim hope. But there is considerable evidence that Russia, like the United States, is eager to settle the conflict without a renewal of hostilities.

Even before Nasser reached Moscow, Pravda, the Communist party's paper warned in an editorial that new military ventures in the Middle East would not help an already delicate situation.

An authoritative radio commentary, Life Abroad, even blamed Red China's "provocateurs," working hand-in-hand with "reactionary Arab extremists," for fomenting new strife.

Echoing Pravda, the commentary finally conceded Israel's right to exist. As though the Kremlin never urged the destruction of the "Zionist state," Life Abroad even claimed that "former Arab threats to eliminate Israel" originated mainly from "irresponsible Arab figures" who serve as Red China's agents in the Middle East.

In the view of experts on Russia, renewed warfare between Israel and the Arabs is the last thing the Russians want, for the present at least.

They have their hands full with Red China and face an increasing anti - Russian upsurge in Czechoslovakia and elsewhere in East Europe. They are also eager to reopen the Suez Canal since Soviet shipments, especially to North Vietnam and India, have become more costly because of the need to sail around Arfica.

Moreover, the closing of the canal indefinitely means that the day for repayment of Egypt's vast debt to Moscow has once again had to be postponed to a distant future.

Altogether the conculsion might be that while the Russians strengthened their overall political position in the Middle East, since the Arab-Israel war, this achievement was bought at an ominously high cost in purely economic terms.

For the present, then, Russia seems to be anxious for a breathing spell in the Middle East. What a fair peace settlement should involve will be argued for many months. As in the case of Vietnam, the diplomatic bargaining will be long and difficult.

But should peace finally come to the Middle East it will be a clear victory for President Johnson's patient diplomacy and his persistent efforts to ease the points of conflict between the United States and Russia.

President Johnson Must Fill Vitally Important FCC Vacancy

WASHINGTON — Most important appointment President Johnson has to make — second only to his current Supreme Court appointments — is to fill the present vacancy on the Federal Communications Commission. The right man on this commission could help to revitalize the most hidebound regulatory agency in Washington and start reversing programs of TV violence.

Lyndon Johnson is the first President in American history to acquire his family fortune through radio and television, and his past appointments to the FCC — with one exception — have not been brilliant. He was responsible for elevating one of the most reactionary members, Hosel Hyde, to be FCC chairman. It was chairman Hyde who led the move inside the commission to hand down the scandalously anti - Negro decision in the case of the Lamar Insurance Company's TV station in Jackson, Miss., after that station had thumbed its nose at the rights of Mississippi Negroes.

Incidentally, it was Justice Abe Fortas's former law partner, Paul Porter, a former FCC chairman, who skillfully maneuvered this victory for anti - Negro television policy in Jackson.

All this is why Johnson's upcoming FCC appointment will be watched so carefully by the network moguls, if not by the unsuspecting public.

For it now develops that the television networks have been kidding the public about eliminating violence from the home screen.

It is true that the networks are making a play of editing violence out of such comparatively inoffensive shows as "Get Smart" and "The Flying Nun."

A group of concerned ad men, calling themselves Advertising Men for De-escalation of Violence on Television, have called this "eyewash."

"Who thinks of those shows as violent?" demanded AMDVT's founder, Bert Randolph Sugar. "They're spoofs. This isn't what we mean."

Violence Is Good for You

Much more in need of editing are the shows that the National Association for Better Broadcasting has condemned, such as "Rat Patrol," "The Saint," "The Avengers" and "Guns of Will Sonnett." Apparently they will remain as rootin', tootin', shootin' as ever.

Meanwhile, network officials are lining up hired experts who will try to presuade the public that the daily gunplay on the home screen is mere harmless make-believe. Their campaign will be conducted along the same lines as the cigarette industry that smoking is good for you. In this case the theme will be that violence is good for you.

There is, of course, overwhelming evidence to the contrary. Responsible sociologists have warned that TV not only has stimulated violence in this country but has made people callous toward crime in the streets.

TV violence, they say, has caused a psychological conditioning effect, which has permitted onlookers to stand by while people have been attacked and even killed. The witnesses feel as unable to participate as they feel in front of their TV seats.

Dr. Harry Skornia of the University of Illinois, an authority in this field, writes:

"The principal charaters in Westerns, crime and private-eye series, and other popular TV programs would seem to rate fairly high in teaching effectiveness. There is considerable evidence of danger that what these individuals demonstrate will be learned . . .

"Terrible emotional effects may be noticed in certain people from given programs, just as dangerous physical effects are noted on certain people allergic to certain drugs."

The effectiveness of television in teaching violence has been attested by the armed forces which, after more than 100 studies, has adopted TV as a favorite media for instructing troops in physical assault, weapons handling and the techniques of violence.

Public Is Not Helpless

The question asked us by many readers is how can they help reduce this daily explosion of TV violence that is beamed into their living rooms? Here are some answers:

1. The Better Broadcasting people, who have been assessing TV violence for 17 years, are conducting an exhaustive survey to determine whether TV stations have lowered the violence quotient at all since Sen. Robert Kennedy's assassination. But they need funds to conduct this survey. You can help. Their address is 373 North Western Avenue, Los Angeles, Calif. 90004.

2. The AMDVT is also urging advertisers to stop sponsoring TV shows which glorify violence. Parents can help by refusing to buy the products of companies that sponsor violence.

For children, the worst hours on television are Saturday mornings, which are filled with animated violence. The Better Broadcasting people state flatly: "As far as children are concerned, 1968 television is the worst in the history of TV. The 1968 season illustrates an attitude of gross negligence toward child welfare by the majority of TV broadcasters. This criticism includes the heads of three networks."

Not only the cartoons but the commercials are described as "disturbing."

Among the sponsors taking a firm stand against TV violence is George Conklin, president of M&M Mars, Inc., who has pledged that his company will sponsor no more shows of this kind. He admitted that he had been watching the audience ratings not the program content.

After our columns appeared, he asked his 14-year-old son, Blair: "How are those Saturday morning shows?"

"Horrible," replied Blair. That ended the M&M sponsorship.

Kellogg's breakfast foods have also turned to more wholesome entertainment for children. Beginning with the new season, Kellogg on Saturday mornings will sponsor a variety show, strictly nonviolent, to be called "The Barbara Bunch Adventure Hour."

But most of the time, the TV scren will be monopolized by the same old kill-for-thrill programs.

Congress Not Yet Heeding Warnings on Import Curbs

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Pressures on Congress to adjourn before the two conventions in August may stall at least for a while the little-heralded protectionist drive for import quotas on steel, textiles, oil, meat and other products.

There very likely will not be action this session, in fact, on extension of the Trade Expansion Act, the liberalizing measure adopted originally in the Kennedy administration.

At most, a watered - down version of the administration's extension bill might emerge from the House Ways and Means Committee and gain full House passage.

In such an event, however, the expectation is that the Senate, which already approved some quota bills, would so encumber the trade proposal with quota - type amendments that it would be totally unpalatable to Key House leadership. It would die at this point.

Quota bills are not going to make it on their own out of the Ways and Means group this year.

But Democratic leaders are privately warning that if and when they ever do get to the floor, the House members as well as the Senat's will support quotas overwhelmingly.

The argument is that this would happen now if such a test could be had. It would be even more likely if those forecasters are correct who foresee 1968 Republican congressional gains at the polls and thus probably a still more conservative Congress in 1969.

If de facto majorities do indeed already exist in both houses for a whole range of import quotas, it has to be put down as one of the most remarkable yet least appreciated phenomena of this confusing era.

Since Franklin D. Roosevelt's time, the country has been on a long course toward the liberalizing of its trade with other nations. That trade has expanded enormously and, on the export side, is a mainstay market for such U.S. agricultural products as wheat, soybeans, corn, and cotton, not to mention industrial items like automobiles, airplanes, electrical equipment, machinery, chemicals.

Since the new protectionist campaign became known at all, this country's most responsible business journals — presumably alert to the real needs of the U.S. economy — have spoken out strongly against quotas and for the continuance of liberal trade policies.

If quotas should gain the day, the Wall Street Journal foresees not only a "widespread distortion of markets but a debilitation of a good deal of the U.S. economy."

These business paper warnings add to a chorus coming from spokesman for agriculture, for much of industry, public service groups and others.

That so many U.S. lawmakers are deaf to these cautions, that they seem prepared almost casually to reverse the 30 - year bent of U.S. trade policy under the cover of noisy national concern over war and racial strife, is perhaps a sign of the times.

Operating as it is without effective national leadership, U.S. society is more easily broken into fragments which special economic and other interests find "workable." Without a centralizing power to rally around for resistance, the fragmented elements are more amenable to pressure.

That is the story of the quota fight. For all the countereffort being made, the national concern in liberalized trade is not strongly enough represented. So the lawmakers are listening to special groups whose goal, seen collectively, is to dismantle quietly a trade structure the country still finds economically rewarding after a third of a century of testing.

Soviet Losing More 'Friends'

By GEORGE WELLER

ROME — The Soviet Union took one more step toward the dissolution of her eastern alliance when her stop-go campaign this week against Czechoslovakia diminished her safety belt of allies from the North Sea to the Mediterranean.

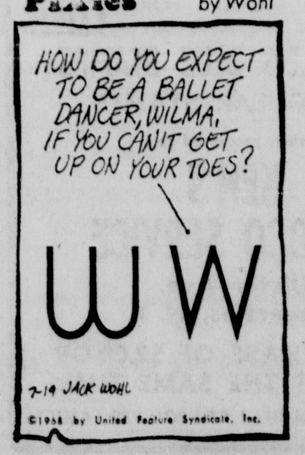

A head count of the Czech nerve war shows the balance of satellites turning against Russia, Albania, Romania and Yugoslavia are countries already lost, already caustic, undaunted by the Red army.

Russia's maladroit methods of dragging her feet in the withdrawal of troops and summoning a "secret" inquisitorial meeting in Warsaw have openly turned Hungary against her. Taken together with Czechoslovakia's resentment, the semi-defection of Hungary leaves five Communist European nations against Moscow, but only three favoring her: Poland, East Germany and isolated Bulgaria. The balance of power is shifting basically, from the Soviet Communist states that want complete capitulation to national Communists.

The misfire of the Brezhnev-Kosyghin regime comes exactly 20 years after Joseph Stalin, by his heavyhanded treatment of President Tito, lost Yugoslavia. The Soviet heresy-hunters also loosed onto Eastern Europe a schism between Russian and National Communists that still lasts today.

The irony of Russia's defeat, through excessive zeal in imposing conformism, is that militarily speaking the Soviets are fully justified in their alarm. Czechoslovakia, with her eastern border scissored in 1945 to give the Soviets direct postwar access, is the only sure one-country bridge for the Red Army to strike Western Germany.

The Soviets, by alienating both Hungary and Czechoslovakia, have virtually narrowed their field of confrontation to the northern third of the European continent.

Feels Ike's Endorsement Will Help

By WALTER MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon believes his endorsement by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower may persuade some uncommitted Republican National Convention delegates to back his presidential candidacy.

Nixon told newsmen shortly after Eisenhower's endorsement Thursday that persuasion of uncommitted delegates was one possible benefit.

But, he added, the endorsement also should provide a lift not only to his current drive for the presidential nomination but beyond that to the fall campaign.

Neither Eisenhower nor Nixon contended the endorsement would be decisive and both insisted that despite Nixon's hefty-delegate lead the convention that opens Aug. 5 in Miami Beach will be open.

Not Surprised

The reaction of Nixon's chief rival for the nomination, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, said the endorsement was no surprise to him.

"It would be embarrassing for him if he didn't" get the endorsement since Eisenhower's grandson is about to marry one of Nixon's daughters, Rockefeller said.

California Gov. Ronald Reagan, potential candidate for the nomination, told a news conference in Sacremento that he had expected the endorsement.

Referring to the eight years Nixon served as vice president under Eisenhower and the impending marriage, Reagan said "they had a long and fruitful relationship and now they are going to be joined in a family way."

The 77-year-old Eisenhower, dropping his rule of preconvention neutrality on grounds the issues are great and the situation confusing, held a hospital news conference to announce that Nixon is the man he wants nominated by the convention.

Nixon was campaigning in Washington when Eisenhower summoned reporters to Walter Reed Army Hospital, where he suffered a fifth heart attack several weeks ago, to deliver his endorsement.

Eisenhower was wheeled from his hospital suite to a sitting room where he delivered the endorsement.

Walks to Desk

Attendants tried to wheel his chair all the way to the desk at which he spoke. But Eisenhower got up and walked a half dozen steps to the desk.

His wife, Mamie, was at his side.

Only six reporters were allowed to attend the news conference, along with a small group of television cameramen and technicians.

Eisenhower went swiftly to the point:

"This year is an exceptional one. The issues are so great and the situation so confusing that I thought I would like to break my personal precedent and, prior to the presidential nomination, express my own preference for that nominee. I endorse Richard M. Nixon . . ."

Eisenhower has been a patient at the hospital since May 14. At his news conference, he wore a blue bathrobe emblazoned with the five white stars of his Army rank and embroidered with the words "Feeling great again." He pointed to them when asked how he felt.

"I am slowly regaining some strength," he said.

Reagan Hits Southlands, Hopes to Slow Down Wallace

By United Press International

California Gov. Ronald Reagan's trip south today was intended to help fill the GOP war chest and combat the growing influence of third party presidential candidate George Wallace among Dixie Republicans.

The announced purpose of Reagan's five-state southern tour was to raise funds for the party, but he disclosed earlier this week that GOP officials in the South also had urged him to help them neutralize Wallace's grassroots appeal.

Although Reagan is not an announced presidential candidate, he has said he would accept the GOP nomination. His current tour affords him an ideal opportunity to assess the depth of his support in the South. His first stop was Amarillo, Tex.

Politicians in both parties are increasingly concerned that Wallace's third-party candidacy may lead to an Electoral College deadlock that throws the presidential election into the House.

One proposal to neutralize Wallace's leverage, a plan calling for House candidates to pledge to support the candidate with the largest popular vote if none receives an electoral vote majority was endorsed Thursday by GOP presidential candidate Richard M. Nixon.

A UPI survey indicated, however, that the nation's governors are interested but wary of the plan.

Other developments:

Nixon: The former vice president's candidacy was endorsed by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, who said he thought Nixon's nomination and election "would serve the best interests of the United States." Eisenhower, recuprating in Washington from his fifth heart attack, said ill health had kept him from speaking out earlier on his preference. Nixon said the endorsement would be "immensely helpful."

Eugene J. McCarthy: His youth corps kept faith with the Minnesota senator and turned out in large numbers to greet him at Atlanta, but Democratic politicians stayed away. McCarthy confirmed major cutbacks were being made in his presidential campaign staff due to financial troubles, but denied reports his campaign deficit was as high as $1 million. In New York, District 65 of the Retail Workers and Department Store Union endorsed McCarthy. The union has 35,000 members.

Nelson A. Rockefeller: The New York governor, campaigning in Ohio, shrugged off Eisenhower's endorsement of Nixon as not likely to have much effect on delegates to the GOP nominating convention. "The delegates are interested in two things—picking someone who can do a job for this country, and a winner," he said. Rockefeller received the endorsement of Rep. Albert H. Qui, Minn., who is influential in House Republican circles.

Wallace: The former Alabama governor told a rally in St. Louis that President Johnson properly exercised his prerogative in nominating Abe Fortas to be Supreme Court chief justice. "The President has the right to appoint a justice up until the last day of his administration," he said. But he added he hoped Fortas is not confirmed by the Senate.

Fear Balance of Terror Invites Brushfire Wars

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon leaders say the United States and Soviet Union may have reached such an even balance of terror that nuclear weapons will no longer deter conventional wars—nobody will take the threat of their use seriously.

Secretary of the Air Force Harold Brown has told a Senate subcommittee that each nuclear superpower is so strong "that any all-out thermonuclear war would inflict unacceptable damage on both."

Gen. John P. McConnell, the Air Force chief of staff, also has told the subcommittee that the Soviet Union will catch the United States in the number of intercontinental missiles by the end of this year.

McConnell said the U.S.S.R. will be almost, but not quite, equal to the United States in over-all nuclear strength in 1971.

He said this may cause Soviet leaders to feel they can intervene in crisis areas of the world with less risk of U.S. opposition.

Brown said there can be no confidence in nuclear weapons serving to discourage conventional arms flareups.

"I don't think you can deter in Europe, for example, a conventional probe with conventional weapons, by the threat of all-out nuclear war. I think the other side won't believe us," he said.

Brown and McConnell appeared April 30 at a closed session of the Senate preparedness subcommittee, which made public a censored transcript of the testimony Thursday.

The Air Force secretary said the United States has the power now to wipe out "essentially the entire urban population" of the Soviet Union.

But Pentagon officials conceded the Soviet Union also has the power to shower destruction on the United States.

One estimate listed a hypothetical 1976 attack in which American deaths would range from 40 million to 120 million persons.

'Y' Gets More Money for Jobs

Kingston's YMCA has received a grant of an additional $12,600 from the federal government for the creation of 40 new summer jobs for teenagers from low income families in the area, according to Judge Hubert Richter, chairman of the YMCA youth committee.

The additional funds are being made available to the Kingston program through the Manpower Development Training Act. They supplement an earlier grant of $52,900, given to the YMCA in June, and used by the 'Y' to launch the Neighborhood Youth Corps, which has a total of 105 teenage boys and girls from Ulster County participating in the summer program.

Robert Stubbs, YMCA Executive Director, said that this new grant raises from 105 to 145 the number of Ulster County youngsters from low income families employed in meaningful summer jobs. "The program is jointly sponsored by the YMCA and the Ulster County Community Action Committee," Stubbs said, "with the YMCA holding primary administrative responsibility."

"One of the major objectives of the program, restricted to youth who are still continuing school, is to help them to better understand the relationship between education and jobs, and to help them develop a positive attitude toward education and remain in school," Stubbs said. Enrollees are assigned to non profit, private and public agencies throughout the county. "For many this is their first work experience and first opportunity to be paid for services rendered. Many are also from welfare families, and the program serves to change attitudes with respect to the world of work." Stubbs stated.

Of the initial 105 enrollees, 12 are assigned to the Kingston City School Consolidated as clerical and maintenance aides. Others are assigned to such work stations as the Kingston Library, Kingston Hospital, the various Armed Forces Recruiting Stations, and recreation-clerical- and maintenance aides at Community Chest agencies such as the YMCA, YWCA, Boys' Club, Jewish Community Center, Boy Scout Office, Salvation Army and Association for Retarded Children.

Other job stations include the Rondout Valley Schools, New Paltz Schools, Onteora Schools, Phoenicia Library, Saugerties Schools, Wallkill Schools, St. Augustine School, Ellenville Schools and Highland Schools.

Others include the Southern Ulster Migrant Assistance Program, various programs of the UCCAC, the Kingston Urban Renewal office and the BOCES offices in Kingston and New Paltz

"So many deserving youngsters who were eager to work were turned away when we reached our quota of 105," Stubbs said, "that we were greatly pleased with the additional $12,600 to help 40 more young men and women." They will be paid $1.50 per hour for 26 hours per week for the seven week period to the end of August.

Counselors in the project include Mrs. Milton Reynolds, Richard Barthel, Richard Moore and James Rundle, YMCA Youth Director.

Several House Democrats Concerned GOP Will Win

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of 10 House Democrats expressed concern Thursday that the Republicans could win the presidential election and control of the House unless Sen. Eugene McCarthy is the Democratic candidate.

The apprehension was expressed at a news conference to announc the formation of a congressional steering committee for McCarthy at the Democratic National Convention.

The committee, headed by Rep. Henry Reuss of Wisconsin, is expected to counsel on policy formulation and platform as well as comminicate with state delegates and individuals at the convention.

The other nine on the steering committee are: Reps. Jonathan B. Bingham, John G. Dow, Benjamin S. Rosenthal, William F. Ryan and James H. Scheuer, all of New York; George E. Brown Jr. and Don Edwards, both of California, Henry Helstoski of New Jersey and Robert W. Kastenmeier of Wisconsin.

Reuss, Brown, Scheuer, Ryan, Bingham, Kastenmeier and Dow are delegates to the convention due to open in Chicago on Aug. 26.

In a statement on McCarthy, Reuss said: "In our judgment he represents the quality of leadership and courage that the country and the party need at this time.

"We feel that his position and his programs, both international and domestic, represent what we would like to see at this time."

The group predicted a great many voters would stay at home on election day if Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey wins the Democratic nomination.

Joe to Close Hudson Office

The Hudson office of Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick is closing, it was announced today, dut to an apparent lack of need for the facility at this time.

The Congressman's Kingston and Poughkeepsie office will remain open however, with the Kingston office at 2 Pearl Street manned by Lambert Schmidt.

Schmidt, in the past, was also in charge of the Hudson office.

Man, Boy Victims In Area Drownings

An itinerent worker in Kerhonkson and a 6-year-old Columbia County boy were victims of separate drownings that were under investigation today by State Police.

Ulster County Coroner Arthur C. Chipp of Kerhonkson was notified at 4:15 a. m. that a man had drowned in an indoor swimming pool at the Brookside Motel in Kerhonkson at about 4 a. m. Chipp went to the scene where he investigated with BCI Investigator Fred Cooper of Ellenville and state police from the Ferndale barracks.

Chipp reported the man, known only as Jimmy pending positive identification, had worked at the hotel the last two days. The body apparently had been taken from the pool by others at the summer place.

The coroner had the victim removed to the county morgue at Kingston Hospital where examination was to be made to determine the cause of death. Efforts were made to establish identification of the man in order that next of kin could be notified.

On Thursday, Allen Hlavac, 6, of the Columbia county community of Valatie accidently drowned in Kinderhook Lake, north of Hudson, after he and his 8 - year - old brother rowed out on the lake to swim.

Claverack State Police said the boys rowed approximately 15 feet from shore, where Allen apparently jumped out of the boat. He drowned in about five feet of water. The body was recovered.

The boys' father said he thought Allen could swim. The parents are Mr. and Mrs. Allen Hlavac.

Glusker Seeks Sweeper For Ellenville Streets

The Village of Ellenville street sweeper may be on its way out. Extensive repairs on the three year old Elgin has led a number of village officials to believe the machine must go.

Mayor Eugene Glusker told The Freeman that he will offer a resolution at the Aug. 5 meeting of the village board to advertise for open bidding on a new sweeper.

The old one will, most likely, be put up for sale or traded in.

Superintendent of Public Works Carl "Stubby" Miller claimed the Elgin "just won't sweep."

The superintendent said, "We have to use it every day, eight hours a day. But we end up running it for four hours and fixing it for four hours."

Just three weeks ago, a side sweeper bushing wore out and a new one installed. Now that part has worn out and another bushing has just been received at the Public Works Department.

One alleged design flaw of the machine, pointed out by Superintendent Miller, lay in the fact that the tires of the machine are before the sweepers.

"Whenever there is any glass on the street, the tires pick it up before the sweeper gets at it," said Miller.

Another problem, according to Miller, is that the sweeper always leaves a streak of debris behind it.

The machine was purchased in April, 1965. The village board at the time, by a vote of four to one, and following the suggestion of then village manager John Weichsel, purchased the machine from the low bidding Elgin Company.

The single disenting vote was that of former trustee Howard Weiss.

Pool System Fails, Deadly Gas Revealed

MAMARONECK, N. Y. (UPI) —One-hundred and twenty- two children were rushed to New Rochelle Hospital Thursday when the chlorine mixing system in the Bonnie Briar Country Club's swimming pool apparently broke and released deadly chlorine gas.

Hospital spokesmen said none of the children was in serious condition but four had been admitted for further treatment.

Police Chief James Mancusi said a mixing valve in the pool chlorine system apparently malfunctioned, causing a release valve to let the gas escape into the atmosphere.

He said a Health Department inspector would examine the pool before it would be reopened to the public, but added that it now seemed to be working properly.

He submitted to a blood test at Vassar Hospital and later Town Justice Lewis DiStasi released McCann in $100 bail and adjourned hearing until Aug. 17. Summer Jobs For Poor Youth Up 300 Per Cent

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—Thirteen per cent of the summer jobs in state agencies have gone to disadvantaged youths, a substantial portion of whom e from minority groups, Governor Rockefeller said Thursday.

The governor made the statement in connection with an interim report on summer and seasonal employment in state agencies.

The figure "represents a 300 per cent gain over last year when minority group hiring was estimated to be three per cent," Rockefeller said.

Several months ago, Rockefeller directed all state agencies to make a concentrated effort to find summer jobs for disadvantaged youths.

Rockefeller said the employment figures indicated minority groups were getting a "fair share" of state summer jobs since 14 per cent of the state's population were Puerto Rican or Negro.

Coleman Director Speaks to Kiwanis

The services of the John A. Coleman High School and the purpose of a District Superintendent for Catholic schools in Ulster and Sullivan counties was described to the Kingston Kiwanis Club Thursday by the Rev. Joseph J. McCarthy, director of the new high school and District Superintendent for the two-county school system.

Father McCarthy introduced his remarks concerning the school system with a recital of his impressions of the area. As a stranger to the area, the priest noted the local idea of referring to "they" as a way of transferring responsibility to an unknown quantity, the slower pace as compared to the Metropolitan area with which he was familiar, and the presence of a "close-knit society" locally. He stated his position as a "liaison officer between the area and the network of Catholic education." His direct responsibility was listed as the "explanation of curriculum," the supervision of the 16 elementary and two high schools in the two counties," and "the public relations in the area."

As director of the John A. Coleman High School, located on Hurley Avenue, the Rev. Father McCarthy remarked that "I have all the problems of a co-ed school." He pointed to the new school as dedicated to Catholic principles with a substantial academic program, and stated that 420 students would be enrolled in September with a capacity of 600 at the present time.

The speaker emphasized that the John A. Coleman High School is "directed to meet the needs of the community", and that its program would stress "community and cooperative effort.

Ulster Businessmen Back County Sales Tax Defeat

Reversing the trend of business groups supporting a county-wide sales tax, the Ulster Businessmen's Association in a statement today backed the action of the County Legislature last week in defeating further action on the proposal for this year.

The statement signed by Bernie Singer, committee chairman said, "It is unfortunate that the businessmen of the City of Kingston choose to work against the best interests of their friends and customers, instead of directing their efforts toward a constructive solution to their dilemma. They selfishly try to involve everyone so that they would no longer be at a disadvantage. Despite some of their ridiculous claims, it is obvious that they just prefer to disregard the Golden Rule.

"All the recent publicity concerning the proposed Ulster County sales tax seems directed toward an organized effort to impose this confiscatory measure. The Town of Ulster Businessmen's Association would like to correct any such impression and assure the people of this county that they have not been abandoned. The county merchants and the average citizen do not want this tax and believe that it is not necessary.

"Majority Leader Douglas Dye's (R-2nd District) comments of less waste and increased efficiency and his vote along with the 22 others in favor of the overburdened taxpayer was a welcome change. We hope that these men will continue to represent their constituents.

"Our county expenditures this year may be less than anticipated and by maintaining only essential services we can avoid any increase in taxes.

"A sales tax is an acknowledged regressive tax. The biggest share of the income comes from those least able to afford it. The history of all taxes prove that once imposed, they seldom are removed.

The Town of Ulster Businessmen along with merchants from Saugerties, Ellenville, New Paltz, Phoenicia and other areas in the county are opposed to a sales tax, as are the great bulk of the people in these communities and in Kingston. We do not want a sales tax. We do not need a sales tax. Wise administration on the part of our elected officials will see to it that this tax does not become a reality. The people should let their legislators know how they feel.

The argument that other counties are capitalizing on the influx of visitors by making them dig deeper into their pockets for the privilege of coming here should not influence anyone. We should try to promote trade and commerce with a welcome and inviting air, not by penalizing those who come here. And, also, our own residents would be forced to contribute to the tax and spend schemes," the statement concluded.

The County Legislature last week defeated a proposal to prepare a local law for the enactment of a 2 per cent sales tax. This added to the state tax would mean a payment of 4 per cent on each purchase in the county. Kingston has had a 2 per cent sales tax since March 1 and the local merchants who must collect the tax in the city have been operating at a competitive disadvantage with businesses outside the city.

Alarm Received, No Fire Found

Four pieces of apparatus responded to an alarm at 8:42 a. m. today after smoke was reported in the basement and main floor of the United Pharmacy at 329 Wall Street. Investigation disclosed no fire.

A telephone call was received at 8:41 a. m. and the box alarm was sent a minute later dispatching Engines 1 and 2 and Trucks 1 and 2 to the scene in command of Deputy Chief Glyn Southard. Wicks Salvage and Excelsior Volunteer units responded but were not needed.

Firemen checked the fluorescent light fixtures for any defective ballast, but found none. Further examination of the basement disclosed the smoke was caused by an overheated motor on the air conditioning duct. Electricity was shut off and smoke in the cellar was ejected with fans.

Former Game Warden Named to High Post

A former Kingston area resident, William J. Goodman has been appointed to the newly created post of assistant director for Law Enforcement and Field Services for the New York State Conservation Department Division of Fish and Game.

In making the announcement Conservation Commissioner R. Stewart Kilborne said, "the appointment of Bill Goodman to this important new post in the Conservation Department is a key move in the restructuring of the Bureau of Enforcement to give it more adequate staffing which will result in better service to the public." Noting that Goodman began his career as a game protector in Columbia County in 1938, Commissioner Kilborne said, "it pleases me to see another one of our career employes achieve a position of increased stature in the department."

WILLIAM J. GOODMAN

Locally, Goodman was held in high esteem by all sportsmen and the men in his department while he was district game protector. He came to Kingston in 1946 following four years service in the armed forces. At that time the Conservation Department was located in the Millard building on Central Broadway.

In 1959, Goodman was appointed chief of the Bureau of Law Enforcement working out of the Albany office. While in the Kingston office, he resided in Port Ewen.

Local acquaintances know Goodman as an excellent after dinner speaker. He was much in demand at local sportsmen's banquets and meetings where his knowledge of all phases of conservation laws and his willingness to discuss any sportsmen's problems earned him a vast following.

Mr. and Mrs. Goodman, the parents of twin girls, Carol and Elizabeth and another daughter, Margaret, now live in Stuyvesant Falls. Goodman, a native of Waterford, is a graduate of Hudson High School.

In outlining the major appointment Commissioner Kilborne noted that "in this modern world of conservation of our natural resources the role of those who are responsible for their protection and the relationship of the public has been broadened. The revamping of the bureau is designed to provide greater opportunities for advancement within the ranks and "provide a better climate for recruitment of qualified personnel," Kilborne said.

In Dispute With Board

State Group Backs Marlboro Teachers

In the face of a Marlboro Central School teacher boycott, the Marlboro Central Faculty Association has accused the Board of Education of releasing "misleading information."

The New York State Teachers' Association is asking its members to refrain from applying for employment in the Marlboro Central School District.

Announcement of the imposition of the sanction was made in a message to members of the Marlboro Faculty Association Tuesday.

The statement, made by Mrs. Catharine O'M. Barrett, president of NYSTA says in part, "Marlboro Central School is not an appropriate place at present in which professional teachers should seek employment.

"The action is necessary because the board has refused to: 1. negotiate in good faith in that it has not altered its position since March 24 when it unilaterially adopted the district salary schedule; 2. utilize the impartial fact - finders' report as a basis of settlement; and 3. give its representatives authorization to seek a settlement."

Meanwhile the Marlboro Faculty Association, seeking to clarify its position, answers points made by the board of education as follows:

1. "The Board reiterates the exagerrated statement that we made a request for a 50 per cent monetary increase plus other benefits. This of itself sounds very demanding but in reality it was the same New York State Teachers' proposal made by almost all schools in the area. On the other hand, the boards first proposal was status quo.

2. "The second statement that the association stopped negotiations and called in the Public Employees Relations Board on April 2 rather than continue negotiations is of course partly true. When it was obvious that the board of education was adament in its stand, the teachers followed the procedure as set forth in the professional Negotiation Agreement. According to article Five of the negotiation agreement 'if an impasse occurs,' the matter under dispute may be directly submitted to PERB in Albany for its determination in accordance with the Public Employees Fair Employment Act.

"It should be noted that before the impartial mediator from the Public Employees Relations Board rendered his findings the association, through its attorney, made a statement that it would accept the findings whether they were favorable or unfavorable. The board on the other hand stated flatly that they would not accept his findings.

3. "The board of education stated that the teachers made threats, requested sanctions and made misleading statements. The board should realize that sanctions will be imposed on the district only if it is felt by the board of directors of the New York State Teachers Association that the situation warrants sanctions. It is no secret that sanctions have been requested. Therefore sanctions have never been a threat but a statement of fact.

The association has advertised to warn parents and the community in general that many experienced teachers are leaving. Again, the facts bear this out. The mass exodus of teachers from the district has already been noted in the press.

"The board of education declares that it has followed procedures as set forth in the Taylor Law.

"It claims that the negotiation contract was signed in January. This is true.

2. "It claims that there were numerous negotiation sessions. Indeed this is true. They neglected to state however that at only two meetings were all the members of the board present, and many times there was not even a quorum. There were times when the teacher negotiation committee found only one or two board members present and ther meeting would be postponed. At no meeting did the business proceed with any punctuality. As a matter of fact, the teachers have had to wait an hour past the scheduled meeting time.

3. "The board states that the recommendations of the supervising principal were made and they imply that they thereby carried out the provisions of the Taylor Law.

It is true that Georgini, supervising principal did make his recommendations over a month after the time designated.

"Much is made of the teacher-pupil ratio in the Marlboro schools. The public should be aware that this is very misleading. When computing teacher - pupil ratio everyone employed in a professional position is added. This is divided into the number of students. Such people would include librarians, nurses, remedial reading teachers, the dental hygienist, guidance directors and psychologist in addition to the classroom teachers.

"It is true that since we have a small school, there will be fewer people in the advanced math, science and language classes. However, except in these areas in high school, the class size is on par with other schools in the area.

"Taxation in Marlboro has increased. Many of the teachers own homes in the district and are well aware of this. Yet it is noted that in advertising real estate in Marlboro, invariably a point is made that the property is located in an area of low taxes. The association must acknowledge that taxes are climbing but this is true everywhere and Marlboro to date has been more fortunate than most."

Rockwell Kent Invited Back by Newfoundland

By BRIAN B. KING .....

AUSABLE FORKS, N.Y. (AP) —Rockwell Kent, who for decades has been admired for his art and condemned for his politics, has been invited to return to the Canadian province that deported him during World War I.

A family spokesman said Wednesday that the 86-year-old Kent, who has been in ill health for some years, had been invited to return to Newfoundland by Premier Joey Smallwood.

There, before his deportation for alleged pro-German activities almost 50 years ago, the famed landscape artist captured in his paintings and writings scenes that have been acclaimed for their "dramatic realism."

The spokesman, at Kent's home in this Adirondack village outside Plattsburgh, said the artist was scheduled to leave for Newfoundland Monday for "a week or ten days."

The visit is to be a private one, the spokesman said, and Kent does not feel "he should make any comment, at least not until he got back."

No Communist

There was no immediate comment from the Newfoundland or Canadian governments.

This is the second summer in a row that Kent has made news by his travels.

Last year he journeyed to Russia to accept the Lenin Peace Prize and its cash award of $27,778.

Later, he announced he had donated $10,000 of the money to North Vietnam's Moscow ambassador "to aid suffering women and children" and as "a token of my shame and sorrow at the unprovoked and utterly illegal invasion of the territories of the people of Vietnam" by the U.S., and at "my own de facto involvment in my country's shameful act."

Although the U.S. Treasury Department said it would investigate the gift, no charges against Lent have been filed.

In the 1930's, he included a small "coded" message on a painting for a Puerto Rican post office, urging Puerto Ricans to seek their independence from the United States.

Later, accused of supporting the Civil Rights Congress, a group the House Un-American to as a "Communist-front" organization, the bald, 5-foot-9 Kent replied:

"I am working in every way I can to promote that way of life which I, an American, consider to be the American way of life."

The outspoken Kent—once described as the art world's "Stormy petrel", a small bird common to the Atlantic shores that flys far from land—was deeply involved with the World Peace Congress in the 1950s.

It was in 1950, when his passport was invalidated by the United States after he addressed the Supreme Soviet in Moscow, that Kent remarked: "I am interested in the peace movement because it is backed by Communists. Anything that the Communists say about peace ounds good to me."

Denies Membership

Although the words have been used often in stories relating his activities, Kent has also termed the Communists "my enemies" and has vehemently denied that he was a Communist Party member.

Rather, he has said, he considers himself a socialist.

Kent sued the State Department in 1957 when he was denied a passport to a peace meeting in Finland because he refused to sign an oath saying he was not a Communist.

The U.S. Supreme Court, ruling in his favor, held that a passport application could not be rejected on these grounds as such an oath had never been authorized by Congress.

Poultry Meeting Slated July 30

A Hudson Valley area poultry meeting will be held on Tuesday, July 30 at 7:30 p. m. at the Holiday Inn in Liberty to discuss "The Ups and Downs of Egg Prices," Robert Guzewich, Ulster County Cooperative Extension Agent announced recently.

The program will include such topics as "The Pricing of Eggs," "Northeastern Egg Marketing Association," and "Federal Enabling Legislation and Marketing Orders."

Guest speakers at the meeting will be Dr. Olan C. Forker, Associate Professor of Marketing at Cornell University, Maurice Stein, President of the Maine Egg Farms, and Dr. Robert J. Young, Chairman of the Department of Poultry Science at Cornell University.

All area egg producers and others interested in the poultry business are invited to attend the meeting.

At Thoreau Parley

Dennis J. Hannan, head of the English department in the junior and senior high schools of Wappingers Central School, has returned from Concord, Mass., where he attended the annual meeting of the Thoreau Society.

Speakers included the naturalist, Hal Borland, Dr. Reginald L. Cook of Middlebury College, and Thoreau biographer, Dr Walter Harding. Incoming president is Henry Beetle Hough.

Clergy Convene With U.S. Blast

By GEORGE BOULTWOOD
Associated Press Writer

UPPSALA, Sweden (AP) — The World Council of Churches winds up its Fourth Assembly today with debate on a resolution in effect condemning U.S. intervention in Vietnam and calling for a cease-fire in the war.

"The appalling situation of the Vietnamese people today offers an example of the tragedy to which unilateral intervention of a great power can lead," said the resolution hammered out in committee.

"Moreover, such intervention creates rather than solves political, social and economic problems."

The resolution calls on both sides at the Paris negotiations "to take risks for peace." It appeals to the United States to stop bombing Vietnam and using weapons of mass destruction and urges both sides to stop fighting.

It also asks all governments to "heed the bitter lesson of Southeast Asia" and strengthen the political authority and material strength of the United Nations.

A report from the committee and world service was to be presented for approval. It urged high priority for development aid.

The aid division, with $13 million a year turnover, coordinates more than 600 social, development and refugee projects in about 80 countries.

The report suggested that a revolving fund contributed by donor agencies be set up for quick financing of development projects.

"By the mechanism of a revolving loan fund, administered by the division, many more projects could be helped over the years and each given the added advantage of contributing more both to its own self-support and to other enterprises. This may well be one of the main future developments of the division's work."

It recommended planning for postwar programs in Vietnam and Nigeria.

On the Middle East, it called for increased financial support from governments for the United Nations Relief and works agency for Palestine refugees.

The churches Ministry to the Homeless also must be intensified, the report said.

It said there is no evidence of church people suffering from "compassion fatigue." On the contrary, the urge to serve and give sacrificially appears to be more widespread than at any time in history, it said.

Two Minor Fires

Kingston firemen responded to two minor fires on Thursday. At 11:19 p. m., Engine 1 in charge of Capt. Robert Maines was dispatched to Tremper Avenue and Cornell Street after fire was reported burning a large plastic cover on the salt pile. Pressure water and Indian tanks were used to extinguish the fire, which officials said was incendiary. At 12:03 p. m. Engine 1 in charge of Deputy Chief Robert Hartwick responded to a call for fire in rubbish back of Mickey's Igloo on East Chester Street by-pass. A booster hose was used to quell the blaze.

SINGER BURNED — Entertainer Dean Martin suffered burns on both hands yesterday when a trick camera he was using in a movie at Columbia Studios in Hollywood caught fire. A studio spokehman said the burns were painful, but did not appear to be serious. Martin was filming "House of 7 Joys" when the accident occured. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Hitch 100 Amendments To New Gun Control Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill banning the mail-order sales of rifles, shotguns and ammunition has picked up support from the House Republican leadership. But it still faces a blizzard of more than 100 amendments which could strengthen it, weaken it or kill it.

The unusual volume of amendments readied for today's session was expected to delay a final vote until Saturday or possibly early next week.

The amendments range from minor exemptions to lessen the impact on hunters and collectors to provisions for registration of all firearms and licensing of owners.

Another proposed major change in the measure as originally asked for by President Johnson would impose mandatory prison sentences for those who carry a gun while committing a felony.

This provision, however, has drawn opposition mainly from congressmen who say it raises constitutional questions.

Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, House Republican leader, lined up Thursday behind the basic Johnson administration bill which would ban the sale of rifles, shotguns and ammunition through the mails and over the counter to residents of nonadjoining states.

The bill would ban all sales of rifles and ammo to people under 18.

This was the way the bill was reported out of the House Judiciary Committee last week and Ford told newsmen "If the committee bill is changed significantly either way—stronger or weaker—it is probable the bill will be defeated."

"If we want to get meaningful legislation," Ford added, "I think we better stick with the committee bill."

Ford thus aligned himself with two other key members of the House who have said they were opposed to registration and licensing for fear such an amendment would jeopardize passage of any bill at all.

Ruth Gordon Happy After Starring Role

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) "It's such a pleasure to be in a hit picture at last," says Ruth Gordon with all the verve of a starlet.

Miss Gordon resembles a starlet in her passion for her work, her youthful outlook, even her miniskirts. But she is an unabashed 73—and still going at top speed.

She has lately been accorded more than the usual attention she gets as one of America's most distinguished actresses and writers—she has written such plays as "Over 21" and "Years Ago" and coauthored with her husband Garson Kanin scripts of "A Double Life," "Adam's Rib" and other films.

Neighbors Part

The reason for the fuss over Ruth Gordon is her performance in "Rosemary's Baby," in which she plays Mia Farrow's nosy neighbor. Her work drew applause from preview audiences and predictions of an Academy Award nomination from critics.

"All the other pictures I've made were unsuccessful," she remarked. "'Abe Lincoln in Illinois,' 'Dr. Erlich's Magic Bullet,' 'Two-Faced Woman,' 'Action in the North Atlantic'—well, that one was a hit, but I only played a one-day bit in it as Raymond Massey's wife because he asked me to.

"Then there was 'Edge of Darkness,' 'Inside Daisy Clover' (which got her an Academy nomination) and 'Lord Love a Duck.' None of them did for me what Rosemary's Baby' has done; already I've had three offers for roles. I turned them down because they weren't different enough.

Many Compliments

"But the best part of the whole thing is the way the young crowd has taken to the role. They come up and compliment me at parties and on the street. I think that's simply great. You can grow old and you can get old—or you can grow old and stay with it. I much prefer to stay with it."

There is no doubt that Miss Gordon is with it. She can talk with teen-agers on their own terms. She can rhapsodize over such new theater as "Hair" and "Your Own Thing." Mia Farrow calls her "my only hippie friend."

She appears to have no formula for her immense vitality beyond a three-mile daily walk and a sustaining interest in the world around her.

Mademoiselle Arrives from Paris After Some Harassing Experiences

Although she had been drenched in a rain storm, missed her bus, hitchhiked a ride in a Volkswagen and spent a night at the YMCA, Miss Cathrine Marinet of France finally arrived in this country last week. She left Paris on July 6 and after harassing experiences en route arrived at Woodstock 4 p. m. Sunday, July 7, where she is visiting Mrs. Sofie H. Bernard of Bearsville Road, a personal friend of the Marinet family for many years.

The journey began on Saturday morning in Paris when, accompanied by her father and sister, she reached the Place des Invalides at 3 a. m. Miss Marinet boarded a bus for Brussels from where she would fly via jet on the Saturn Airways, a chartered flight for foreign students, for New York. It was raining profusely at the Invalides while the group awaited the arrival of the four buses which were scheduled to take the 250 students who were "wet but happy" to the airport.

The plane was supposed to leave Brussels at 1 p.m. and, as the students had arrived at the French-Belgian frontier at 8 a. m., the group departed for refreshments. It was then that the problems began.

When Miss Marinet came out of the restaurant she noted two of the buses had departed, including the one on which she had been a passenger.

Running to board one of those remaining, she found the third bus completely filled and the driver of the last bus refused her entrance as it "was not the one on which you came."

Three other students were left stranded also, two girls and a boy. Not knowing whether to "laugh or cry" the group tried to solve their dilemma as quickly as possible.

Discarding the idea of taking a taxi after hearing the amount of the fare, they decided to hitchhike. The young man was fortunate immediately but the three girls waited 15 minutes, "a long time when one is nervous," added Miss Marinet, until two Hungarian gentlemen in a Volkswagen gave them a ride. Although half an hour late leaving the frontier they arrived in Brussels two minutes BEFORE the buses.

At the airport as they were checking their luggage they discovered the luggage escalator was out of order and they had to wait two hours until it was repaired. Fortunately the plane was three hours late.

"The flight was very comfortable and what surprised us was that the sun was always shining," said Miss Marinet, who added, "even at 1 o'clock in the morning."

They arrived over New York at 10 p. m. but had to circle Kennedy Airport for an hour before landing.

At 11:30 they finished transactions at Customs, and, as it was too late to take a bus to Woodstock, several students decided to spend the night in New York. Taking a bus at the airport they headed for the YMCA where they arrived at 1 a. m. and found other French students who had taken taxis. "They spent two dallors each but it only cost us 40 cents," she explained.

By 2 a. m. the girls were settled for the night but since there weren't enough rooms the young men had to find a hotel and it was 3 a. m. before they found suitable accommodations.

The next morning the group had breakfast at 10:30 and left for the bus terminal where Miss Marinet waited until 2 p. m. for the bus which would take her to Woodstock.

The Freeman hopes Miss Marinet's stay here will be long and pleasant and that the return trip will be a great deal less troublesome.

Teenagers to Demonstrate Crafts

MIKE ROSEN shows Nan Bostick how to operate a machine in the Tinsmith Shop at the Shaker Museum, Old Chatham, where the 13th annual Shaker Museum Festival will be held Saturday, Aug. 3. (Lees Studio).

The Thirteenth Annual Shaker Museum Festival to be held on the Museum grounds of Shaker Museum Foundation, Old Chatham, Saturday, Aug. 3, will feature a talented group of teenagers from the Shaker Village Work Group who will demonstrate some fast disappearing crafts on authentic Shaker equipment. Young girls will be working on large looms that were used to produce room size rugs as well as very small delicate looms used for making the tapes for Shaker chairs.

Young men from the Work Group may be found in the Carpentry Shop operating the lathes just as the Shakers did many years ago. Characteristic of Shaker buildings were the peg-boards, the originals of which are collectors items today. These lads will demonstrate on authentic Shaker made foot lathes how each peg was gracefully turned and carefully threaded so it could be inserted into a matching threaded hole in the board which was then fastened to the wall. Any carpenter will recognize this as a very delicate operation.

The making of a flat broom, a Shaker invention, may be observed as the Shaker Village Work Group show the broom-tying process using original equipment. Shaker brooms were sold far and wide and this developed into one of their major industries.

The Shakers were also skilled metal workers and the Work Group follow the procedures as outlined by the Shakers and will show visitors to the Festival this rare craft in the Tinsmithing Shop.

The ladies will, no doubt, be delighted to see how some of the delicate baskets were assembled by the Shakers who learned much of this technique from the Mohawk Indians. The instructors of this Work Group recently visited the Mohawks and learned the method directly from the Indians, as did the Shakers over a century ago. It is often difficult to distinguish an Indian basket from one made by the Shakers.

The Shaker Village Groups who appear at the Shaker Museum Festival are only a part of the Shaker Village Work Group at New Lebanon under the direct and personal supervision of Mr. and Mrs. Count.

Ulster County Residents Make Annual Pilgrimage to Canadian Shrines

Completing an annual pilgrimage to the many shrines in Canada were the residents of Ulster County. Some of the points of interest were St. Joseph's Oratory, Notre Dame Cathedral, Expo, guided tours through old Montreal and Quebec, St. Anne de Beaupre, and Cape de Madeline. Highlights of the trip were Father Prandel of St. Alphonsus, who said mass for the pilgrimage at St. Joseph's Oratory, St. Anne, and Our Lady of the Cape; and also Sister Jean Carmel, daughter of Gilda and Alfred Iaonne of Saugerties, who carried the procession tossel. Others who carried the procession tossel were Mrs. Gilda Iaonne, mother of Sister Carmel; Susan Clausi, and Mimi Korob. Martin Keller carried the procession banner. Arrangements for the pilgrimage were made by Teresa L. Mayone, Route 4, Box 244, Saugerties.

Area residents on this pilgrimage included: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clark, Mrs. Tad Weber, Mrs. Mary Krulder, Mrs. Barbara Caton, Mrs. Mary Cook, Mary Senerchia, Elsie Cesen, Virginia Cave, Helen McGowan, Mrs. L. Chirolo, Martin Korob, Penny Korob, Mimi Korob, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Iaonne, Sister Jean Carmel Iaonne, Susan Clausi, Josephine Guido, Nicoletta Amieone, Felicia Lutz, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Keller, Mr. and Mrs. William Connell, Father Alfred Prandel, Mrs. E. Burke, Mrs. Josephine Doyle, Mr. and Mrs. Julia Peuta, Ethel Aitsogeorge, Patricia Turgeon, and Millard and Mary Rowe. Bus driver was Arthur Mulligan.

Residents are planning trips to Palisades Park on July 27, Monticello on August 3, Atlantic City on Aug. 9-11 and Niagara Falls on Labor Day weekend.

Outdoor Living Has Electrical Dangers

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Summertime and the living is easy in the backyard. Summertime and the living also can be dangerous outdoors.

Outdoor living is "in" and as eating, swimming, playing, even dancing and singing have moved out, so has electricity. And with outside power go more hazards than with use of electricity indoors.

The biggest danger in the backyard turn-on is the possibility of electrical shock due to accidental grounding. With moist earth all about, a faulty tool or appliance can send a surge of lethal current through a person by way of the ground. All electrical equipment should be in good repair and properly grounded.

Another common outdoor danger is the use of extension cords and "octopus" connections that overload circuits.

These are just two of the hazards cited in the current Family Safety, a publication of the National Safety Council. Family Safety lists these other suggestions for a safe summer outdoors.

Don't use a hedge trimmer or other tools near water, or in the rain. Never stand in water when using an electrical tool. Stay on dry ground. If an electrical appliance falls into water, unplug the power cord before retrieving.

Be sure that extension cords are in good condition. Replace them when damaged.

Don't overload extension cords with high wattage appliances.

Makeshift wiring outdoors can be dangerous. Better to have a qualified electrician install permanent, waterproof outdoor outlets.

Be careful not to cut the cord when using an electric mower. Don't splice cut cords—replace them. Power mower cords should be bright color to make them visible against grass.

Don't use radios and television in wet areas, especially at pool-side where bare feet and wet ground or concrete add up to hazards.

Use of electric amplifiers at water's edge also can be dangerous.

Keep electric cords away from pinch points that can damage insulation, such as the feet of metal ladders.

Hints From Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Folks:

To all you dolls who buy carpet with the rubberized backing and try to cut and fit it wall-to-wall in your bathrooms or anywhere else.

Did you know the easiest way to cut it is not wih a pair of scissors, but with a single-edge razor blade? Of if your husband has one of those cutting knives that hold replaceable razor sharp blades, they are even better.

Just turn it over and cut from the BACK side. This means cut through the backing.

Want to know why?

You are not cutting the nap on the carpet itself. Furriers cut sable and ermine furs from the back (skin) side. And that's where I got the idea.

You still have kept all the nap along that cut edge, and it will fluff out against the wall.

Heloise

* * *

Dear Heloise:

I was having quite a bit of trouble trying to slice some ice cream after removing it from the carton. My son was watching and suggested using the electric knife.

It worked beautifully. So easy and smooth.

Mrs. Floyd Korb

* * *

Dear Heloise:

I've been told my method of cleaning house is a crazy one. But I always say not to knock it 'til they've tried it.

Instead of concentrating on one room at a time, I concentrate on all. Example . . .

When I wash windows and framework, I do it in every room taking as much time as needed. I tackle only one thing but do it in all the rooms. The same goes for curtains, floors, closets, drawers, etc.

By using what I call this cycle-method, no room is cleaner or dirtier than another. And I find it most rewarding.

Beat the Heat With Cool Strawberry Bowle

STRAWBERRY BOWLE

Take a plain, white wine. Add fresh, crushed fruit. And you have a refreshing summer drink that has served Europeans well for centuries.

It's called a "bowle." Almost any fresh fruit can be used in this light, bright drink.

The continentals make bowle when strawberries first arrive and go right through the summer, using all the fresh fruits of the season in their turn.

Hhere's a sip of the first bowle of the summer.

* * *

STRAWBERRY BOWLE

1 quart strawberries, washed and hulled
1 pound sugar
½ cup bottled lemon juice
3 bottles Mosell or Rhine wine, well iced

Place strawberries in a bowl and add lemon juice and sugar. Shake bowl slightly to mix ingredients. Refrigerate for approximately eight hours. (Chilling with sugar and lemon juice releases the strawberry juice and heightens the fruit flavor.) When ready to serve, put the strawberry combination in a large punch bowl and add the wine. Do not add ice.

SUMMER COOLERS

Summer nutrition is easy with these delicious, easy-to-make summer beverages. Designed to slip down easily, they contain an abundance of well-camouflaged vitamins and minerals.

Substitute fresh berries in season as indicated. But be sure that you pique flavors with lemon magic.

The quick energy provided by the natural fruit sugars can provide a much needed pick up for mom, too, on those hot summer afternoons.

OLIVE SANDWICH SOUP

A Ripe Olive Sandwich in Your Soup

It had to happen. Just when you think you've seen everything you see your sandwich IN your soup. This ripe olive creation has the charm of the famous French onion soup and is possibly more versatile and variable. It's not a joke nor a reached-for recipe. It's the latest word from the sunny Mediterranean by way of California and in the best of taste. Good cheese, good bread, good California ripe olives—even better than the salty Italian ones—fresh green peppers, tomatoes, onion and garlic. How can you go wrong with these beautiful foods?

The chunky ripe olives and cheese help to make it a really satisfying and warming. The topping keeps well in the refrigerator for quick sandwiches, broiled or not. And And there's no telling what you might add to change it's character. Here it's spread on thick slices of oven toasted French bread. Float the sandwiches in the soup and run under the broiler to melt and brown the cheese.

California ripe olives come canned with or without their pits. Select which of the nine sizes best suits your purpose.

Sandwich Soup

1 (No. 1) tall can pitted California ripe olives
1 large green pepper
1 large tomato
1 large onion
2 crushed cloves garlic
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups grated Fontina cheese (or other good melting cheese)
6 thick slices French bread
Olive oil
2 quarts hot stock or onion soup
½ cup grated Parmesan cheese

Cut ripe olives into quarters. Cut pepper and tomato in half; scoop out membrane, seeds and juice. Dice coarsely with onion. Mix with garlic, ripe olives, salt and Fontina cheese. Let flavors develop while making croutes. Brush both sides of bread with oil. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 25 minutes, turning once. Arrange croutes in large tureen or individual bowls filled with hot stock. Top generously with ripe olive mixture and Parmesan cheese. Broil until cheese melts and top is golden. Makes six servings.

Try Towels as Chair Covers

As midsummer approaches, the outdoor furniture that looked so new in June begins to take on a faded, slightly shopworn appearance.

Director's chairs are among the easiest items to refurbish. From Springmaid comes the notion of covering the faded canvas cover of a director's chair with a pretty bath towel.

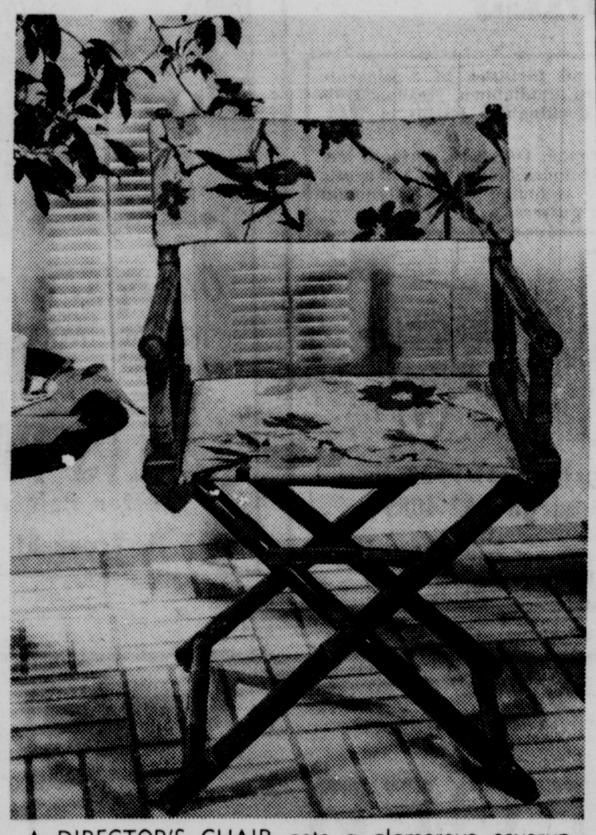

The technique is simple. You can either take off the old cover, and use it as a pattern to make the new one or you can sew the new towel right onto the old cover.

Either way, one large bath towel will do one chair. If you have a design requiring special placement make the back from a hand towel and the seat from a bath towel.

With folded side edges against side marking on old cover (extend marking to underside of old cover) place top edge of towel against top edge of old cover, with right side of towel facing wrong side of cover. Stitch along top edge, allowing ¾-inch seam allowance. Stitch bottom edge of towel to bottom edge of old cover. Reach through open sides to turn seat section right side out. Topstitch side edges in place, working close to folded edge and placing fold exactly along marked lines.

To make back cover: Both sides of the back will be covered with towel material. To make back section, simply cut toweling the same depth as the old back cover, and to the measurement between the lines of stitching at each side of the old cover. Stitch along top and bottom edges to join the two pieces, giving ½-inch seam allowance.

A DIRECTOR'S CHAIR gets a glamorous coverup from Springmaid's Japanese-patterned bath towel.

Position front section of towel, and cut 3 inches deeper (1½ inches each side) than the old cover. Cut side measurement long enough to go around old cover to meet new toweling section on back. With right side of front section facing wrong (or back) side of back section, stitch top edges together with ¾-inch seam allowance, starting and ending stitching at vertical stitching line of old cover. This will give you an unstitched section at each end. At each end of stitching line, clip towel section 1½ inches down. Stitch across bottom edge and clip in same way. Turn right side out.

Turn in ¾-inch top and bottom seam allowance of side sections. Wrap side sections to back, to cover raw edge of back covering. Turn under seam allowance and topstitch in position or finish with a close zigzag stitch.

Thank-You Cards with Wedding Portraits

Dear Mrs. Post: Too many of the finer points of etiquette go unobserved as short cuts are taken to please relatives and friends who send gifts to brides and grooms. I have received cards including pictures of the bride and groom as expressions of appreciation during the past several years. They are charming momentos of the great day, BUT due to the photographer's delay in delivery, these notes arrive one and two months after the wedding or receipt of the gifts. Please, Mrs. Post, remind senders of the MUST in acknowledging gifts as promptly as possible. Maggie.

Dear Maggie: I have just recently become acquainted with this growing custom and I, too, find it charming. I do agree that promptness is most important and the solution lies in a letter I received from one of the photographers who sells these cards. He gives the bride the pards without pictures as soon as she places her order, and then slides the pictures into the slots provided when they are ready.

I would also like to stress the importance of her personal note. The card — with its "thank you" and picture — is lovely, but it does not replace the handwritten note of appreciation which must be written on the inside.

Inviting Co-Workers To Your Wedding

Dear Mrs. Post: For a year I have worked in an office with 14 men and one girl. My mother thinks I should invite only my boss to my wedding. I feel that I should invite all the men (naturally the girl will be invited). My father and she are both inviting the people they work with.

I will be working after I get married, and I would like them to come. If I do invite these people, should they all get separate invitations or should I send a general one to the office? Louise.

Dear Louise: It is not incorrect to send one invitation to a group addressed to "The Members of the Office Staff" or other pertinent wording. However, it is far more personal and therefore more complimentary to send individual invitations if you can spare that number.

I don't agree with your mother. You should invite the men you work with, especially as you plan to continue in your job.

ROOTING PACHYSANDRA

Japanese Spurge or Pachysandra is one of our best ground covers. It spreads fast if given ample water, but be careful about over watering, as it may cause wilting. You can fill in bare spots by digging up clumps and dividing the roots. Or you can start new plants from cuttings. One way to do this is to cut some stems for indoor "greenery." Kept in water they'll root, and then plant them outdoors. Or you can take cuttings about three inches long, and insert them in soil to which some peatmoss has been added. They'll root in two months outdoors, and the job can be done any time now.

Some gardeners tell me they have good luck by digging up clumps, tying each stem in a knot, and planting them back in the soil. They say that the knot idea helps them to root faster.

Pachysandra gets a leaf spot disease. Keep the plants dusted with Captan, if you happen to see brown spots developing. Cut off seriously infected leaves and burn them.

VOODO LILY

Sometimes called the sacred lily of India, Devil's Tongue, or stinker plant, this item has a blossom which gives off a disagreeable odor, hence the name stinker plant. If you happen to have one of these and want to get rid of the odor, cut out the sadix (flower structure) to remove the scent glands. Another "Voodo" plant is the Sauromatum of Monarch of the East. Give both a bright window and a soil with equal parts of sand, peat and loam. Grow these items outdoors in sumer and bring inside in fall.

SAVE YOUR COMPOST

The only way to build up and improve "problem" soils is to add plenty of humus, organic matter, and the one way to do this is to save your grass clippings, potato peelings, leaves, etc., and put them on a compost.

Cover the compost with a sheet of plastic, after you've watered it and see how fast it breaks down. A dry compost pile will not break down as fast as one that's moist.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC

A reader writes: "Our peonies had nice foliage, but no blossoms. What fertilizer do they need?"

Answer: It's not a matter of fertility. Your plants have a fungus disease called "Fireblight" or botrytis blight. Cut off the dead leaves and buds. In fall cut the stalks down and burn, then drench the whole bed with Captan. Next spring, keep the new growth covered with Captan and be sure to spray or dust the buds as soon as they form.

Store Tools Properly And Prevent Accidents

By MR. FIX

One trouble with garden tools is that one tends to be tripping over them all the time. It does little good for one's limb or for the tools.

Hanging them up out of the way will prevent accidents, save room and save wear and tear on the tools. Hanging them up in a makeshift manner, however, may be worse than leaving them about — especially if there are children around.

Children, and adults too, can be injured by pulling down tools that are hung on nails or hooks. When you hang your tools along a garage wall, provide a means of keeping them from falling. A strip of wood nailed across garage studs can serve as a retainer.

Tools on hooks can be kept in place with bits of light chain hooked over the handle and placed high enough to be out of the reach of children.

Use a fence staple at one end and a screen door hook at the other to hold the chain in place. Nails or hooks can be used to hold the tool itself—a pair of nails for a rake, for example.

Small tools—clippers, trowels and the like—can be held securely in another manner. Make a shelf out of scrap wood and nail it between joists of a garage wall. Instead of placing the tools on the shelf, cut holes big enough for the tool to fit in but not big enough to fall through.

Sharp tools, such as a scythe, should be hung high and out of the way and be retained with a chain.

Pails, sprinkling cans and similar containers can be hung overhead. Do not use nails. The items can be too easily knocked off. Use hooks instead.

Fuel for your power mower should be kept in a tightly capped metal can. Keep it up on a shelf out of the way. Insecticides should also be kept in tightly stoppered and breakproof containers. Keep in a locked cabinet.

Put tools away clean and they will be ready to use instantly. Clean off all dirt after using a tool. Then scour with steel wool.

If tools are not going to be used for awhile, wipe with light coating of oil before hanging up.

Keep the cutting edge of tools sharp. Use a file. Always sharpen from the back side to the beveled edge.

Keep wooden handles smooth. A light sanding will prevent painful splinters. Treat unpainted handles with a coat of linseed oil well-rubbed in. Thin the oil first. Oil prevents the wood from drying out.

Keep pruning shears and clippers oiled. Tighten the screw that holds the blades together. Sharpen occasionally with a sharpening stone.

Gruesome Reminder

FUKUOKA, Japan (UPI)—The U.S. military jet fighter plane that crashed into a building at Kyushu University more than a month ago still protruded today from the hole it smashed. The United States offered to remove the wreckage but university officials refused the help.

Cadillac Sales Hit 6th Record

Cadillac domestic deliveries of 17,880 in June — the sixth consecutive monthly sales record — resulted in divisional highs for the half - year and second quarter, according to Calvin J. Werner, general manager of the Cadillac Motor Car Division and vice president of General Motors. A year ago June deliveries were 17,649.

"For the six months, January 1 through June 30, Cadillac domestic deliveries at 115,045 are more than seven per cent above the 106,839 former record for the same period in 1967," Werner reported.

"Second quarter new car sales are 57,563 compared to the former second quarter record of 54,313 established in 1967.

"In addition, Cadillac dealers set an all - time June daily selling rate of 790 in the June 21 - 30 period when they totaled 6,324 domestic deliveries compared to the 752 rate last year in the same period," Werner said.

Plant Origins

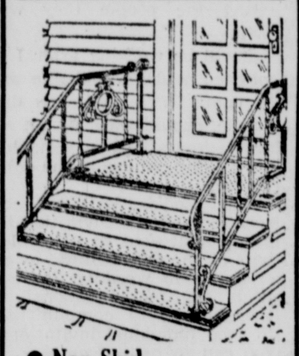

A cultivated plant's origin can be best ascertained by finding the place where ancestral forms still grow wild. For example, the riddle of the watermelon's origin was solved when David Livingston, the explorer, found wild watermelons growing profusely in central Africa.

THE SCENE AT 118 HUGUENOT STREET

New Paltz Residents Protest Something New on Old Street

By CHARLES BERMPOHL

The residents of 118 Huguenot Street in the Village of New Paltz may soon be forced to leave the premises in compliance with a July 10 order, issued by building inspector George W. Jayne, charging the owner of the house with numerous violations of building ordinances.

There is some question, however, as to the validity of the order in that some people feel it is discriminatory, that it is aimed only at the residents of the house.

For some time now, the large wood frame house has been a source of irritation to area residents, the reason being that the place is inhabited by some 15 young people villagers refer to as "hippies" or "beatniks."

At the heart of this irritation is the fact, that the two-story house looks like no other in a neighborhood which, several years ago, was declared a national monument.

On the porch of the house is a large club chair with its stuffing pouring out.

Shabby Appearance

There are signs, inscriptions, and varied art work on the inside walls of the structure and the place, in comparison with other homes on the street, has a general shabby or sloppy appearance.

Of course, the inhabitants of the house itself, with their long hair, beards, worn dungarees, and sandals add to an atmosphere which villagers feel detracts from the general beauty and spirit of the most famous street in the county.

The July 10 order, issued to Frederick Kimlin Jr., owner of the house, states: You are commanded to remove yourselves and any and all occupants from the premises and to keep the premises vacant until said violations are remedied.

The most significant violation, according to Jayne is that the village zoning ordinance prohibits multiple dwellings in the historical district.

Steve Lifschitz, who lives in the house, made the discrimination charge and cited several homes on the street which could qualify as "multiple dwelling units."

Rented to Students

According to Mrs. Edward Marks, wife of the landlord of 124 Huguenot, the house next door, six students rent rooms in her home, all members of different families which would, in the opinion of Lifschitz and others, make 124 a multiple dwelling unit.

Mrs. Janet Bracken, owner of a house at 115 Huguenot—across the street from 118—also rents to students.

Mrs. Bracken, librarian of the Elting Memorial Library, said that, "The people in this village worked for years to make Huguenot Street a national monument," and she added that many of these people would be annoyed at the general appearance of 118 Huguenot.

"So many of these people are concerned only with appearances," said Lifschitz. "They want to preserve the historical pretentions of the past at the expense of a truly progressive present."

Lifschitz, a New Paltz State University College graduate, said, "We represent a progressive present. We represent our generation."

Several of 118's residents claimed that they are, in fact, one family, living in a communal atmosphere, helping one another with problems of mutual consequence.

Elliott Blackman, a medical student, claimed that, "We are a oneness, a unity. We are seeking true health. We are true artists, seeking a balance of heart and mind. We are all growing together."

Mrs. Bracken, on the other hand, would question the "health" aspect. She said, "Nobody paid any attention to them until they parked their cars in front of neighbors' homes. That, and the fact that they were noisy at night and they threw garbage out of windows until it reached window height."

The Elting librarian also said, however, that the five children in the house (ages 16 months to seven years) were "very sweet," and that they rarely cried, that the residents were child oriented, always willing to care for youngster's needs.

Cites Other Violations

Lifschitz went on to cite further "discriminatory" violations in the Jayne order, which he said was issued on July 10.

"On page two (of the order) it says house trailers are prohibited. Okay, we have a trailer next to the house but so do the people next door."

A check of the house next door, at 116, showed that there was, in fact, a house trailer on the property.

The general attitude of the residents is that they are being ousted because they do not conform to what standards villagers would have them live by.

One member of the household said, "Everyone has a life style. We have ours. We don't hurt anybody. We don't attempt to force our opinions on others. It is they (the villagers) who would force and coerce."

Lifschitz went on to claim that, "We are attempting to rid ourselves of all the neuroses our parents and their society forced on us."

One of those neurotic elements, in Lifschitz's view, is clothes, and he claimed that nudity itself was important.

"We should be able to bare ourselves, to show ourselves to one another as we really are."

He said that some of the 15 adults at the house are "still copping out of the nudity scene," but that it is the only way to "cleanse themselves."

A State Law

Village Police Commissioner Harold Phillips said that there was no village ordinance against nudity but that there is a state law.

"Once they step out into the street without any clothes on, they will be arrested," Phillips said.

The question of the Jayne order, if a question exists, may soon be dealt with, but until that time, those who live at 118 declare that they will continue to reside there until they are able to find other quarters.

The fate of owner Kimlin may hang in the balance. Jayne indicated to The Freeman, before he left for his Florida vacation, that the owner, who does not live on the premises, could be subject to a jail sentence.

A Merchant's Viewpoint Of Parking Situation

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

What's wrong with parking uptown?

I can tell you in a few thousand well-chosen words said Louis Kaye, president of Kaye Sportswair Inc., and prominent uptown merchant.

Kaye speaks with some authority on the subject. He recently resigned as chairman of the Traffic Committee of the Uptown Business Men's Association. He said he felt he was banging his head against a stone wall.

Kaye's discussion on the topic covered the type of meters, lack of sufficient parking space between meters, inconsiderate parkers, merchants and employes using valuable parking spots in front of businesses, and a traffic signal promised by the city more than 1½ years ago.

These are all ills which hurt business and discourage the customers from shopping the uptown business district. This chases the customer out-of-town to stores and malls that have large parking areas.

Some of the merchants are to blame for the situation, says Kaye. They park their own cars for many hours in front of their stores and keep putting nickels in the meters. They also permit their employes to do the same, thus cutting down the number of spaces a customer can use and reducing the turnover on any one parking meter spot.

Space Too Short

Kaye also said the space between meters is too short. The meter parking spots were lined when cars were 16 feet or less. Now most cars are much longer and it is extremely difficult to park in these spots especially for women. The lines drawn to designate a parking space are marked incorrectly, Kaye pointed out. The line is drawn some distance in front of the meter. Most motorists pull their cars up even to the meter. This tends to make the spot for the car in the rear much too short for parking. Many times this creates a wasted space.

These parking space ills also cause some parkers to be inconsiderate. They pull in leaving the back of their cars in the line of traffic thus creating a hazard. This also makes motorists park too far from the curb and even some overshoot the parking spot markings, he observed.

Although these problems are general in most communities, Kaye pointed to these ills along Wall, North Front and Fair Streets in the uptown business section of the city.

Kaye stressed that repeated insertions of nickels in the same meter is in violation of the state law. This law is constantly being violated. The law distinctly states that a motorist may park only one hour at any one parking spot, and then presumably must find another spot.

These parking meter problems exist despite the fact that the uptown area has three parking lots adjacent to the business district. One is on John Street and two on North Front Street.

Kaye suggests that the parking meters should permit two hours. This is normal for shopping. If a customer requires more than two hours, there are parking lots in the immediate area where customers may park and have the parking stub validated in any number of stores.

Edict Not Working

The free parking edict for Friday nights is not working well, he claimed. On Friday nights all the parking spots are full of cars and the stores are empty. The answer in most cases is that some merchants and their employes are using these prime parking spots in front of the stores to park their own vehicles.

Kaye also scored the one-cent, nickel meters. The day of the penny meter is at an end, he said. Every city that has meters now charges five cents for a half hour and 10 cents for an hour. This helps the turnover of each parking space, he noted.

Another point brought up by Kaye was the habitual parking violator who collects a number of parking tickets issued by the local police. The law should be changed so that motorists with a great number of parking tickets should be fined accordingly. This might deter the habitual violator and scofflaw.

The system of policing the parking meters has its deficiencies also, Kaye noted. The way the police operate it is difficult for them and for the system. The big difficulty for the police is to identify the constant violators of the meters, Kaye observed.

Policemen Not Aware

Policemen patroling the streets are moved about all over the city and do not have fixed posts. In this way they are not aware of those who are constant violators.

In other cities, especially Poughkeepsie, they have parking meter men on steady duty and they get to know the area and soon learn who the overtime meter parkers are and how to deal with them, Kaye said.

These parking meter men operating efficiently create a greater turnover for parking spaces.

Another big factor in the traffic and parking problem of uptown is the very large buses that must load and unload passengers in the shopping area. Kaye said one fixed zone should be established where these buses may stop.

The blinker light at the intersection of North Front and Fair Streets was also scored by Kaye. He said the city promised the merchants that a regular traffic signal would be installed at this point about 1½ years ago and still nothing has been done. Some of these difficulties may seem insignificant, but if each one is alleviated, conditions would improve and this would be a big help to the economic climate uptown, Kaye concluded.

Fires 4-Under Par 66 in PGA

Year Later–Marty Fleckman in Same Spot

By JACK WILKINSON
UPI Sports Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—Young, good-looking Marty Fleckman burst into prominence a year ago when, as a amateur, he grabbed a two-stroke lead in the first round of the U. S. Open.

That's all history now, an although he led after the third round, too, he faded badly in the final round and finished in a tie for 18th. Today, Marty Fleckman's back in the spotlight—again with a two-stroke lead, this time in the first round of the 50th PGA champi.

Fleckman, now a promising professional with as long a drive as there is on the circuit, tamed the treacherous terrain of Pecan Valley Country Club's 7,096-yard, par 35-35—70 layout and ignored the roasting 92-degree heat Thursday to shoot a four-under-par 66.

That gave the muscular, 24-year-old Texan a two-shot advantage over Frank Beard, who carved out a 68 despite a bogey-bogey finish, and a three stroke lead over three others—Trevino, Mason Rudolph and part-time tour player Don Bies of Seattle, Wash.

Five Break Par

Those five were the only ones to break par, but seven others came in at even par 70. These included former champ Al Geiberger, Miller Barber, Dan Sikes, Charles Coody, Johnny Pott, Frank Boynton and Laurie Hammer.

Pre-tournament favorites Jack Nicklaus and Billy Casper stayed in contention with 71 and 74, respectively. Arnold Palmer, who has never won the coveted PGA championship, also shot a 71. Defending champion Don January was far back at 78.

Fleckman was not worried that history would repeat itself.

"I feel no pressure about being the leader," he said. "And I have more confidence now in what I'm doing than when I played the open at Baltusrol."

However, he was bothered last month when he failed to make the cut at this year's Open. After making an auspicious professional debut by winning the first tournament he entered as a pro, the Cajun Classic last December, his game went downhill.

A late starter, Fleckman calmly took the tight and tricky Pecan Valley course in stride with five birdies, including three in a row, against a single bogey. He opened his onslaught when he chipped in from 25 feet for a birdie on the 437-yard, par two second holem Then he birdied No. 3 with a six-footer and No. 14 with a seven-foot putt.

Fleckman, who ranks 65th on the money-winning list with $14,520 earned this year, also birdied the 12th from six feet monstrous 607-yard, par five and the 16th from four feet. His sixth hole when he three-putted lone bogey came on the from 20 feet.

Fleckman passed the supreme test of the day when he easily handled the two closing holes, which had proved the undoing of potential leader after leader. It was this wicked windup that cost Beard the possible first round lead when he bogeyed both 17 and 18. They also ruined Miller Barber's earlier bid for the lead when he also bogeyed them both after going into No. 17 two under par.

Pros Tab Pecan's 18th a Monster

By DARRELL MACK
UPI Sports Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—Arnold Palmer says its "ridiculous." Don January, the defending champion, and Frank Beard gave it a terse "no comment."

Billy Casper and Sam Snead questioned the tee placement.

They were all talking about the 18th hole, the monster of Pecan Valley. It rose to conquer three potential leaders—Beard, Miller Barber and Laurie Hammer.

They all took bogeys, sending Barber and Hammer from a tie at 69 back to par 70's and sending Beard from 67 to 68, two shots behind the leader Marty Fleckman.

The 458-yard par 4 hole has the Salado Creek slanting sharply across the fairway about 260 yards from the tee. Only Jack Nicklaus was able to carry the creek, unleashing a 280-yard drive. Big George Bayer's drive hit a footbridge and bounced across. Countless others fell in the water.

Many, like Palmer and even George Bayer, played it safe with iron shots. Did Palmer consider driving across? "No chance. I mean hell no," Palmer said. "I might be foolish, but I'm not stupid. Jack Nicklaus hits it farther than I do. He is the only man who could do it.

"The way they're playing it, it's a ridiculous hole," Palmer said. "The hole is much better if you have a chance to drive across. If they had the markers up 30 yards to the front of the tee so you had a chance to go across, I think it would be foolish not to try it.

I think it makes a difference of a stroke a round," he said.

Nicklaus said he drove it because the wind was calm. If it would have been against him, he said he wouldn't have tried. Palmer said he had a slight wind in his face.

Snead and Casper agreed the tee should be forward so it would give the players a chance.

The crowd would like it better, too, if the players were trying to get across," Snead said.

But there are no plans for any changes. Nicklaus has the advantage and the others are going to have to gamble to keep pace.

Jack Nicklaus—"How can you get inspired in this weather? I wasn't concentrating."

Lee Trevino—"I should never have made the double bogey. I could have reached the green with a 7 or 8-iron. I could do it with a 9-iron, too, if they'd let me have the shot back.

The Leaders

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI) — First round scores in the 50th PGA Championship:

White HR Tops Nats For Yanks

NEW YORK (UPI) — Roy White's two-run homer capped a three-run seventh inning rally as the New York Yankees defeated the Washington Senators 4-1 Thursday night.

Jake Gibbs led off with a walk off loser Bob Humphreys, was sacrificed to second by Charlie Smith, moved to third on Stan Bahnsen's fly ball and scored the tie-breaking run on Horace Clarke's single to right. After Clarke stole second, White belted his 10th homer of the year into the right field stands.

Jim Hannan started for the Senators and allowed only seven hits and one run before leaving for a pinch hitter in the seventh. The run came in the first with one out on singles by White, Mickey Mantle and Joe Pepitone.

The Senators tied the game in the fourth on Cap Peterson's single, Frank Howard's double and Mike Epstein's sacrifice fly.

Bahnsen, who won his eighth game against six losses, went 8 1-3 innings allowing eight hits, walking none and fanning four.

With one out in the ninth Ken McMullen and Bernie Allen singled and Steve Hamilton replaced Bahnsen. Pinch-hitter Hank Allen blooped a single to right field, filling the bases and Lindy McDaniel replaced Hamilton and struck out pinch-hitter Bill Bryan. He retired pinch-hitter Ed Stroud on a bouncer to the mound to end the game.

Seaver Checks Bucs On Fourth Shutout

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Tom Seaver pitched a six-hitter for his fourth shutout of the season and the New York Mets combined four singles and a walk to score three runs in the sixth inning Thursday night and beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-0.

Seaver, the Mets' "hard luck pitcher" during the early part of the season, scored his sixth victory in his last seven decisions and raised his record to 8-6 while striking out 10 and walking one. It was the 15th shutout by the Mets' staff this season, tying St. Louis for the league lead.

Al McBean matched Seaver's shutout pitching for five innings but the Mets rallied for all their runs in the sixth after filling the bases with none out on Bud Harrleson's single, Cleon Jones' walk and a bunt single by Art Shamsky.

Ed Charles struck out but Harrelson scored the first run of the game as Ed Kranepool hit into a force play at second and Jerry Grote and Phil Linz followed with run-scoring singles.

The loss was the ninth against seven wins for McBean, who yielded eight hits, all three runs and walked two in 5 2-3 innings.

Marichal Deals 3-0 Deck to SL

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Juan Marichal has finally caught up to the St. Louis Cardinals. If the rest of the San Francisco Giants can't say the same come Sept. 29 they'll be playing for a new manager next spring.

Just before Marichal blanked the Cards 3-0 Thursday night and evened his lifetime record against them at 15-15, Herman Franks confirmed reports that he would retire as manager of the Giants if they don't win the National League pennant.

Owner Horace Stoneham shouldn't have long to wait before applications start pouring in since the Giants still are in fourth place, 13 games behind St. Louis, after ending the Cards' winning streak at six games.

Elsewhere, Atlanta walloped Houston 7-1 and the New York Mets downed Pittsburgh 3-0. Los Angeles was rained out at Cincinnati and the Philadelphia Phillies and Chicago Cubs were not scheduled.

"Four years is enough," Franks said. "Change is good for everybody. I just made the statement that if we couldn't win the pennant this year, then I would resign. It's that simple."

Marichal, the NL's top winner, ran his record to 17-4 with a four-hitter and even drove in a run with a second-inning single. He retired 17 batters in order over one stretch until Lou Brock singled to open the ningh.

The Giants scored twice off Steve Carlton in the second on singles by Willie Mays, Jim Hart, Hal Lanier and Marichal. They added a run in the eighth when Mays walked, stole second and scored on a single by Jesus Alou.

The Cardinals saw their league lead chopped to nine games when second-place Atlanta beat Houston behind the hitting of Tommie Aaron and Pat Jarvis' two-hit pitching.

Aaron broke a 1-1 tie with a bases-loaded triple in the third inning off Dave Giusti and knocked in another run with a single in the eighth. Not to be outdone, big brother Hank singled home a run in the ninth.

Jarvis, 10-6, has never lost to the Astros and beat them for the fifth time. He allowed singles by Hector Torres in the first and Doug Rader in the seventhm

Muller Shoots Pistol Loop 284

Ernest Muller fired a 284 to once again pace the action in the Ulster County Summer Pistol Shoot League, holding a winning margin of 11 over Norman DeWire.

DeWire's 273 was just a point over John Tverdak's 272, and five over fourth-place Tom Sommer's 268. Rounding out the top five was William Morse's 265..

DiMaggio-Idol of Two Generations

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Writer

NEW YORK (NEA) — The baseball glove lay flapped on the stool in front of his locker. Beside the stool, with his hands dug into the pockets of his green Oakland warmup jacket, stood Joe DiMaggio. A white cap with a green letter A was hunched on his gray hair and the bill tilted down his sloping nose.

The A's carpeted dressing room at Yankee Stadium was nearly empty. The players were on the field. DiMaggio took a few steps toward the door, talking with a visitor. Johnny, the clubhouse man, called, "Hey, Joe, don't forget your glove." DiMaggio smiled at the solicitousness. "Thanks, Johnny," he replied. "And Johnny, get me some tea, wouldya?"

DiMaggio, the only executive vice president in baseball who doubles as a coach, now ducked his head as he emerged into the dugout, carrying a hard-paper cup of tea. Several people from the Yankee organization happened to be standing around with sports writers.

"Hey, Joe, how are you?" "Boy, we could sure use you now." "Why don't you grab a bat and change uniforms and get in the other dugout?" "Joe, how you been?"

Some Small Talk

There was a lot of small talk, enthusiastic, but not overly familiar. None of the good-natured profanity often associated with dugout banter. Joe sat on the leather-cushioned bench. He crossed his legs, covered with green-and-gold stockings, and sipped tea. He scanned the park. When he looked to the side his ruddy neck wrinkled thin white lines.

"Sure makes a difference," he said, "with the seats painted that light blue."

"Couple other things different around here, too, Joe," someone said.

"Yeah," replied DiMaggio, with a knowing grin, "they put steel girders under the scoreboard." He drained the cup and placed it under the bench.

Pleased with Youngsters

A reporter asked about the A's. DiMaggio's mood changed, from casualness to business. He seemed, someone remarked later, like a man who smokes three packs of cigarettes a day. He spoke low, but rapidly. He chopped the air with emphatic hand hacks.

"It's a thrill, no question about it, a thrill," he said. "A tremendous satisfaction to see some of these young hitters I work with improving. And the enthusiasm is something. They were in last place last season and now they're way up in the first division. I don't know how long it'll last, but, by God, it's good to see.

"You can feel it on the bench. All these guys talking it up and patting each other on the back. 'Don't let those runs bother us,' they say. 'We'll get 'em back.' They do, too. They came from four runs back, oh, let's see, in Boston, I think, or one of the other clubs. Down something like 9-5, or maybe 9-6. And won.

"But it's a young club, and they make mistakes. You got to be patient. Most of the hitters have only been in pro ball a couple years. Almost no minor league experience, either. No Triple A. No Double A. Well, maybe half a year Double A. They need to see more pitching. That's what I've been saying all along. They need to see more pitching."

He bolted off the bench. In the days before cushions, it might have been blamed on a splinter.

Can't Teach Hitting

"You can't teach someone how to hit," he continued. "He has to see a lot of pitching. You can teach an outfielder how to chase a fly ball, which base to throw to. You can teach a pitcher how to work on a hitter. But you can't teach a hitter how to hit. If you could, I'd still be playing. It's the reflexes that count. You can show him little things like improving the stance, though."

He was asked if he had taken batting practice yet. "No," he replied. "My back hurts. But sometimes I shag balls in the outfield. I think I'll swing the bat only once this season. In the Mets' or Yankees' old-timers game. If I play at all. I'm 53 years old now. And my back hurts. I retired 17 years ago and hardly saw a game in between. I went once to Candlestick Park to see the Giants. Sitting in that wind hurt my back. I never returned.

"But I like what I'm doing very, very much. And I still get stacks up to here of mail. You'd think fans would forget and let me fold up. But the kids read magazines and their mothers and fathers tell 'em about me."

For Home Folks

An Oakland radio announcer came over and asked Joe to tape an interview. "This is for the home folks," DiMaggio told the group around him. "You know I've got to do this."

The interview was held alongside the box seats. A gaggle of maybe 150 fans gathered. When Joe finished, he was hailed by shouts and waving scorecards and pencils. He went along the rail signing autographs.

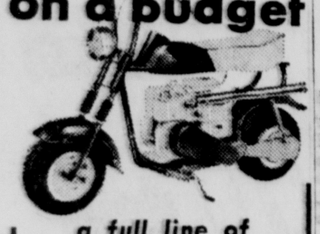

One youngster complained, "Hey, get off me, everybody." Another frantically tried to borrow a pencil to have his lumpy, brown lunch bag signed.

A graying, middle-aged man in red polka dot shirt stuck a piece of paper in front of DiMaggio. "What about the kids?" Joe admonished gently.

"You've been my idol all my life," he replied. "And I'm still a young boy at heart."

County Tennis Tournament Expects Record Field

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

GOOD GUY ON RAMPAAGE — Floyd Patterson, the former world's heavyweight boxing champion, lets the "bad guys" have it while making a guest appearance in the TV series "Wild, Wild West." Patterson played the part of a cowboy involved in a fight. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

The Kingston Area Tennis Association (KATA), the area's only organized tennis association, announces that its Ulster County Tennis Tournament, open to all players residing, working or studying in the county, is now accepting entries.

The tourney swings into action Aug. 7 and lasts for some 18 days, winding up with the final round on the weekend of Aug. 24-25.

Competition in four classes, Men's singles, Men's doubles, Women's singles and Mixed doubles, is slated and tourney chairman, Bill Spangenberger announces that the deadline for entries is July 31.

On the entry blank is a set of dates. Each player has a choice of dates to begin and continue on should he win, and court appointments will be scheduled via times marked by the participants. The committee will make all assignments using these dates as guidelines.

The tourney, referred to as the Ulster County Championship, will be played at Forsyth Park's courts on Lucas Avenue, Kingston.

The fee for participants is $1.00 and a can of USLTA approved balls. All matches are slated for best two-of-three sets.

Once the entries are in, a draw for positioning and pairings will take place. First round action commences at 5:30 the night of the seventh.

Entry blanks are available from Spangenberger, and in Kingston at Potter Brothers, and Kaye's Sportwair, at Roger Jones in Woodstock and at the State University College at New Paltz.

This tournament is the last of seven scheduled by the association this summer. Other tourneys were the men's and ladies ladder tournaments, the member and association championship, the Inter-Club, and the Jaycee district and state tourneys.

The inter-club schedule finds matches against the Poughkeepsie IBM Club and the Redwood Tennis and Swim Club of Middletown. The association's officers are also trying to book a match against the Powelton Club of Newburgh.

A host of regularly scheduled non-classified, intra-club go-rounds continue all summer long.

Defending champs in the "County Championship", are: Men's singles — Pete Zeeh; Men's doubles—Dick Smith and Pete Zeeh; Women's singles—Kitty Ann Samuels; and Mixed doubles—Jim Frederick and Kitty Forle. All are expected to return as well as a host of newcomers. Spangenberger predicts the largest field in the tournament's history will be in the fold for the 1968 version.

Chairman Spangenberger says early response indicates a larger entry than the record 102 in 1967.

Florida Comets Due At Stadium Tonight

The Kingston Braves, way behind in their schedule because of early season rains, and washed out Wednesday night thanks to a man-made flooded field, take on the Florida Comets tonight at 8 at Dietz Stadium.

Take on, hopefully that is, because Dietz, not known for its great drainage system, might still have the track that encircles the diamond, under water.

Veteran Ron Thomas or Ted Bream will get the call against the Comets, last year's Hudson Valley Rookie League second round winner and overall titlist.

Charlie Janes, the fastballing righthander that was slated to go against the Newburgh Atoms Wednesday, gets the call against the Comets, last year's Hudson Valley Rookie League second round winner and overall titlist.

The Comets, a team that carries some powerful bats in Bob Lattimer, Bruce Bell, Gene Scheuermann, Jim Jennings and many others, will have to overcome the pitching strength of Janes, a recent free-agent draftee of the Philadelphia Phils.

Costello Big Hitter For Grills

Returning to action after an extended layoff because of injuries, Bill Costello of Royal Grill knocked in the winning run in the bottom of the first extra inning, as the Grillmen nipped Yallum's 5-4 in eight innings.

In the opener of the City Softball League doubleheader, Yallum's were the beneficiaries of a forfeit from Perry's Grill which apparently has dropped out of the league.

Bill Stokes got the decision in relief of Costello. Rich Hoffman was the loser on a 7-hitter, despite 11 strikeouts. Batting in the No. 4 slot, however, Hoffman slammed a homer and single for the losers. Costello slugged three singles off Hoffman. Shorty Amato hit two singles for Yallum's.

Don Ferraro's leaping stab of a line drive by Stokes in the seventh inning was the fielding gem of the contest.

Kingston Legion Is 4-1 Victor

The Kingston American Legion Junior Baseball team staked pitcher Charlie (Jesse) Janes to a four-run first inning lead and Janes fired a one-hitter, striking out 12 as Kingston defeated Green Island, 4-1, in a Legion exhibition contest yesterday at Dietz Stadium.

Janes was the master throughout, limiting the visitors to three singles and a double while his teammates parlayed wildness by his counterpart, Gary Tymeson, to build up the first-frame bulge.

Gary Schatzel, Greg Rios and Mike Weishaupt all drew walks from Tymeson, loading the bases with one away. Charlie Moore then singled to score Schatzel and Rios. Rick Sorenson walked to fill the sacks again, and then Tymeson issued his fifth base on balls of the frame to Vin Gorman, after Janes had made the second out, forcing in the third run. A passed ball scored the final tally.

The double by Rich Polare, his first of two hits, came in the third. He moved up on a passed ball and scored on a ground-out to spoil Jane' shutout bid

The game was a tuneup for the District 3 finals slated for Albany's Bleecker Stadium, August 2-4.

Alyea's Homers Doesn't Earn Win

By United Press International

Although Brant Alyea's home run production continues to rise, the Buffalo Bison's winning percentage continues to fall.

Alyea, selected to the International League All-Star team last Saturday, hammered his 29th homer of the season Thursday night, but Buffalo lost again, this time dropping a 6-5 decision to Syracuse for its ninth loss in the last 12 games.

In other IL action, Richmond defeated Columbus 5-4, Jacksonville tripped Louisville 6-4 and Rochester at Toledo was rained out.

Bill Denehy, now 8-5, took the loss for the Bisons who dropped to seventh place. Bob Lasko, with relief help from Rich Beck and Hal Reniff, evened his record at 5-5, as Syracuse spurted to a five-run first inning, highlighted by Jim Lytle's two run homer.

Chuck Harrison slammed his 19th homer of the season and Mike de la Hoz and Sandy Valdespino also homered as Richmond and Skip Guinn beat third-place Columbus.

Chuck Estrada won his first game of the season after four losses and Billy Sorrill hit a two run homer in the fourth inning to lead Jacksonville over Louisville and pin All-Star pitcher Galen Cisco with his sixth loss against 11 wins.

Sharp Cat Returns To Winner's Circle

MONTICELLO—It's been a long time, exactly six races and eight weeks since Sharp Cat last tasted victory at Monticello Raceway. Last night, Al Burton rated the four-year-old brown horse by Sharpshooter from the rail, and won coming down the stretch with a tremendous finish in 2:05.

The race, the featured fourth, was worth $4,500 to the field of six trotters and Sharp Cat, no worse than third throughout the mile came from behind to triumph by more than a length over Nevele Song (2) and the even-money favorite, Jamie's Beauty (6).

Co-owned by Burton's wife, Ruth, along with Alma Pagano, the brown, out of Kitty S. Volo by Tru Volo, let Jamie's Beauty and Nevele Song battle head and head for most of the mile, then swooped by both three-wide down the homestretch, coming the final quarter in :31.4.

Laurie's Mon (4) with newcomer Duncan MacTavish, led at the first quarter in :30.3, but Jamie's Beauty was on top on the outside at the half in 1:02.2.

Nevele Song and Jamie's Beauty swapped the lead twice before the three-fourts, which the latter hit on top in 1:33.1. That set it up pretty good for the Cat, who put a new lifetime mark on, clipping four-fiifths of a second off his last victory.

Sent off at 4-1, Sharp Cat returned $10.00, 4.80 and 3.40. Nevele Song was worth $4.60 and 3.00 for place while Jamie's Beauty paid a $2.60 show price.

Black Lightning (2) won the first race and Tallulah Eden (6) the second to form a $39.80 daily double.

Triumph Gives Hotel Shanley Runner-up Spot

Hotel Shanley took advantage of a half - dozen very costly errors by Wright's Service Station and moved into second place in the Ellenville Softball League, beating the Garagemen, 6-3, last night.

Hotel Shanley, triumphant two nights in a row, the other night a 12-0 upset victor over league leader Schrade Walden, now trails by just a half-game, last night's win making them 7-4 on the year to SW's 7-3.

Wright's, who needed the victory to tie SW for the top spot, fell to third with a 6-4 charting.

Charlie Cotton's two-run double in the second put the Hotel on top, but Wright's matched that in the bottom of the frame. Both added a run in the third, Dan Duff's double and Art Jackson's single making the Hotel's tally. Phil VanDeMark's homer knotting it for Wright's.

In the fifth, Duff and Leon Julian both singled.

Three miscues by Wright's let both score and Buck Farmer, the late - arriving Hotel hurler, held Wright's hitless over the final four stanzas, giving the Hotel the victory and the runner up spot.

Rain Delays Clay Singles, Top-Seed Doubles Triumph

By TOM DROLSHAGEN

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—Rain juggled the schedule of the National Clay Courts tennis tournament Thursday and turned the spotlight over to doubles competition, with predictable results.

The top-seeded men's duo of Davis Cuppers Stan Smith and Bob Lutz toyed with Milwaukee players Bob Stuckert and Pete Bronson, gaining the quarter-finals. Maryne Godwin and Laure Roussow, top seeded among women, turned back Ann Lebedeff and Pam O'Shaughnessy.

Quarter-finals in men's and women's singles were postponed until today with the top attractions expected to be duels between No. 2 men's seed Charles Pasarell of Puerto Rico against Jim Osborn of Honolulu and Nacy Richey of San Angelo, Tex., seeking a sixth consecutive clay courts crown, against Tory Fretz of Los Angeles.

Arthur Ashe, the No. 1 men's seed, was beaten Wednesday by Chile's Patricio Cornejo.

Smith, Pasadena, Calif., and Lutz, Los Angeles, never were extended in whipping Stuckert and Bronson, 6-1, 6-1. Their opponents in the quarter-finals will be Pete Fishback, Great Neck, N.Y., and Brian Marcus, Detroit, who defeated Mike Marcin, St. Gabriel, Calif., and Chris Bovett, London, 6-4, 6-0.

Three other men's teams also advanced to the quarter-finals while rain halted three matches involving seeded pairs.

Dick Dell, Bethesda, Md., and Dick Leach, Arcadia, Calif., gained the quarters with a 6-4, 8-6 win over Ramathan Krishnan and Premjit Lall, both of India.

The other two teams gaining the quarters were Sherwood Stewart, Baytown, Tex., and George Seewagen, Bayside, N.Y., and John Brown, Australia, and Tom Gorman, Seattle Wash.

In other results, Nancy Richey and Valery Ziegenfuss, San Diego, beat Marty McLean, San Antonio, Tex., and Lulu Gongora, Mexico, 6-1, 6-1; Peaches Bartkowicz, Hamtramck, Mich., and Stephanie de Fina, Hollywood, Fla., beat Andrea Sanders, Tulsa, Okla., and Dena Garcia, Knoxville, Tenn., 6-0, 6-3.

Seven-Inning No-Hitter in Rondout League

Tigers and Pirates battled to an 7-inning 1-1 tie, as Tom Duncan and Bob Cooke of the Pirates combined for a no-hitter in the Rondout Valley Little League. The game was called because of darkness and will be re-scheduled.

Pirates collected four hits, one a double by Ernie Cesana, off Cory Schoonmaker and Ed Jasinski. Cooke of the Pirates struck out 15 before yielding to Duncan in the 7th.

An error and successive singles by Cooke and Duncan sent Pirates ahead 1-0 in the third. Tigers tied it in the fourth on a walk to Ed Jasinski and two wild pitches by Cooke.

Dear Abby

Wife Needs Protection

(© 1968 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is married to a man who has her completely buffaloed. He doesn't let her see any of the bank statements. They are all sent to his office. She has complete faith in him and believes everything he tells her.

He spends money extravagantly but he keeps her spending to a minimum. He handles all the finances while she is kept entirely in the dark.

Since there are no children, how can I fix my will so that I can leave everything to my daughter, and her husband cannot get his hands on any of it? If this cannot be done, I shall leave everything to charity. I must make some decisions soon as I am getting along in years.

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: If you leave "everything" to your daughter, "Everything" could end up in her husband's hands. Explore with your lawyer a trust of some kind, from which your daughter alone can draw the proceeds. That way she would be provided for in the event that "Big Spender" moves on or passes out.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I have been dating a young man steadily for 4 months. I am 23 and he is 27. During this time he told me he loved me and wanted to marry me. I told him I "thought" I loved him, but I wasn't sure I wanted to marry him.

Last week - end, after much thought, I decided I did not love him enough to marry him, and therefore we should quit dating.

He was very hurt and asked me to continue dating him in order to give him a chance to "fall out of love" with me. I have positively made up my mind not to see him anymore as I know how these dates will end up, and I want to discontinue our relationship.

He is persistent. I don't want to hurt him further. How should I handle it?

KATHY

DEAR KATHY: Be even more persistent than he. Tell the young man that it's more painful to cut off a puppy dog's tail an inch at a time. Better to do it with one clean whack. And don't accept any more dates with him.

DEAR ABBY: I wouldn't miss your column for the world. It's better than the comic strips.

But Abby, I am getting a little weary of those idiots who write to you and ask, "How can I tell my friends and neighbors not to just drop in to visit me at odd hours when I want to nap, or do something around the house, or just be alone?"

I will tell you what I do. I hang a sign outside my door which reads: "I am napping. Please do not ring or knock unless it's an emergency. Come back at 4 p.m." Then I go about my business, reading, napping, painting, or doing whatever I want to do in privacy.

NO DUMMY

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SECOND CHILDHOOD": Just put it down to the very old wine and the very young man. He may not be old enough to know better, but you should be.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self - addressed envelope.

Today's six club contract would be a cinch had West opened anything but a spade. Declarer wouldn't like a diamond opening but he would take a heart finesse at trick two. When that worked, he would simply play out ace and another club and eventually run the hearts to take care of his spade losers.

New Jersey expert Ira Rubin was declarer when West opened the three of spades. Ira won the first trick with the queen over East's jack, cashed the ace of spades and ruffed his last spade. Then he finessed his jack of clubs and played the ace. The king failed to drop and Ira threw East in with that card.

At that point, Alvin Roth, one of the greatest players in the world, who sat East, made a really brilliant play which did nothing to make things easier for declarer. He played his eight of diamonds!

Ira ruffed. It would have been rather silly to play Roth for the ace of diamonds so early in the play, when there was still a really good play in hearts left.

Now Ira ran off all his trumps. West let one heart go somewhere along the line. Two hearts were played from dummy early and, finally, the last diamond. Roth, sitting East, hung on to his nine of hearts, ace of diamonds and a spade.

The next play was the king of hearts, to which everyone followed. The four of hearts produced the eight from West and the moment of decision had arrived. The three missing cards were the queen of hearts, a spade and the ace of diamonds. West still held one card. It was the ace of diamonds or the spade. Ira could rise with the ace of hearts and drop East's quen.

Ira knew that Roth had been capable of underleading his ace of diamonds, so there was no clue there. Finally, Ira decided to play general percentage. West had started with more hearts than East, therefore he was more likely to hold the queen. Ira finessed and made the slam.

Tom Smothers

No More Directorial Ambitions

By TOM SMOTHERS

EDITOR'S Note—The older of the Smothers siblings may act like some kind of a nut before the CBS television cameras, but beneath the comedy there is a very serious young man with a mission. Instead of taking a holiday from show business, Tommy is working as coproducer of what is confusingly called "The Summer Brothers Smothers Shows," where, as in the winter shows, the medium is the message.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — As soon as Dickie and I began to do situation comedy, I began thinking about what comes next—and my first thought was directing, with producing after that.

Now with four "Summer Brothers Smothers Shows" behind me as a producer, I don't have directorial ambitions any longer—and I can see why.

It's because content has always been of utmost importance to me. New ideas, new ways of doing old ideas, getting television involved with what is really happening in America and the world.

Reacted As Hoped

And how do you get that? As a performer, you have to persuade directors, producers, sponsors, networks. And sometimes, as you may have heard, my efforts in that area haven't been regarded as friendly persuasion. But often enough, we bulled our way through so audiences and critics did feel we were a happening thing. The alert, young audience that was being turned off by old-fashioned television reacted as we hoped it would.

The easiest way to get this excitement to happen is to be part of the establishment and subvert it. A producer can do this. I still get argued with, but it's on a different level now—and there's less of it because of our track record.

None of this would work if I hadn't done the producer's main job: surrounding himself with creative people who won't take "no" for an answer.

25-Year Average

I want people who threw off ideas like sparks from a wheel. Our writers for the summer show average 25 years old. When they make a comment on the draft, they don't strike the false note that "Establishment-type" writers do. Our comedy and our commentary won't strike false notes, because it won't be one generation commenting on another—it'll be today's people making a statement about today's problems.

My big job was to resist pressures to go the safe route and hire a staff of people who'd been around a long time and "knew how to do it." I feel judgment and creativity can take the place of experience. The creative people know I'm on their side—but not in their hair.

Ray Returned to Memphis, Sent to Heavily Guarded Jail

By JAMES K. CAZALAS

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—James Earl Ray was flown in secrecy today from England to this Mississippi River port where he is charged with killing Negro leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., three months ago.

Ray arrived aboard an Air Force C135 plane at Memphis' Naval Air Station at 4:37 a.m., EDT and was hustled into a blue and white armored car by federal agents.

With blue dome light flashing, the armored car sped to the heavily guarded Shelby County Jail in downtown Memphis. Seven patrol cars and seven motorcycles flanked the armored car.

Several minutes before the car arrived at the jail, more than a dozen sheriff's deputies, several armed with shotguns, lined the back entrance to the building. One minute later, an unmarked car roared up, and five men leaped out with submachine guns and stationed themselves at the entrance.

A county bus, purposely parked in front of the entrance as the armored car pulled up, obscured the view of newsmen, kept across the street by the strict security.

There were garbled shouts and a flurry of activity around the armored car. Then four minutes after it arrived, the car pulled away.

Ray, 40, whose arrest in London last month climaxed the most intensive manhunt in modern American history, was lodged in a four-cell suite in the gray, five-story jail in downtown Memphis. The windows of his third-floor suite were steel-plated and air-conditioning was installed, along with closed-circuit television so guards can watch his every move.

State troopers, sheriff's deputies, and policemen ringed the jail, some 20 blocks from the motel where King was shot down by a sniper last April 4 as he stood on a balcony. Authorities said the killer fired the rifle shot from the bathroom window of a flophouse across the street from King's room in the Lorraine Motel.

"Every possible measure is being taken to assure security during his (Ray's) incarceration and the upcoming trial," said Charles Holmes, public information director for Sheriff William Morris.

Attorney Barred

Ray's attorney, former Birmingham, Ala., Mayor Arthur J. Hanes Sr., complained in London that he was not allowed to accompany his client on the flight to the United States.

Hanes said he didn't want Ray "grilled, cross-examined and interrogated" on the plane and he advised him to "keep his mouth shut and not answer any questions—not even talk about the weather."

Hanes said he would return to the United States later today. He said he expected Ray to be tried in "probably October or November."

JAMES EARL RAY

Ray was arrested at the London airport on June 8 while awaiting a plane to Brussels. His passport identified him as Ramon George Sneyd. Then he was charged with murder in the slaying of King and with escaping from a Missouri prison earlier.

Ray's handover to U.S. authorities came Thursday night after British Home Secretary James Callaghan signed an extradition order handed down July 2 by London's Chief Magistrate Frank Milton, removing the last legal obstacle to the fugitive's removal from Britain.

In a new aspect of the case, the London Daily Sketch reported today that fingerprints of Sneyd had been matched against that of a gunman who robbed a London bank six weeks ago of about 100 pounds ($240).

If it is provde that Sneyd (Ray) had robbed the bank it would support U.S. claims that Ray acted on his own and was not part of a conspiracy, since it would explain how Ray got enough money to live in London before his arrest. A Scotland Yard spokesman refused comment on the report.

BANGKOK (UPI) —Malaysia Monday rejected the Philippines claim to the Borneo state of Sabah and warned that Filipino persistence on the issue will endanger the future of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations. The territory has been disputed for years.

Teamsters, Robie Resume Fight

Pickets Greeted With Sign at Rondout

By Hugh Reynolds

The Teamsters Union and Robie Construction, which has projects at Rondout Gardens and Colonial Gardens, are once again at odds over labor problems. The teamsters have set up pickets, just as they did this winter, but Robie has responded with a form of picketing of its own, a sign outlining the position of the company.

The disagreement ostensibly reverts to the question of hiring a shop steward, which caused a brief strike at Rondout Gardens this winter.

At that time the teamsters charged that there was trucking activity on the Rondout Gardens project and that a teamster should be on the job. After a number of meetings Robie acquiesced and hired a teamster shop steward who also worked as a truck driver.

Robie, however, is apparently not going to give in as easily this time and has taken its case to the National Labor Relations Board, reportedly with charges of featherbedding and secondary boycotting.

Robert Marx, persident of Robie Construction, told The Freeman yesterday that the "unqualified heavy construction contract" which Marx interprets as requiring a shop steward on any and all heavy construction jobs whether he is needed or not. The contract would cover the five-county area of Rockland, Ulster, Dutchess, Orange and Sullivan

Would Set Precedent

Marx says any such contract would set a precedent whereby any and all projects would have to employ a teamster shop steward. The rate of pay for a shop steward is currently $6.50 an hour.

Anthony Alecca, president of Teamster Local 445 which is involved in the dispute with Robie, agrees that his union wants a contract, but his definition of that contract and the reasons why he wants it vary somewhat with Marx's statements.

Alecca emphatically denied any charges of featherbedding by his union and added that the opposite was true. He said his shop steward covers two projects, Rondout and Colonial Gardens and "does a good day's work." Alecca added that he and Robie had agreed to waive the prevailing rate for the shop steward ($6.50) and in fact, pay him $5.35. "That's hardly a case of featherbedding," Alecca said.

Alecca further added that his union had no intention of forcing any contractor to hire unnecessary help. "We will take each job on its merits," he said. "The job itself will determine whether a shop steward is needed."

Alecca said a recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling was what led to his union's demand for a signed contract with any and all contractors. The High Court, Alecca said, recently ruled that a contractor could not pay a worker's health, pension and retirement benefits unless the worker is a member of a bonafide union.

Alecca noted that Robie had no contract with his union to cover the shop steward working on the two Kingston projects but had been paying benefits to the man. "Even if Robie wanted to pay benefits, he couldn't under the new law," Alecca said. "That's why we want a contract."

Expects Swift Action

Marx says he expects swift action from the NLRB, which has a reputation for speed, and hopes to quickly resume work on the two projects being built by the Kingston Housing Authority.

Meanwhile, the Teamsters picket and Robie pickets the pickets. Robie's sign which is directed to the public says that Local 445 is "unfair" in demanding "featherbedding conditions" to create "do-nothing jobs" the cost of which will ultimately be borne by the public.

Robie then goes on to say that the company "will not give in to such outrageous demands" and seeks the support of the public, all contractors, all employes on the projects, all agencies of government and all interested persons.

In a final blast at the teamsters, Robie's sign says, "Ignore the teamster picket line and pressure tactics and denounce these actions."

Alecca, upon learning of Robies sign, said his union would have some counter-charges of their own in the immediate future.

Calls for Fighting Cease

ABA, Biafra (AP) — Lt. Col. Odumegwu Ojukwu, leader of secessionist Biafra in Nigeria's civil war, said Thursday his government has proposed two land corridors for the transport of food to the starving Biafrans.

But Ojukwu reiterated that the "quickest and most realistic" means of sending relief to his besieged territory is by air. Talking to foreign newsmen, he repeated his offer to set aside an airport or a daylight airlift under supervision of relief agencies.

The Nigerian government in Lagos contends that direct airlifts would allow the Biafrans to get arms disguised as food cargoes. Ojukwu estimated that 1.75 million persons are destitute in Biafra but declared that his rebel state is not finished militarily or otherwise.

Ojukwu said the road corridor proposed by Lagos was blocked by fallen bridges and choked channels, and that clearing them would give federal forces a clear path to what is left of Biafran territory.

He also repeated charges that food which found its way to Biafra through Nigeria was poisoned.

Ojukwu called again for "immediate cessation of fighting on land, sea and air" and said he was prepared to discuss with Nigeria "the terms rather than the conditions" for a cease-fire.

The Biafrans have been seeking an "unconditional" cease-fire. The only public contact between both parties—at Kampala, Uganda, last May—collapsed over the cease-fire issue. Some observers saw in Ojukwu's phase "terms rather than conditions" a hint of a possible easing of his stand. But Biafran sources said this did not seem to be the case.

Hide-and-Seek in Kingston Backyards

By WALTER S. CLARK

Authorities today revealed details of a hide-and-seek episode through backyards and wooded areas in uptown Kingston in which a 19-year-old Marine deserter played a leading role until his capture by city police climaxing a massive manhunt.

Douglas R. Perry, who formerly resided at the Huntington Hotel, was back in custody this morning, confined in a county jail cell where he awaited the arrival of military police. He had earlier escaped from custody.

While state troopers, deputy sheriffs and city police set up roadblocks to search passing vehicles and patroled the streets, Perry was in a hideout for about nine hours under the porch of a residence at Washington Avenue and Pearl Street. From that vantage point he watched the movements of authorities as they passed on foot and in prowl cars.

Today, the youth was arraigned in city court on a charge of escaping from custody. Then he was taken back to the county jail under close guard of authorities.

After his apprehension at 10:15 p. m. Thursday, Perry's greatest concern involved his wallet containing about $20. He had dug a hole in the dirt under the porch at Washington and Pearl, and buried the money for safe-keeping until he could return to pick it up.

The extensive manhunt yesterday was the second in the area this week. Gary Sickler, 27-year-old suspected slayer of a 20-year-old Wappingers Falls woman, escaped from custody in Poughkeepsie and was the object of a massive manhunt until he was apprehended in a wooded area near Chelsea Wednesday night.

Authorities said that notice had been received from the Marine Corps that Perry was wanted as a deserter. Search conducted by troopers and deputies from the office of Sheriff William B. Martin, and yesterday afternoon the BCI and a deputy took the long brown-haired youth into custody on a Town of Saugerties highway near the home of a relative.

Perry was questioned and subsequently handcuffed and put in a police car. The arresting officers took the youth to the county courthouse on Wall Street, and as they drove into the parking lot Perry leaped from the vehicle still in motion and fled "like a deer" on foot.

The officers, joined by other deputy sheriffs in the immediate area gave chase. They pursued the youth across Green Street through backyards, over a fence and stone wall to Washington Avenue and near the Tannery Brook. Perry's pace was too much for his pursuers, who were armed, but didn't fire a shot, presumably because Perry had not committed any crime.

During the chase the handcuffed youth toppled down an embankment. He appeared injured but he leaped to his feet and continued his flight. Minutes later authorities lost sight of him.

Meanwhile, the sheriff's office notified state police at Kingston, and a 13-state alarm was sent over the teletype wires.

Scores of troopers from area stations, details of deputy sheriffs and city police were alerted and outside authorities converged on the city. Roadblocks were quickly set up on all roads leading from Kingston.

Officers at the roadblocks stopped all vehicles leaving the city and closely checked the occupants. Long lines of cars were seen in several places as the search for Perry went on.

Although the marine still had the cuffs on his wrists, no one reported having seen the escapee after authorities lost him in the vicinity of Washington and Lafayette Avenues.

The search continued for some nine hours as the mercury clung close to 90 degrees.

Shortly after 10 p. m. Sheriff's Sergeant Warren Swarthout received a telephone call. A resident excitedly reported he saw Perry hurrying along South Washington Avenue. The sergeant realized that city police were in that immediate vicinity and he called headquarters.

Radio calls alerted uniformed officers and detectives on duty near the spot where the youth was seen. Moments later they came upon Perry and took him in custody. Perry offered no resistance. He was taken to police headquarters and booked for escaping from custody.

Later he was lead to the jail where he was locked in a cell. After he disclosed that he had buried his wallet and money with personal papers in a hole under the porch of the Washington Avenue house, authorities got the wallet.

Perry showed some signs of relief when he knew his money was safe, and he was safe in confinement in the jail cell.

Summit Question: Bomb Halt Now?

By MERRIMAN SMITH

HONOLULU (UPI) — President Johnson, repledging America's commitment to help South Vietnam defeat aggression, today searched with Nguyen Van Thieu for a mutually acceptable way to do it.

The South Vietnamese president was reported to be worried Johnson would be more willing than he to compromise with North Vietnam. Thieu thinks Washington is overeager in their search for a settlement of the war, Saigon sources said.

Johnson was meeting privately with Thieu in the first of two days of high level talks. Upon the president's arrival Thursday he assured Thieu America's "pledge to help your people defeat aggression stands firm against all obstacles and against any deception."

"I have every reason to look to the future with confidence," Thieu replied, but sources in Saigon indicated South Vietnam's leader was not so confident.

Vows No Sellout

He left for the Honolulu summit by vowing he would "never surrender to the Communists" or "sell out" his nation in his talks with Johnson. He appeared worried Johnson will stray from the Saigon government's belief that the only way to handle the Communists is to trounce them in battle, sources said.

As the two leaders and their senior advisers began their summit conference in military headquarters overlooking the Pacific, they were beset by rumors from all sides of the world. There were rumors peace was near; that the Vietnam War was about to burn again with brightness unmatched since the Communists' winter Tet offensive; that all bombing was to be halted.

The first meeting was for 10 a.m., HST (4 p.m., EDT) at Camp Smith, site of the U.S. Pacific command headquarters, to be followed by a working luncheon. Johnson entertains them tonight at a dinner at the Koko Head estate of the late Henry J. Kaiser, where the American President established his headquarters. Thieu and his advisers were in the Royal Hawaiian Hotel on Waikiki Beach.

Airstrip Confab

Even as Thieu's chartered jet transport leveled off for a landing at Hickam Field late Thursday afternoon, Secretary of Defense Clark Clifford felt it necessary to hold an airstrip news conference to slow speculation from Saigon where Clifford and Thieu talked earlier in the week.

As a result of Clifford's remarks to reporters, it became clear that two prime items before Johnson and Thieu involved a question of whether to halt all U.S. bombing of North Vietnam targets in an effort to help the Paris negotiations; and whether the South Vietnamese would be willing to talk face-to-face with representatives of the National Liberation Front, political arm of the Viet Cong.

Denies Agreement

There was one published report Clifford in Saigon had persuaded Thieu to agree to these two propositions. Clifford denied it vehemently, shouting over the roar of jets on Thieu's plane as it pulled to a stop before Johnson and a party of U.S. dignitaries.

"The question of the bombing halt never came up in conversation with any of the Vietnamese," Clifford said. "We particularly omitted referring to that (in order) to leave that up to Thieu and President Johnson. Also, no question came up about negotiations with the enemy on the part of the South Vietnamese for the same reason. We wanted to leave that up to President Johnson and Thieu. The only time I saw Thieu was in a meeting where there were 14 people and we never discussed this subject at all."

Johnson, flying from his Texas ranch on a nonstop flight of nearly eight hours, reached Honolulu Thursday about three hours ahead of Thieu. The President took a helicopter from Hickam Field to the Kaiser estate where he spent about two hours hearing first hand reports on the situation in Saigon from Clifford; Ambassador Ellsworth D. Bunker and Gen. Earle G. Wheeler, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Richard Hemls, director of the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) also were at the meeting.

Czechs Debating Course; Soviets Hint Intervention

PRAGUE (UPI)—Czech Communist leader Alexander Dubcek today battled party Stalinists over his defiance of the Kremlin and his program of democratic reform. In Moscow the Soviets hinted at an Hungarian type intervention in Czechoslovakia.

Dubcek, his friends and foes in the divided party central committee, debated the fate of his reform policy in the baroque splendor of Hradcany Castle's 300-year-old Spanish hall. The first party secretary opened the showdown meeting with a report on Eastern Europe's greatest crisis since Red army tanks crushed Hungarian freedom fighters 12 years ago.

In Moscow, the Soviets for the first time made charges of American aggression plans for Czechoslovakia and of anti-Communist rebel plots in its onetime satellite. The charges came in the party newspaper Pravda. It publishd an editorial pledging "all necessary help" from the Soviets in maintaining Red rule in Czechoslovakia.

In the Soviet capital, the Pravda reports gave a clear sign the Russians, although hoping to avoid it, are clearly ready for intervention to preserve what they consider Communist security and ideology.

In London, UPI diplomatic correspondent K. C Thaler quoted high diplomatic sources as saying the Soviets are trying to arrange a weekend meeting of Dubcek and Leonid I. Brezhnev, the Soviet party first scretary. The sources said the meeting may take place near the Cezch-Soviet frontier. They said Brezhnev hopes to pressure Dubcek into making concessions under the threats of Russian armed intervention.

In Moscow, authoritative Communist sources said Brezhnev will fly to Cechoslovakia for the meeting in a few days. They said the Russian leader, who had demanded the meting be on Soviet soil, finally surrendered to Dubcek's pleas he could not leave Czechoslovakia during his party crisis. In Prague, a Slovak Communist leader said Thursday night such a meeting would take place soon in Czechoslovakia.

In Paris, French Communist party First Secretary Waldeck Rochet announced his hopes for Czech-Soviet mediation in a summit meeting of Europe's Communist leaders. Then he boarded a plane for Prague to press his peacemaking mission.

But for the moment Dubcek's crisis lay in Spanish hall.

Party sources said 40 of the 110 central committee members favor Dubcek. Another 40 want the return of Stalinist Antonin Novotny, ousted as first secretary by Dubcek in January.

The battle for democracy will depend on 30 members thus far uncommitted in the struggle that is shaking Eastern Europe in the greatest Communist crisis since the abortive Hungarian uprsing in 1956, the sources said.

Dubcek made a nationwide broadcast Thursday night appealing for the support of all Czechs in his stand against the Kremlin. He vowed that the forces of Communist reform will not make "the slightest retreat from the path we took in January."

The debate inside the spired hall on a hill overlooking the Vltava River—called the Moldau in the days when Prague waltzed with Mozart under Germanic rule—took place behind closed doors. For the moment it overshadowed the other forces and events triggered by the Czech withdrawal from the Kremlin line.

In Moscow, UPI correspondent Henry Shapiro reported that the most authoritative sources are saying the Russians want to avoid at all costs the propaganda disaster of an Hungarian type intervention.

GI's Hit Cong Camp In Surprise Attack

SAIGON (UPI)—American armor and infantrymen overran a Communist base camp near Cambodia Thursday, killed 37 North Vietnamese soldiers and sent scores of others fleeing in such haste they left behind food, weapons and ammunition, U. S. headquarters said today.

The battle in the rolling rubber plantation country 72 miles north of Saigon cost the Americans 4 killed and 23 wounded in a full day of off-and-on fighting, the announcement said.

Spokesmen said the U.S. soldiers, tanks and armored personnel carriers apparently surprised about 150 members of the North Vietnamese army 237th regiment in a base camp used for regrouping and retraining.

Uncover Weapons

Allied soldiers sweeping Saigon's outskirts in attempts to head off another offensive into the capital found four Communist weapons caches.

U.S. intelligence sources said they had "low-level information" of Viet Cong plans to launch terrorist or rocket strikes on the city this weekend to coincide with the 14th anniversary of the signing of the 1954 Geneva accords.

Only Thursday, Viet Cong artillerymen hit the giant oil storage complex at Nha Be, six miles southeast of Saigon, with 15 rocket, mortar and recoilless rifle rounds, headquarters said.

U.S. B52 Stratofortresses staged seven thunderous raids on all sides of the capital Thursday and early today to try to head off a gathering of Viet Cong soldiers, spokesmen said. An eighth B52 strike was targeted for the Central Highlands.

American pilots flew 112 missions into North Vietnam Thursday against anti-aircraft fire described as moderate to heavy, the command said. No Communist MIG interceptors or surface-to-air (SAM) missiles were sighted.

Civilians Killed

South Vietnamese police reported 10 new Viet Cong acts of terror in which 10 civilians were killed and 24 others kidnaped, 13 of them from one village in northern Quang Ngai province.

Far south of Saigon, near the Cambodian border, 900 South Vietnamese soldiers were taken off Nui Co To (superstition) mountain and replaced with U.S. Special Forces troops and their mercenary sidekicks.

Allied commanders hoped the "Green Berets" and their sidekicks could do what the government troops wouldn't—venture down the slopes of Nui Co To and invade the labyrinth of caves reportedly loaded with Communist men and supplies preparing for a trip to Saigon.

The South Vietnamese, most of them lowlanders, had refused to budget off the top of the 2,000-foot peak, 12 miles from Cambodia, because of their fear of "evil spirits" lurking on mountains. They were helicoptered to the top of the mountain last Friday.

In yet another development involving Cambodia, the Cambodian government said today it had captured a U.S. Navy boat carrying a crew of 11 Americans and one South Vietnamese who sailed into Cambodia on the Mekong River.

Cambodian Prince Norodom Sihanouk said the crew would be returned for the price of one tractor or bulldozer for each man. There was no immediate U.S. or South Vietnamese statement.

Closer to Saigon, Communist artillerymen Thursday night fired 15 rounds of mortar, rocket and recoilless rifle fire into an oil and gas tank farm several miles southeast of the capital, spokesmen said.

Damage was said to be light.

Thar's Oil in Them Hills

Vast Oil Reserve Tapped in Alaska

By THAD POULSON

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Gov. Walter J. Hickel sees the discovery of oil in Alaska's Arctic region as a key unlocking the state's vast potential and a stabilizer of its economy.

"It's tremendous," the governor kept saying Thursday after hearing that reserves estimated by oil experts at 5 to 10 billion barrels had been found in the Prudhoe Bay area along Alaska's Arctic coast.

The Arctic Slope is an expanse of endless tundra inhabited only by caribou, wolves and an occasional roving band of Eskimo hunters.

The area, some 390 miles north of Fairbanks, is a region long eyed with anticipation by petroleum geologists.

The U.S. Navy's Petroleum Reserve No. 4 lies to the west of the Atlantic Richfield-Humble discovery, in an area where the temperature merely toys with the freezing point—even during the long summer days when the Arctic sun never gets below the horizon.

Degolyer and MacNaughton, a Dallas oil consulting firm, said the new discovery has the potential of developing into one of the world's largest fields.

Located on a 90,000-acre block of federally leased land, the new discovery apparently confirms what petroleum geologists have long thought, that the Arctic Slope is a vast storehouse of oil and gas.

Gov. Hickel feels the oil income from the huge federal holdings on the north slope could be used to meet native demands for $500 million to drop claims blocking the state's efforts to select the 103 million acres promised by the statehood act.

He also sees it as possibly leading to the elimination of state income taxes, which brought in $31 million in the last fiscal year.

Alaska, which ranks 10th among the 32 oil producing states, received direct income from oil and gas production taxes, lease bonuses, royalties and rentals of over $40 million for the fiscal year ending June 30. The state's general fund budget for the year was $104 million.

The governor listed as his first priority the extension of the federally owned Alaska railroad from its northern terminus at Fairbanks the remaining 400 miles to the north coast.

Besides relieving the oil industry of the immediate need of building a $400 million pipeline to get the oil to ice-free tide-water, the railroad, he said, would provide a "two-way haul" to open up thousands of square miles of unexplored wilderness.

"We haven't even begun to tap the mineral potential up there," Hickel said.

Committee Testimony

Fortas Gives Critics the Facts

WASHINGTON (AP) — Abe Fortas has told Senate critics the Constitution allows him to lecture and write about issues that come before the Supreme Court, but forbids him to answer questions from members of Congress about the same matters.

Fortas repeated this theme over and over Thursday before the Senate Judiciary Committee as he testified for the third day on his qualifications to succeed Earl Warren as chief justice of the United States.

Roughest Meeting

It was by far the roughest meeting yet for Fortas. But prospects were that today's session would be the last for him, opening the way for committee questioning of Homer Thornberry, named by Johnson to fill the vacancy created by Fortas' elevation from justice to chief justice.

Fortas did tell the committee he was opposed to Communists holding defense jobs or teaching school and that he approved of Congress' right to investigate subversion.

And, he said, "there is under our system of government no place for lawlessness or violence."

But when pressed by Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., to relate these beliefs to recent Supreme Court decisions in which he took part, Fortas drew the line.

"My constitutional responsibility requires me, however unpleasant it may be, to decline to answer questions of the kind you have propounded," Fortas said.

"I regret it. I repeat, I regret it deeply," he added.

Fortas said "judges . . . may not be held to answer before any other branch of the government for their views." He called this a principle "that is fundamental to our tripartite division of government."

Thurmond said "it might be hard to explain to the public" how Fortas could make lectures and otherwise expound on his views and then say he could not answer questions "when you come before the Judiciary Committee for a promotion to be chief justice of the United States."

"You have expressed your views to the President when he has called you down there, and over the telephone, haven't you?" Thurmond asked.

"No, sir," Fortas replied. "Never."

Thurmond pressed: "And he got the benefit of your views on matters, did he not?"

Fortas: "Never."

Thurmond: "Why shouldn't a senator have the benefit of your views?"

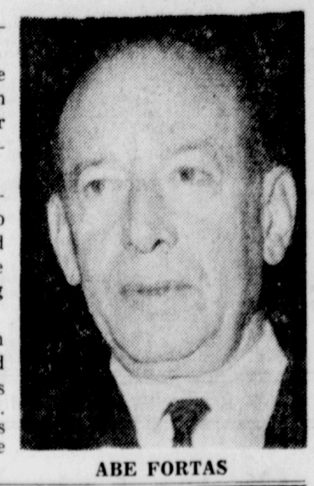

Never Been Asked

Fortas: "I have never, never been asked by the President nor have I expressed my views on any pending or decided case—never, senator, never."

Meanwhile, a speech on the Senate floor underscored again the fight that lies ahead after committee hearings on the Fortas Thornberry nominations.

Sen. Howard H. Baker Jr., R-Tenn., said he still planned to vote against the two and called the nominations "an extreme and flagrant example of making the court a political football."

Baker is one of 18 Republican senators who have declared their intention to oppose Fortas and Thornberry down the line. Several Southern Democrats also have said they would vote against the two.

LBJ's Foreign Aid Bill Gets Slashed

By DANIEL RAPOPORT

Washington (UPI)—President Johnson thought he was mollifying House foreign aid critics when he made the 1968 request the lowest in history, but he was wrong by $1 billion.

When the House got through with the authorization bill Thursday, only $1.9 billion was left of the $2.9 billion Johnson sought.

If that figure holds up in Senate action, it would be the lowest authorization bill in the 20 years of the foreign aid program.

But funding the program is yet to come, and the appropriations process may cut into foreign aid spending plans even further.

Backers of the administration nevertheless are celebrating—in their own fashion. It was grin and bear it or no program at all.

They took some consolation from the final House vote on the authorization Thursday, passage by the substantial margin of 233 to 184. Last year the margin was eight votes.

The 10-hour session saw a $600 million cut of the Foreign Affairs Committee endorsed by the House, and a further cut of $307 million added for good measure.

The previous lowest authorization was $2.6 billion approved last year, followed by a record low appropriation of $2.3 billion.

The appropriations subcommittee, headed by arch aid foe Rep. Otto Passman, D-La., goes to work on the bill next week. The panel considers the $1.9 billion authorization an absolute ceiling.

Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., a supporter of the overseas assistance program, said today that if the administration doesn't get busy and make an all-out effort to stave off further disaster, the subcommittee and parent Appropriations Committee will send to the floor a bill in the neighborhood of $1.6 billion.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee was meeting on the request today in closed session. No final vote was expected.

Police in Three Cities Guard Against Violence

By United Press International

Police were on the alert in Akron, Ohio, San Francisco and Stockton, Calif., through the night to guard against new outbreaks of violence that erupted in the three cities on preceding nights.

In Glasgow, Ky., a short distance from Mammoth Cave National Park, a state trooper stood watch at the home of Gov. Louie B. Nunn while other troopers searched for the man who tossed a bomb onto the governor's lawn.

Occasional thunderstorms helped squelch violent activity in Akron where a tight dusk-to-dawn curfew was maintained on the industrial city of 290,000 residents, 20 per cent Negro.

Shortly after the curfew was put into effect Thursday night, 70 persons were arrested. Many had to be flushed from an Afro-American Liberation Society storefront office and a barber shop next door.

Police tossed in tear gas bombs to rout about 30 persons from the office and another 30 from the barber shop. Police clubbed anyone disobeying their orders.

With relative calm restored, National Guard troops were withdrawn at midnight to a nearby stadium.

Several hundred hippies in San Francisco's Haight-Ashbury district gathered in the streets Thursday night, and threw bottles and rocks and set at least two bonfires. Police made their nightly sweep of the streets to secure the district.

Only a handful of hippies was arrested Thursday night, compared with the 63 arrested the two previous nights in the nation's 12th largest city.

About 50 miles inland, police officials reported quiet at the housing development in southeast Stockton where violence had been reported the two previous nights.

Governor Nunn flew to Washington Thursday from Frankfort, Ky., where he had been when the dynamite bomb was tossed onto the front yard of his Glasgow home. The bomb blasted a small hole in the yard about 20 feet from the house and broke a window.

Bombs Are Exploded At Mexican Bureaus

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Bombs were exploded today at two Mexican tourist bureaus, the offices of two foreign airlines and an office of the Shell Oil Co. A sticker declaring "Unite Cuban Power" in Spanish was attached to each of the bombed buildings.

The terrorist bombings appeared to be the latest in a series of bombings across the nation at consulates or tourist offices of nations that trade with Communist Cuba. Since April, six such bombs have been detonated in New York. There have been other bombings or attempts in Chicago, Miami and Newark, N.J.

No injuries were reported in the bombs exploded here today.

The blasts all of which caused extensive damage, ripped the Mexican National Tourist Bureau in Beverly Hills, and, in Los Angeles, the offices of the Mexican Travel Agency, ticket offices for Air France and Japan Air Lines and the Shell Oil office building.

Police said the bombs apparently were dropped through the mail slots of the front doors in each case.

The Mexican Tourist Bureau blast was believed caused by a plastic explosive. All of the bombs were fused.

Negroes to Get Apartments In City Projects

NEW YORK (AP) — The Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. has agreed to make more apartments available to Negroes and Puerto Ricans in three large housing projects it owns.

The move was announced Thursday following discussions with the City Commission on Human Rights which had charged the company with "deliberate, intentional and systematic" exclusion of such persons.

Metropolitan, one of the city's biggest landlords, said it would stop giving preferential treatment to relatives of tenants in order to find room for minority group applicants.

The commission's complaints centered on the Stuyvesant Town, Peter Cooper Village and Parkchester developments, which have a total of more than 23,500 apartments. Metropolitan also owns a predominantly Negro project in Harlem.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, JULY 19, 1968

Postal Cuts Unbearable

Cutbacks in postal services due to the general personnel-cutting provision attached to the recently enacted President's tax-increase bill will be felt in Ulster County beginning Saturday, July 27, when all first and second class offices will remain open but for two hours on Saturdays.

Effective immediately, the extension of all city and RFD routes will be halted. This means all new dwellings both in and out of the city will not be eligible for mail deliveries.

There also is the likelihood that many third and fourth-class post offices in the county will be closed permanently. Countrywide, 347 of these small post offices will be closed permanently by the end of August and thereafter an additional 100 third-class and 150 fourth-class every month.

Post office service has deteriorated so much in recent years that these latest cuts seem unbearable.

The House Ways and Means Committee thought Postmaster General W. Marvin Watson was bluffing when he told them he would have to make these cutbacks because he must economize unless the Post Office Department is exempted from the reduction in force necessary to meet the budget cuts, mandated by the President.

We are all for the economy measure that requires a six billion dollar budget cut in spending as the price of passing the President's 10 per cent tax surcharge. We do not think the post office or any other department is doing its part by such tactics. This is a time to show how well the departments and agencies can serve with lower budgets, not to soak the public in retaliation.

Recently a commission appointed by the President recommended that the department be converted into a non-profit government corporation operated by professional management and with no ties to the political patronage system. If we ever have an efficient, economical postal department, it will be under the supervision of trained and experienced business executives.

Wasted Congress Session

Congress is in a turmoil over President Johnson's hint that he might have to call members back to complete important legislative work after the national party conventions.

"I dread the idea of a wasted session," one important Democrat said anonymously when the word was passed around Capitol Hill. He spoke for members of Congress of both parties. Post-convention sessions are anathema to them all.

To a typical Congressman, the election campaign must begin as soon as the national conventions name their candidates for President and Vice President and pass the party platforms that will give him his ideas for fighting for his seat. With all seats in the House and a third of those in the Senate at stake, the majority of members will be occupied with election; their minds will be far from the legislative forum.

That is one reason why a post-convention session is wasted effort and no one knows it better than the President who fought such recalls when he was the Democratic leader of the Senate.

Usually, post-convention sessions produce little more than political debate. Members frustrated that they cannot be at home on the hustings get as much political lineage as they can on the floor, hoping that it will trickle back to their states and make up for their personal absence.

All that the President can hope to accomplish by recalling the Congress after the conventions is to put pressure on them to act on his "must" legislation. But he may defeat his own purpose by souring them on his program.

The best that can be hoped for now is that in the remaining days before the first convention opens August 3, Congress will act on the "must" measures, appropriations especially. Then the President would have to be satisfied and let them go.

For the first time, the nation's work force has passed 80 million—82.2 million to be exact. The boost was the result of the early summer flood of youthful job seekers. It left 4.9 million unemployed and 77.3 million employed, an all-time record.

Britons will not change their clocks back in October when daylight saving time would have ended for the winter. They begin British Standard time, an experiment for three years, six hours head of American Eastern Standard time. They will equate with Central European time.

Re-enlistments in the armed forces last year were lower than the previous year, probably because the war had become more ferocious. In all cases Negroes were re-enlisting at a much higher level than whites. Negroes have found greater acceptance and standing in the armed forces than outside.

Penalty of Disagreement

David Lawrence Says

Definite Peace Formula Must Await Election

WASHINGTON — The belief is growing here that the Vienam war will not be ended by the Paris negotiations or even a cease-fire obtained until after the presidential election in the United States in November.

The North Vietnamese government seems convinced that the anti-war movement inside the United States, as evidenced by the protest demonstrators and the large number of supporters of Senator McCarthy, adds up to a readiness on the part of the American people to accept almost any formula that will stop the fighting. Certainly, looking at it from the point of view of the Hanoi government, there is no advantage in making concessions now if less than four months hence there might possibly be a willingness in America to agree to a "peace at any price" arrangement.

Much talk is heard about a large-scale military offensive by the North Vietnamese. This has been postponed from time to time, but it looks as if the Communist game will be to launch such an attack before the November election in this country so as to exert an even greater pressure for a makeshift peace.

The presidential candidates in the current political campaign have not clearly stated their respective positions on a Vietnam war settlement. All favor the parleys, and various hypothetical provisions of a possible agreement have been mentioned. But the real problem has not been faced. It is that the United States and its allies cannot afford to put their faith in paper promises. The North Vietnamese are not willing to accept an American pledge to withdraw its military forces under certain conditions—the withdrawal is demanded first.

Oddly enough, while many public figures, including some military men, have argued that victory on the battlefield is impracticable for South Vietnam and its allies, the North Vietnamese think that, after the big-unit efforts are stopped, guerrilla warfare can achieve its objectives.

Meanwhile, there are indications that officials of the Saigon government are a bit apprehensive that the United States may make the kind of concessions that can lead to the overrunning of South Vietnam by the Communists. This uneasiness, of course, results from the protest movement inside the United States, including the speeches by various political personalities who are contending that the Vietnam war is "none of America's business."

So until the November election takes place, a definitive formula to bring peace appears to be more and more improbable. There will be carefully phrased statements in the platforms adopted by both party conventions urging an "honorable peace." Such declarations, however, are likely to be ambiguous and will not give a clear-cut outline of what American policy will be after the inauguration of a new president in January.

It may be expected that the president-elect will appoint a commission to re-examine the entire Vietnam problem and will ask for bipartisan consultations before coming out with definite proposals for peace. This could be accompanied by coincident efforts through Great Britain and other countries in the hope that the Soviet Union can be persuaded to use its influence to bring about a cease-fire.

It is tragic that the principal powers of the world are divided, and that there is no sign of an agreement similar to that which was made in 1954 in Geneva. Yet the Moscow government really has the key to peace. The nature of its alliance with the North Vietnamese has never been fully exposed. There is nevertheless talk of a "detente" between the United States and the Soviet Union. Major agreements on such subjects as nuclear weapons are supposedly being considered seriously at present in the Kremlin. A dangerous situation in Southeast Asia, however, is allowed to continue with the openly acknowledged help and support of the Soviet government.

Once the American elections are over, the new president of the United States will first have to clear up the vagaries in Soviet-American relations and make a definite effort to test whether "mutual trust" has become a realistic fact in the nuclear age.

Soviet and U.S. in Accord On Urging Mideast Peace

By LEON DENNEN
(NEA Foreign News Analyst)

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (NEA) — For the first time since the end of the war in June, 1967, the United States and Russia are jointly urging Israel and the Arab nations to agree to direct or indirect peace talks on the Middle East.

East European diplomats see this as another sign that, despite the war in Vietnam, the Soviet leaders are moving slowly toward an accommodation with the United States in some areas of conflict. It accounts, they believe, for the failure of President Nasser's recent mission to Moscow.

Egypt's president went to Russia with a request and a veiled threat. He sought more Soviet arms and the Kremlin's aid for prompt action to bring about Israel's withdrawal from conquered Arab territory. He intimated that he would seek closer relations with the United States should Moscow deny his request.

The Russians, it seems, were not impressed by Nasser's diplomatic blackmail since they are themselves currently engaged in secret bargaining with Washington about peace in the Middle East.

Leonid Brezhnev, chief of Russia's Communist party, went through the usual ritual of castigating "American - Zionist imperialism." However, according to the East European diplomats, he warned Nasser to seek a diplomatic solution.

Peace between the Arabs and Israel is still only a dim hope. But there is considerable evidence that Russia, like the United States, is eager to settle the conflict without a renewal of hostilities.

Even before Nasser reached Moscow, Pravda, the Communist party's paper warned in an editorial that new military ventures in the Middle East would not help an already delicate situation.

An authoritative radio commentary, Life Abroad, even blamed Red China's "provocateurs," working hand-in-hand with "reactionary Arab extremists," for fomenting new strife.

Echoing Pravda, the commentary finally conceded Israel's right to exist. As though the Kremlin never urged the destruction of the "Zionist state," Life Abroad even claimed that "former Arab threats to eliminate Israel" originated mainly from "irresponsible Arab figures" who serve as Red China's agents in the Middle East.

In the view of experts on Russia, renewed warfare between Israel and the Arabs is the last thing the Russians want, for the present at least.

They have their hands full with Red China and face an increasing anti - Russian upsurge in Czechoslovakia and elsewhere in East Europe. They are also eager to reopen the Suez Canal since Soviet shipments, especially to North Vietnam and India, have become more costly because of the need to sail around Arfica.

Moreover, the closing of the canal indefinitely means that the day for repayment of Egypt's vast debt to Moscow has once again had to be postponed to a distant future.

Altogether the conculsion might be that while the Russians strengthened their overall political position in the Middle East, since the Arab-Israel war, this achievement was bought at an ominously high cost in purely economic terms.

For the present, then, Russia seems to be anxious for a breathing spell in the Middle East. What a fair peace settlement should involve will be argued for many months. As in the case of Vietnam, the diplomatic bargaining will be long and difficult.

But should peace finally come to the Middle East it will be a clear victory for President Johnson's patient diplomacy and his persistent efforts to ease the points of conflict between the United States and Russia.

President Johnson Must Fill Vitally Important FCC Vacancy

WASHINGTON — Most important appointment President Johnson has to make — second only to his current Supreme Court appointments — is to fill the present vacancy on the Federal Communications Commission. The right man on this commission could help to revitalize the most hidebound regulatory agency in Washington and start reversing programs of TV violence.

Lyndon Johnson is the first President in American history to acquire his family fortune through radio and television, and his past appointments to the FCC — with one exception — have not been brilliant. He was responsible for elevating one of the most reactionary members, Hosel Hyde, to be FCC chairman. It was chairman Hyde who led the move inside the commission to hand down the scandalously anti - Negro decision in the case of the Lamar Insurance Company's TV station in Jackson, Miss., after that station had thumbed its nose at the rights of Mississippi Negroes.

Incidentally, it was Justice Abe Fortas's former law partner, Paul Porter, a former FCC chairman, who skillfully maneuvered this victory for anti - Negro television policy in Jackson.

All this is why Johnson's upcoming FCC appointment will be watched so carefully by the network moguls, if not by the unsuspecting public.

For it now develops that the television networks have been kidding the public about eliminating violence from the home screen.

It is true that the networks are making a play of editing violence out of such comparatively inoffensive shows as "Get Smart" and "The Flying Nun."

A group of concerned ad men, calling themselves Advertising Men for De-escalation of Violence on Television, have called this "eyewash."

"Who thinks of those shows as violent?" demanded AMDVT's founder, Bert Randolph Sugar. "They're spoofs. This isn't what we mean."

Violence Is Good for You

Much more in need of editing are the shows that the National Association for Better Broadcasting has condemned, such as "Rat Patrol," "The Saint," "The Avengers" and "Guns of Will Sonnett." Apparently they will remain as rootin', tootin', shootin' as ever.

Meanwhile, network officials are lining up hired experts who will try to presuade the public that the daily gunplay on the home screen is mere harmless make-believe. Their campaign will be conducted along the same lines as the cigarette industry that smoking is good for you. In this case the theme will be that violence is good for you.

There is, of course, overwhelming evidence to the contrary. Responsible sociologists have warned that TV not only has stimulated violence in this country but has made people callous toward crime in the streets.

TV violence, they say, has caused a psychological conditioning effect, which has permitted onlookers to stand by while people have been attacked and even killed. The witnesses feel as unable to participate as they feel in front of their TV seats.

Dr. Harry Skornia of the University of Illinois, an authority in this field, writes:

"The principal charaters in Westerns, crime and private-eye series, and other popular TV programs would seem to rate fairly high in teaching effectiveness. There is considerable evidence of danger that what these individuals demonstrate will be learned . . .

"Terrible emotional effects may be noticed in certain people from given programs, just as dangerous physical effects are noted on certain people allergic to certain drugs."

The effectiveness of television in teaching violence has been attested by the armed forces which, after more than 100 studies, has adopted TV as a favorite media for instructing troops in physical assault, weapons handling and the techniques of violence.

Public Is Not Helpless

The question asked us by many readers is how can they help reduce this daily explosion of TV violence that is beamed into their living rooms? Here are some answers:

1. The Better Broadcasting people, who have been assessing TV violence for 17 years, are conducting an exhaustive survey to determine whether TV stations have lowered the violence quotient at all since Sen. Robert Kennedy's assassination. But they need funds to conduct this survey. You can help. Their address is 373 North Western Avenue, Los Angeles, Calif. 90004.

2. The AMDVT is also urging advertisers to stop sponsoring TV shows which glorify violence. Parents can help by refusing to buy the products of companies that sponsor violence.

For children, the worst hours on television are Saturday mornings, which are filled with animated violence. The Better Broadcasting people state flatly: "As far as children are concerned, 1968 television is the worst in the history of TV. The 1968 season illustrates an attitude of gross negligence toward child welfare by the majority of TV broadcasters. This criticism includes the heads of three networks."

Not only the cartoons but the commercials are described as "disturbing."

Among the sponsors taking a firm stand against TV violence is George Conklin, president of M&M Mars, Inc., who has pledged that his company will sponsor no more shows of this kind. He admitted that he had been watching the audience ratings not the program content.

After our columns appeared, he asked his 14-year-old son, Blair: "How are those Saturday morning shows?"

"Horrible," replied Blair. That ended the M&M sponsorship.

Kellogg's breakfast foods have also turned to more wholesome entertainment for children. Beginning with the new season, Kellogg on Saturday mornings will sponsor a variety show, strictly nonviolent, to be called "The Barbara Bunch Adventure Hour."

But most of the time, the TV scren will be monopolized by the same old kill-for-thrill programs.

Congress Not Yet Heeding Warnings on Import Curbs

By BRUCE BIOSSAT

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Pressures on Congress to adjourn before the two conventions in August may stall at least for a while the little-heralded protectionist drive for import quotas on steel, textiles, oil, meat and other products.

There very likely will not be action this session, in fact, on extension of the Trade Expansion Act, the liberalizing measure adopted originally in the Kennedy administration.

At most, a watered - down version of the administration's extension bill might emerge from the House Ways and Means Committee and gain full House passage.

In such an event, however, the expectation is that the Senate, which already approved some quota bills, would so encumber the trade proposal with quota - type amendments that it would be totally unpalatable to Key House leadership. It would die at this point.

Quota bills are not going to make it on their own out of the Ways and Means group this year.

But Democratic leaders are privately warning that if and when they ever do get to the floor, the House members as well as the Senat's will support quotas overwhelmingly.

The argument is that this would happen now if such a test could be had. It would be even more likely if those forecasters are correct who foresee 1968 Republican congressional gains at the polls and thus probably a still more conservative Congress in 1969.

If de facto majorities do indeed already exist in both houses for a whole range of import quotas, it has to be put down as one of the most remarkable yet least appreciated phenomena of this confusing era.

Since Franklin D. Roosevelt's time, the country has been on a long course toward the liberalizing of its trade with other nations. That trade has expanded enormously and, on the export side, is a mainstay market for such U.S. agricultural products as wheat, soybeans, corn, and cotton, not to mention industrial items like automobiles, airplanes, electrical equipment, machinery, chemicals.

Since the new protectionist campaign became known at all, this country's most responsible business journals — presumably alert to the real needs of the U.S. economy — have spoken out strongly against quotas and for the continuance of liberal trade policies.

If quotas should gain the day, the Wall Street Journal foresees not only a "widespread distortion of markets but a debilitation of a good deal of the U.S. economy."

These business paper warnings add to a chorus coming from spokesman for agriculture, for much of industry, public service groups and others.

That so many U.S. lawmakers are deaf to these cautions, that they seem prepared almost casually to reverse the 30 - year bent of U.S. trade policy under the cover of noisy national concern over war and racial strife, is perhaps a sign of the times.

Operating as it is without effective national leadership, U.S. society is more easily broken into fragments which special economic and other interests find "workable." Without a centralizing power to rally around for resistance, the fragmented elements are more amenable to pressure.

That is the story of the quota fight. For all the countereffort being made, the national concern in liberalized trade is not strongly enough represented. So the lawmakers are listening to special groups whose goal, seen collectively, is to dismantle quietly a trade structure the country still finds economically rewarding after a third of a century of testing.

Soviet Losing More 'Friends'

By GEORGE WELLER

ROME — The Soviet Union took one more step toward the dissolution of her eastern alliance when her stop-go campaign this week against Czechoslovakia diminished her safety belt of allies from the North Sea to the Mediterranean.

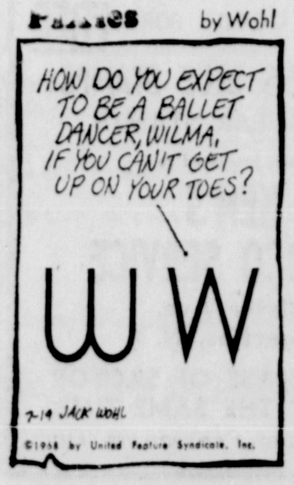

A head count of the Czech nerve war shows the balance of satellites turning against Russia, Albania, Romania and Yugoslavia are countries already lost, already caustic, undaunted by the Red army.

Russia's maladroit methods of dragging her feet in the withdrawal of troops and summoning a "secret" inquisitorial meeting in Warsaw have openly turned Hungary against her. Taken together with Czechoslovakia's resentment, the semi-defection of Hungary leaves five Communist European nations against Moscow, but only three favoring her: Poland, East Germany and isolated Bulgaria. The balance of power is shifting basically, from the Soviet Communist states that want complete capitulation to national Communists.

The misfire of the Brezhnev-Kosyghin regime comes exactly 20 years after Joseph Stalin, by his heavyhanded treatment of President Tito, lost Yugoslavia. The Soviet heresy-hunters also loosed onto Eastern Europe a schism between Russian and National Communists that still lasts today.

The irony of Russia's defeat, through excessixe zeal in imposing conformism, is that militarily speaking the Soviets are fully justified in their alarm. Czechoslovakia, with her eastern border scissored in 1945 to give the Soviets direct postwar access, is the only sure one-country bridge for the Red Army to strike Western Germany.

The Soviets, by alienating both Hungary and Czechoslovakia, have virtually narrowed their field of confrontation to the northern third of the European continent.

Feels Ike's Endorsement Will Help

By WALTER MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Richard M. Nixon believes his endorsement by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower may persuade some uncommitted Republican National Convention delegates to back his presidential candidacy.

Nixon told newsmen shortly after Eisenhower's endorsement Thursday that persuasion of uncommitted delegates was one possible benefit.

But, he added, the endorsement also should provide a lift not only to his current drive for the presidential nomination but beyond that to the fall campaign.

Neither Eisenhower nor Nixon contended the endorsement would be decisive and both insisted that despite Nixon's hefty-delegate lead the convention that opens Aug. 5 in Miami Beach will be open.

Not Surprised

The reaction of Nixon's chief rival for the nomination, New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, said the endorsement was no surprise to him.

"It would be embarrassing for him if he didn't" get the endorsement since Eisenhower's grandson is about to marry one of Nixon's daughters, Rockefeller said.

California Gov. Ronald Reagan, potential candidate for the nomination, told a news conference in Sacremento that he had expected the endorsement.

Referring to the eight years Nixon served as vice president under Eisenhower and the impending marriage, Reagan said "they had a long and fruitful relationship and now they are going to be joined in a family way."

The 77-year-old Eisenhower, dropping his rule of preconvention neutrality on grounds the issues are great and the situation confusing, held a hospital news conference to announce that Nixon is the man he wants nominated by the convention.

Nixon was campaigning in Washington when Eisenhower summoned reporters to Walter Reed Army Hospital, where he suffered a fifth heart attack several weeks ago, to deliver his endorsement.

Eisenhower was wheeled from his hospital suite to a sitting room where he delivered the endorsement.

Walks to Desk

Attendants tried to wheel his chair all the way to the desk at which he spoke. But Eisenhower got up and walked a half dozen steps to the desk.

His wife, Mamie, was at his side.

Only six reporters were allowed to attend the news conference, along with a small group of television cameramen and technicians.

Eisenhower went swiftly to the point:

"This year is an exceptional one. The issues are so great and the situation so confusing that I thought I would like to break my personal precedent and, prior to the presidential nomination, express my own preference for that nominee. I endorse Richard M. Nixon . . ."

Eisenhower has been a patient at the hospital since May 14. At his news conference, he wore a blue bathrobe emblazoned with the five white stars of his Army rank and embroidered with the words "Feeling great again." He pointed to them when asked how he felt.

"I am slowly regaining some strength," he said.

Reagan Hits Southlands, Hopes to Slow Down Wallace

By United Press International

California Gov. Ronald Reagan's trip south today was intended to help fill the GOP war chest and combat the growing influence of third party presidential candidate George Wallace among Dixie Republicans.

The announced purpose of Reagan's five-state southern tour was to raise funds for the party, but he disclosed earlier this week that GOP officials in the South also had urged him to help them neutralize Wallace's grassroots appeal.

Although Reagan is not an announced presidential candidate, he has said he would accept the GOP nomination. His current tour affords him an ideal opportunity to assess the depth of his support in the South. His first stop was Amarillo, Tex.

Politicians in both parties are increasingly concerned that Wallace's third-party candidacy may lead to an Electoral College deadlock that throws the presidential election into the House.

One proposal to neutralize Wallace's leverage, a plan calling for House candidates to pledge to support the candidate with the largest popular vote if none receives an electoral vote majority was endorsed Thursday by GOP presidential candidate Richard M. Nixon.

A UPI survey indicated, however, that the nation's governors are interested but wary of the plan.

Other developments:

Nixon: The former vice president's candidacy was endorsed by former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, who said he thought Nixon's nomination and election "would serve the best interests of the United States." Eisenhower, recuprating in Washington from his fifth heart attack, said ill health had kept him from speaking out earlier on his preference. Nixon said the endorsement would be "immensely helpful."

Eugene J. McCarthy: His youth corps kept faith with the Minnesota senator and turned out in large numbers to greet him at Atlanta, but Democratic politicians stayed away. McCarthy confirmed major cutbacks were being made in his presidential campaign staff due to financial troubles, but denied reports his campaign deficit was as high as $1 million. In New York, District 65 of the Retail Workers and Department Store Union endorsed McCarthy. The union has 35,000 members.

Nelson A. Rockefeller: The New York governor, campaigning in Ohio, shrugged off Eisenhower's endorsement of Nixon as not likely to have much effect on delegates to the GOP nominating convention. "The delegates are interested in two things—picking someone who can do a job for this country, and a winner," he said. Rockefeller received the endorsement of Rep. Albert H. Qui, Minn., who is influential in House Republican circles.

Wallace: The former Alabama governor told a rally in St. Louis that President Johnson properly exercised his prerogative in nominating Abe Fortas to be Supreme Court chief justice. "The President has the right to appoint a justice up until the last day of his administration," he said. But he added he hoped Fortas is not confirmed by the Senate.

Fear Balance of Terror Invites Brushfire Wars

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pentagon leaders say the United States and Soviet Union may have reached such an even balance of terror that nuclear weapons will no longer deter conventional wars—nobody will take the threat of their use seriously.

Secretary of the Air Force Harold Brown has told a Senate subcommittee that each nuclear superpower is so strong "that any all-out thermonuclear war would inflict unacceptable damage on both."

Gen. John P. McConnell, the Air Force chief of staff, also has told the subcommittee that the Soviet Union will catch the United States in the number of intercontinental missiles by the end of this year.

McConnell said the U.S.S.R. will be almost, but not quite, equal to the United States in over-all nuclear strength in 1971.

He said this may cause Soviet leaders to feel they can intervene in crisis areas of the world with less risk of U.S. opposition.

Brown said there can be no confidence in nuclear weapons serving to discourage conventional arms flareups.

"I don't think you can deter in Europe, for example, a conventional probe with conventional weapons, by the threat of all-out nuclear war. I think the other side won't believe us," he said.

Brown and McConnell appeared April 30 at a closed session of the Senate preparedness subcommittee, which made public a censored transcript of the testimony Thursday.

The Air Force secretary said the United States has the power now to wipe out "essentially the entire urban population" of the Soviet Union.

But Pentagon officials conceded the Soviet Union also has the power to shower destruction on the United States.

One estimate listed a hypothetical 1976 attack in which American deaths would range from 40 million to 120 million persons.

'Y' Gets More Money for Jobs

Kingston's YMCA has received a grant of an additional $12,600 from the federal government for the creation of 40 new summer jobs for teenagers from low income families in the area, according to Judge Hubert Richter, chairman of the YMCA youth committee.

The additional funds are being made available to the Kingston program through the Manpower Development Training Act. They supplement an earlier grant of $52,900, given to the YMCA in June, and used by the 'Y' to launch the Neighborhood Youth Corps, which has a total of 105 teenage boys and girls from Ulster County participating in the summer program.

Robert Stubbs, YMCA Executive Director, said that this new grant raises from 105 to 145 the number of Ulster County youngsters from low income families employed in meaningful summer jobs. "The program is jointly sponsored by the YMCA and the Ulster County Community Action Committee," Stubbs said, "with the YMCA holding primary administrative responsibility."

"One of the major objectives of the program, restricted to youth who are still continuing school, is to help them to better understand the relationship between education and jobs, and to help them develop a positive attitude toward education and remain in school," Stubbs said. Enrollees are assigned to non profit, private and public agencies throughout the county. "For many this is their first work experience and first opportunity to be paid for services rendered. Many are also from welfare families, and the program serves to change attitudes with respect to the world of work," Stubbs stated.

Of the initial 105 enrollees, 12 are assigned to the Kingston City School Consolidated as clerical and maintenance aides. Others are assigned to such work stations as the Kingston Library, Kingston Hospital, the various Armed Forces Recruiting Stations, and recreation-clerical- and maintenance aides at Community Chest agencies such as the YMCA, YWCA, Boys' Club, Jewish Community Center, Boy Scout Office, Salvation Army and Association for Retarded Children.

Other job stations include the Rondout Valley Schools, New Paltz Schools, Onteora Schools, Phoenicia Library, Saugerties Schools, Wallkill Schools, St. Augustine School, Ellenville Schools and Highland Schools.

Others include the Southern Ulster Migrant Assistance Program, various programs of the UCCAC, the Kingston Urban Renewal office and the BOCES offices in Kingston and New Paltz

"So many deserving youngsters who were eager to work were turned away when we reached our quota of 105," Stubbs said, "that we were greatly pleased with the additional $12,600 to help 40 more young men and women." They will be paid $1.50 per hour for 26 hours per week for the seven week period to the end of August.

Counselors in the project include Mrs. Milton Reynolds, Richard Barthel, Richard Moore and James Rundle, YMCA Youth Director.

Several House Democrats Concerned GOP Will Win

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of 10 House Democrats expressed concern Thursday that the Republicans could win the presidential election and control of the House unless Sen. Eugene McCarthy is the Democratic candidate.

The apprehension was expressed at a news conference to announc the formation of a congressional steering committee for McCarthy at the Democratic National Convention.

The committee, headed by Rep. Henry Reuss of Wisconsin, is expected to counsel on policy formulation and platform as well as comminicate with state delegates and individuals at the convention.

The other nine on the steering committee are: Reps. Jonathan B. Bingham, John G. Dow, Benjamin S. Rosenthal, William F. Ryan and James H. Scheuer, all of New York; George E. Brown Jr. and Don Edwards, both of California, Henry Helstoski of New Jersey and Robert W. Kastenmeier of Wisconsin.

Reuss, Brown, Scheuer, Ryan, Bingham, Kastenmeier and Dow are delegates to the convention due to open in Chicago on Aug. 26.

In a statement on McCarthy, Reuss said: "In our judgment he represents the quality of leadership and courage that the country and the party need at this time.

"We feel that his position and his programs, both international and domestic, represent what we would like to see at this time."

The group predicted a great many voters would stay at home on election day if Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey wins the Democratic nomination.

Man, Boy Victims In Area Drownings

An itinerent worker in Kerhonkson and a 6-year-old Columbia County boy were victims of separate drownings that were under investigation today by State Police.

Ulster County Coroner Arthur C. Chipp of Kerhonkson was notified at 4:15 a. m. that a man had drowned in an indoor swimming pool at the Brookside Motel in Kerhonkson at about 4 a. m. Chipp went to the scene where he investigated with BCI Investigator Fred Cooper of Ellenville and state police from the Ferndale barracks.

Chipp reported the man, known only as Jimmy pending positive identification, had worked at the hotel the last two days. The body apparently had been taken from the pool by others at the summer place.

The coroner had the victim removed to the county morgue at Kingston Hospital where examination was to be made to determine the cause of death. Efforts were made to establish identification of the man in order that next of kin could be notified.

On Thursday, Allen Hlavac, 6, of the Columbia county community of Valatie accidently drowned in Kinderhook Lake, north of Hudson, after he and his 8 - year - old brother rowed out on the lake to swim.

Claverack State Police said the boys rowed approximately 15 feet from shore, where Allen apparently jumped out of the boat. He drowned in about five feet of water. The body was recovered.

The boys' father said he thought Allen could swim. The parents are Mr. and Mrs. Allen Hlavac.

Glusker Seeks Sweeper For Ellenville Streets

The Village of Ellenville street sweeper may be on its way out. Extensive repairs on the three year old Elgin has led a number of village officials to believe the machine must go.

Mayor Eugene Glusker told The Freeman that he will offer a resolution at the Aug. 5 meeting of the village board to advertise for open bidding on a new sweeper.

The old one will, most likely, be put up for sale or traded in.

Superintendent of Public Works Carl "Stubby" Miller claimed the Elgin "just won't sweep."

The superintendent said, "We have to use it every day, eight hours a day. But we end up running it for four hours and fixing it for four hours."

Just three weeks ago, a side sweeper bushing wore out and a new one installed. Now that part has worn out and another bushing has just been received at the Public Works Department.

One alleged design flaw of the machine, pointed out by Superintendent Miller, lay in the fact that the tires of the machine are before the sweepers.

"Whenever there is any glass on the street, the tires pick it up before the sweeper gets at it," said Miller.

Another problem, according to Miller, is that the sweeper always leaves a streak of debris behind it.

The machine was purchased in April, 1965. The village board at the time, by a vote of four to one, and following the suggestion of then village manager John Weichsel, purchased the machine from the low bidding Elgin Company.

The single disenting vote was that of former trustee Howard Weiss.

Pool System Fails, Deadly Gas Revealed

MAMARONECK, N. Y. (UPI) —One-hundred and twenty- two children were rushed to New Rochelle Hospital Thursday when the chlorine mixing system in the Bonnie Briar Country Club's swimming pool apparently broke and released deadly chlorine gas.

Hospital spokesmen said none of the children was in serious condition but four had been admitted for further treatment.

Police Chief James Mancusi said a mixing valve in the pool chlorine system apparently malfunctioned, causing a release valve to let the gas escape into the atmosphere.

He said a Health Department inspector would examine the pool before it would be reopened to the public, but added that it now seemed to be working properly.

Summer Jobs For Poor Youth Up 300 Per Cent

ALBANY, N.Y. (UPI)—Thirteen per cent of the summer jobs in state agencies have gone to disadvantaged youths, a substantial portion of whom e from minority groups, Governor Rockefeller said Thursday.

The governor made the statement in connection with an interim report on summer and seasonal employment in state agencies.

The figure "represents a 300 per cent gain over last year when minority group hiring was estimated to be three per cent," Rockefeller said.

Several months ago, Rockefeller directed all state agencies to make a concentrated effort to find summer jobs for disadvantaged youths.

Rockefeller said the employment figures indicated minority groups were getting a "fair share" of state summer jobs since 14 per cent of the state's population were Puerto Rican or Negro.

Coleman Director Speaks to Kiwanis

The services of the John A. Coleman High School and the purpose of a District Superintendent for Catholic schools in Ulster and Sullivan counties was described to the Kingston Kiwanis Club Thursday by the Rev. Joseph J. McCarthy, director of the new high school and District Superintendent for the two-county school system.

Father McCarthy introduced his remarks concerning the school system with a recital of his impressions of the area. As a stranger to the area, the priest noted the local idea of referring to "they" as a way of transferring responsibility to an unknown quantity, the slower pace as compared to the Metropolitan area with which he was familiar, and the presence of a "close-knit society" locally. He stated his position as a "liaison officer between the area and the network of Catholic education." His direct responsibility was listed as the "explanation of curriculum," the supervision of the 16 elementary and two high schools in the two counties," and "the public relations in the area."

As director of the John A. Coleman High School, located on Hurley Avenue, the Rev. Father McCarthy remarked that "I have all the problems of a co-ed school." He pointed to the new school as dedicated to Catholic principles with a substantial academic program, and stated that 420 students would be enrolled in September with a capacity of 600 at the present time.

The speaker emphasized that the John A. Coleman High School is "directed to meet the needs of the community", and that its program would stress "community and cooperative effort.

Ulster Businessmen Back County Sales Tax Defeat

Reversing the trend of business groups supporting a county-wide sales tax, the Ulster Businessmen's Association in a statement today backed the action of the County Legislature last week in defeating further action on the proposal for this year.

The statement signed by Bernie Singer, committee chairman said, "It is unfortunate that the businessmen of the City of Kingston choose to work against the best interests of their friends and customers, instead of directing their efforts toward a constructive solution to their dilemma. They selfishly try to involve everyone so that they would no longer be at a disadvantage. Despite some of their ridiculous claims, it is obvious that they just prefer to disregard the Golden Rule.

"All the recent publicity concerning the proposed Ulster County sales tax seems directed toward an organized effort to impose this confiscatory measure. The Town of Ulster Businessmen's Association would like to correct any such impression and assure the people of this county that they have not been abandoned. The county merchants and the average citizen do not want this tax and believe that it is not necessary.

"Majority Leader Douglas Dye's (R-2nd District) comments of less waste and increased efficiency and his vote along with the 22 others in favor of the overburdened taxpayer was a welcome change. We hope that these men will continue to represent their constituents.

"Our county expenditures this year may be less than anticipated and by maintaining only essential services we can avoid any increase in taxes.

"A sales tax is an acknowledged regressive tax. The biggest share of the income comes from those least able to afford it. The history of all taxes prove that once imposed, they seldom are removed.

The Town of Ulster Businessmen along with merchants from Saugerties, Ellenville, New Paltz, Phoenicia and other areas in the county are opposed to a sales tax, as are the great bulk of the people in these communities and in Kingston. We do not want a sales tax. We do not need a sales tax. Wise administration on the part of our elected officials will see to it that this tax does not become a reality. The people should let their legislators know how they feel.

The argument that other counties are capitalizing on the influx of visitors by making them dig deeper into their pockets for the privilege of coming here should not influence anyone. We should try to promote trade and commerce with a welcome and inviting air, not by penalizing those who come here. And, also, our own residents would be forced to contribute to the tax and spend schemes," the statement concluded.

The County Legislature last week defeated a proposal to prepare a local law for the enactment of a 2 per cent sales tax. This added to the state tax would mean a payment of 4 per cent on each purchase in the county. Kingston has had a 2 per cent sales tax since March 1 and the local merchants who must collect the tax in the city have been operating at a competitive disadvantage with businesses outside the city.

Alarm Received, No Fire Found

Four pieces of apparatus responded to an alarm at 8:42 a. m. today after smoke was reported in the basement and main floor of the United Pharmacy at 329 Wall Street. Investigation disclosed no fire.

A telephone call was received at 8:41 a. m. and the box alarm was sent a minute later dispatching Engines 1 and 2 and Trucks 1 and 2 to the scene in command of Deputy Chief Glyn Southard. Wicks Salvage and Excelsior Volunteer units responded but were not needed.

Firemen checked the fluorescent light fixtures for any defective ballast, but found none. Further examination of the basement disclosed the smoke was caused by an overheated motor on the air conditioning duct. Electricity was shut off and smoke in the cellar was ejected with fans.

Former Game Warden Named to High Post

A former Kingston area resident, William J. Goodman has been appointed to the newly created post of assistant director for Law Enforcement and Field Services for the New York State Conservation Department Division of Fish and Game.

In making the announcement Conservation Commissioner R. Stewart Kilborne said, "the appointment of Bill Goodman to this important new post in the Conservation Department is a key move in the restructuring of the Bureau of Enforcement to give it more adequate staffing which will result in better service to the public." Noting that Goodman began his career as a game protector in Columbia County in 1938, Commissioner Kilborne said, "it pleases me to see another one of our career employes achieve a position of increased stature in the department."

WILLIAM J. GOODMAN

Locally, Goodman was held in high esteem by all sportsmen and the men in his department while he was district game protector. He came to Kingston in 1946 following four years service in the armed forces. At that time the Conservation Department was located in the Millard building on Central Broadway.

In 1959, Goodman was appointed chief of the Bureau of Law Enforcement working out of the Albany office. While in the Kingston office, he resided in Port Ewen.

Local acquaintances know Goodman as an excellent after dinner speaker. He was much in demand at local sportsmen's banquets and meetings where his knowledge of all phases of conservation laws and his willingness to discuss any sportsmen's problems earned him a vast following.

Mr. and Mrs. Goodman, the parents of twin girls, Carol and Elizabeth and another daughter, Margaret, now live in Stuyvesant Falls. Goodman, a native of Waterford, is a graduate of Hudson High School.

In outlining the major appointment Commissioner Kilborne noted that "in this modern world of conservation of our natural resources the role of those who are responsible for their protection and the relationship of the public has been broadened. The revamping of the bureau is designed to provide greater opportunities for advancement within the ranks and "provide a better climate for recruitment of qualified personnel," Kilborne said.

In Dispute With Board

State Group Backs Marlboro Teachers

In the face of a Marlboro Central School teacher boycott, the Marlboro Central Faculty Association has accused the Board of Education of releasing "misleading information."

The New York State Teachers' Association is asking its members to refrain from applying for employment in the Marlboro Central School District.

Announcement of the imposition of the sanction was made in a message to members of the Marlboro Faculty Association Tuesday.

The statement, made by Mrs. Catharine O'M. Barrett, president of NYSTA says in part, "Marlboro Central School is not an appropriate place at present in which professional teachers should seek employment.

"The action is necessary because the board has refused to: 1. negotiate in good faith in that it has not altered its position since March 24 when it unilaterally adopted the district salary schedule; 2. utilize the impartial fact - finders' report as a basis of settlement; and 3. give its representatives authorization to seek a settlement."

Meanwhile the Marlboro Faculty Association, seeking to clarify its position, answers points made by the board of education as follows:

1. "The Board reiterates the exagerrated statement that we made a request for a 50 per cent monetary increase plus other benefits. This of itself sounds very demanding but in reality it was the same New York State Teachers' proposal made by almost all schools in the area. On the other hand, the boards first proposal was status quo.

2. "The second statement that the association stopped negotiations and called in the Public Employees Relations Board on April 2 rather than continue negotiations is of course partly true. When it was obvious that the board of education was adament in its stand, the teachers followed the procedure as set forth in the Professional Negotiation Agreement. According to article Five of the negotiation agreement 'if an impasse occurs,' the matter under dispute may be directly submitted to PERB in Albany for its determination in accordance with the Public Employees Fair Employment Act.

"It should be noted that before the impartial mediator from the Public Employees Relations Board rendered his findings the association, through its attorney, made a statement that it would accept the findings whether they were favorable or unfavorable. The board on the other hand stated flatly that they would not accept his findings.

3. "The board of education stated that the teachers made threats, requested sanctions and made misleading statements. The board should realize that sanctions will be imposed on the district only if it is felt by the board of directors of the New York State Teachers Association that the situation warrants sanctions. It is no secret that sanctions have been requested. Therefore sanctions have never been a threat but a statement of fact.

The association has advertised to warn parents and the community in general that many experienced teachers are leaving. Again, the facts bear this out. The mass exodus of teachers from the district has already been noted in the press.

"The board of education declares that it has followed procedures as set forth in the Taylor Law.

"It claims that the negotiation contract was signed in January. This is true.

2. "It claims that there were numerous negotiation sessions. Indeed this is true. They neglected to state however that at only two meetings were all the members of the board present, and many times there was not even a quorum. There were times when the teacher negotiation committee found only one or two board members present and ther meeting would be postponed. At no meeting did the business proceed with any punctuality. As a matter of fact, the teachers have had to wait an hour past the scheduled meeting time.

3. "The board states that the recommendations of the supervising principal were made and they imply that they thereby carried out the provisions of the Taylor Law.

It is true that Georgini, supervising principal did make his recommendations over a month after the time designated.

"Much is made of the teacher-pupil ratio in the Marlboro schools. The public should be aware that this is very misleading. When computing teacher - pupil ratio everyone employed in a professional position is added. This is divided into the number of students. Such people would include librarians, nurses, remedial reading teachers, the dental hygienist, guidance directors and psychologist in addition to the classroom teachers.

"It is true that since we have a small school, there will be fewer people in the advanced math, science and language classes. However, except in these areas in high school, the class size is on par with other schools in the area.

"Taxation in Marlboro has increased. Many of the teachers own homes in the district and are well aware of this. Yet it is noted that in advertising real estate in Marlboro, invariably a point is made that the property is located in an area of low taxes. The association must acknowledge that taxes are climbing but this is true everywhere and Marlboro to date has been more fortunate than most."

Rockwell Kent Invited Back by Newfoundland

By BRIAN B. KING .....

AUSABLE FORKS, N.Y. (AP) —Rockwell Kent, who for decades has been admired for his art and condemned for his politics, has been invited to return to the Canadian province that deported him during World War I.

A family spokesman said Wednesday that the 86-year-old Kent, who has been in ill health for some years, had been invited to return to Newfoundland by Premier Joey Smallwood.

There, before his deportation for alleged pro-German activities almost 50 years ago, the famed landscape artist captured in his paintings and writings scenes that have been acclaimed for their "dramatic realism."

The spokesman, at Kent's home in this Adirondack village outside Plattsburgh, said the artist was scheduled to leave for Newfoundland Monday for "a week or ten days."

The visit is to be a private one, the spokesman said, and Kent does not feel "he should make any comment, at least not until he got back."

No Communist

There was no immediate comment from the Newfoundland or Canadian governments.

This is the second summer in a row that Kent has made news by his travels.

Last year he journeyed to Russia to accept the Lenin Peace Prize and its cash award of $27,778.

Later, he announced he had donated $10,000 of the money to North Vietnam's Moscow ambassador "to aid suffering women and children"' and as "a token of my shame and sorrow at the unprovoked and utterly illegal invasion of the territories of the people of Vietnam" by the U.S., and at "my own de facto involvment in my country's shameful act."

Although the U.S. Treasury Department said it would investigate the gift, no charges against Lent have been filed.

In the 1930's, he included a small "coded" message on a painting for a Puerto Rican post office, urging Puerto Ricans to seek their independence from the United States.

Later, accused of supporting the Civil Rights Congress, a group the House Un-American to as a "Communist-front" organization, the bald, 5-foot-9 Kent replied:

"I am working in every way I can to promote that way of life which I, an American, consider to be the American way of life."

The outspoken Kent—once described as the art world's "Stormy petrel", a small bird common to the Atlantic shores that flys far from land—was deeply involved with the World Peace Congress in the 1950s.

It was in 1950, when his passport was invalidated by the United States after he addressed the Supreme Soviet in Moscow, that Kent remarked: "I am interested in the peace movement because it is backed by Communists. Anything that the Communists say about peace ounds good to me."

Denies Membership

Although the words have been used often in stories relating his activities, Kent has also termed the Communists "my enemies" and has vehemently denied that he was a Communist Party member.

Rather, he has said, he considers himself a socialist.

Kent sued the State Department in 1957 when he was denied a passport to a peace meeting in Finland because he refused to sign an oath saying he was not a Communist.

The U.S. Supreme Court, ruling in his favor, held that a passport application could not be rejected on these grounds as such an oath had never been authorized by Congress.

Poultry Meeting Slated July 30

A Hudson Valley area poultry meeting will be held on Tuesday, July 30 at 7:30 p. m. at the Holiday Inn in Liberty to discuss "The Ups and Downs of Egg Prices," Robert Guzewich, Ulster County Cooperative Extension Agent announced recently.

The program will include such topics as "The Pricing of Eggs," "Northeastern Egg Marketing Association," and "Federal Enabling Legislation and Marketing Orders."

Guest speakers at the meeting will be Dr. Olan C. Forker, Associate Professor of Marketing at Cornell University, Maurice Stein, President of the Maine Egg Farms, and Dr. Robert J. Young, Chairman of the Department of Poultry Science at Cornell University.

All area egg producers and others interested in the poultry business are invited to attend the meeting.

The Basenji breed of dog cannot bark.

At Thoreau Parley

Dennis J. Hannan, head of the English department in the junior and senior high schools of Wappingers Central School, has returned from Concord, Mass., where he attended the annual meeting of the Thoreau Society.

Speakers included the naturalist, Hal Borland, Dr. Reginald L. Cook of Middlebury College, and Thoreau biographer, Dr Walter Harding. Incoming president is Henry Beetle Hough.

Clergy Convene With U.S. Blast

By GEORGE BOULTWOOD
Associated Press Writer

UPPSALA, Sweden (AP) — The World Council of Churches winds up its Fourth Assembly today with debate on a resolution in effect condemning U.S. intervention in Vietnam and calling for a cease-fire in the war.

"The appalling situation of the Vietnamese people today offers an example of the tragedy to which unilateral intervention of a great power can lead," said the resolution hammered out in committee.

"Moreover, such intervention creates rather than solves political, social and economic problems."

The resolution calls on both sides at the Paris negotiations "to take risks for peace." It appeals to the United States to stop bombing Vietnam and using weapons of mass destruction and urges both sides to stop fighting.

It also asks all governments to "heed the bitter lesson of Southeast Asia" and strengthen the political authority and material strength of the United Nations.

A report from the committee and world service was to be presented for approval. It urged high priority for development aid.

The aid division, with $13 million a year turnover, coordinates more than 600 social, development and refugee projects in about 80 countries.

The report suggested that a revolving fund contributed by donor agencies be set up for quick financing of development projects.

"By the mechanism of a revolving loan fund, administered by the division, many more projects could be helped over the years and each given the added advantage of contributing more both to its own self-support and to other enterprises. This may well be one of the main future developments of the division's work."

It recommended planning for postwar programs in Vietnam and Nigeria.

On the Middle East, it called for increased financial support from governments for the United Nations Relief and works agency for Palestine refugees.

The churches Ministry to the Homeless also must be intensified, the report said.

It said there is no evidence of church people suffering from "compassion fatigue." On the contrary, the urge to serve and give sacrificially appears to be more widespread than at any time in history, it said.

SINGER BURNED — Entertainer Dean Martin suffered burns on both hands yesterday when a trick camera he was using in a movie at Columbia Studios in Hollywood caught fire. A studio spokehman said the burns were painful, but did not appear to be serious. Martin was filming "House of 7 Joys" when the accident occured. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

Hitch 100 Amendments To New Gun Control Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill banning the mail-order sales of rifles, shotguns and ammunition has picked up support from the House Republican leadership. But it still faces a blizzard of more than 100 amendments which could strengthen it, weaken it or kill it.

The unusual volume of amendments readied for today's session was expected to delay a final vote until Saturday or possibly early next week.

The amendments range from minor exemptions to lessen the impact on hunters and collectors to provisions for registration of all firearms and licensing of owners.

Another proposed major change in the measure as originally asked for by President Johnson would impose mandatory prison sentences for those who carry a gun while committing a felony.

This provision, however, has drawn opposition mainly from congressmen who say it raises constitutional questions.

Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, House Republican leader, lined up Thursday behind the basic Johnson administration bill which would ban the sale of rifles, shotguns and ammunition through the mails and over the counter to residents of nonadjoining states.

The bill would ban all sales of rifles and ammo to people under 18.

This was the way the bill was reported out of the House Judiciary Committee last week and Ford told newsmen "If the committee bill is changed significantly either way—stronger or weaker—it is probable the bill will be defeated."

"If we want to get meaningful legislation," Ford added, "I think we better stick with the committee bill."

Ford thus aligned himself with two other key members of the House who have said they were opposed to registration and licensing for fear such an amendment would jeopardize passage of any bill at all.

Two Minor Fires

Kingston firemen responded to two minor fires on Thursday. At 11:19 p. m., Engine 1 in charge of Capt. Robert Maines was dispatched to Tremper Avenue and Cornell Street after fire was reported burning a large plastic cover on the salt pile. Pressure water and Indian tanks were used to extinguish the fire, which officials said was incendiary. At 12:03 p. m. Engine 1 in charge of Deputy Chief Robert Hartwick responded to a call for fire in rubbish back of Mickey's Igloo on East Chester Street by-pass. A booster hose was used to quell the blaze.

Ruth Gordon Happy After Starring Role

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) "It's such a pleasure to be in a hit picture at last," says Ruth Gordon with all the verve of a starlet.

Miss Gordon resembles a starlet in her passion for her work, her youthful outlook, even her miniskirts. But she is an unabashed 73—and still going at top speed.

She has lately been accorded more than the usual attention she gets as one of America's most distinguished actresses and writers—she has written such plays as "Over 21" and "Years Ago" and coauthored with her husband Garson Kanin scripts of "A Double Life," "Adam's Rib" and other films.

Neighbors Part

The reason for the fuss over Ruth Gordon is her performance in "Rosemary's Baby," in which she plays Mia Farrow's nosy neighbor. Her work drew applause from preview audiences and predictions of an Academy Award nomination from critics.

"All the other pictures I've made were unsuccessful," she remarked. "'Abe Lincoln in Illinois,' 'Dr. Erlich's Magic Bullet,' 'Two-Faced Woman,' 'Action in the North Atlantic'—well, that one was a hit, but I only played a one-day bit in it as Raymond Massey's wife because he asked me to.

"Then there was 'Edge of Darkness,' 'Inside Daisy Clover' (which got her an Academy nomination) and 'Lord Love a Duck.' None of them did for me what Rosemary's Baby' has done; already I've had three offers for roles. I turned them down because they weren't different enough.

Many Compliments

"But the best part of the whole thing is the way the young crowd has taken to the role. They come up and compliment me at parties and on the street. I think that's simply great. You can grow old and you can get old—or you can grow old and stay with it. I much prefer to stay with it."

There is no doubt that Miss Gordon is with it. She can talk with teen-agers on their own terms. She can rhapsodize over such new theater as "Hair" and "Your Own Thing." Mia Farrow calls her "my only hippie friend."

She appears to have no formula for her immense vitality beyond a three-mile daily walk and a sustaining interest in the world around her.

Mademoiselle Arrives from Paris After Some Harassing Experiences

Although she had been drenched in a rain storm, missed her bus, hitchhiked a ride in a Volkswagen and spent a night at the YMCA, Miss Cathrine Marinet of France finally arrived in this country last week. She left Paris on July 6 and after harassing experiences en route arrived at Woodstock 4 p. m. Sunday, July 7, where she is visiting Mrs. Sofie H. Bernard of Bearsville Road, a personal friend of the Marinet family for many years.

The journey began on Saturday morning in Paris when, accompanied by her father and sister, she reached the Place des Invalides at 3 a. m. Miss Marinet boarded a bus for Brussels from where she would fly via jet on the Saturn Airways, a chartered flight for foreign students, for New York. It was raining profusely at the Invalides while the group awaited the arrival of the four buses which were scheduled to take the 250 students who were "wet but happy" to the airport.

The plane was supposed to leave Brussels at 1 p.m. and, as the students had arrived at the French-Belgian frontier at 8 a. m., the group departed for refreshments. It was then that the problems began.

When Miss Marinet came out of the restaurant she noted two of the buses had departed, including the one on which she had been a passenger.

Running to board one of those remaining, she found the third bus completely filled and the driver of the last bus refused her entrance as it "was not the one on which you came."

Three other students were left stranded also, two girls and a boy. Not knowing whether to "laugh or cry" the group tried to solve their dilemma as quickly as possible.

Discarding the idea of taking a taxi after hearing the amount of the fare, they decided to hitchhike. The young man was fortunate immediately but the three girls waited 15 minutes, "a long time when one is nervous," added Miss Marinet, until two Hungarian gentlemen in a Volkswagen gave them a ride. Although half an hour late leaving the frontier they arrived in Brussels two minutes BEFORE the buses.

At the airport as they were checking their luggage they discovered the luggage escalator was out of order and they had to wait two hours until it was repaired. Fortunately the plane was three hours late.

"The flight was very comfortable and what surprised us was that the sun was always shining," said Miss Marinet, who added, "even at 1 o'clock in the morning."

They arrived over New York at 10 p. m. but had to circle Kennedy Airport for an hour before landing.

At 11:30 they finished transactions at Customs, and, as it was too late to take a bus to Woodstock, several students decided to spend the night in New York. Taking a bus at the airport they headed for the YMCA where they arrived at 1 a. m. and found other French students who had taken taxis. "They spent two dallors each but it only cost us 40 cents," she explained.

By 2 a. m. the girls were settled for the night but since there weren't enough rooms the young men had to find a hotel and it was 3 a. m. before they found suitable accommodations.

The next morning the group had breakfast at 10:30 and left for the bus terminal where Miss Marinet waited until 2 p. m. for the bus which would take her to Woodstock.

The Freeman hopes Miss Marinet's stay here will be long and pleasant and that the return trip will be a great deal less troublesome.

Teenagers to Demonstrate Crafts

MIKE ROSEN shows Nan Bostick how to operate a machine in the Tinsmith Shop at the Shaker Museum, Old Chatham, where the 13th annual Shaker Museum Festival will be held Saturday, Aug. 3. (Lees Studio).

The Thirteenth Annual Shaker Museum Festival to be held on the Museum grounds of Shaker Museum Foundation, Old Chatham, Saturday, Aug. 3, will feature a talented group of teenagers from the Shaker Village Work Group who will demonstrate some fast disappearing crafts on authentic Shaker equipment. Young girls will be working on large looms that were used to produce room size rugs as well as very small delicate looms used for making the tapes for Shaker chairs.

Young men from the Work Group may be found in the Carpentry Shop operating the lathes just as the Shakers did many years ago. Characteristic of Shaker buildings were the peg-boards, the originals of which are collectors items today. These lads will demonstrate on authentic Shaker made foot lathes how each peg was gracefully turned and carefully threaded so it could be inserted into a matching threaded hole in the board which was then fastened to the wall. Any carpenter will recognize this as a very delicate operation.

The making of a flat broom, a Shaker invention, may be observed as the Shaker Village Work Group show the broom-tying process using original equipment. Shaker brooms were sold far and wide and this developed into one of their major industries.

The Shakers were also skilled metal workers and the Work Group follow the procedures as outlined by the Shakers and will show visitors to the Festival this rare craft in the Tinsmithing Shop.

The ladies will, no doubt, be delighted to see how some of the delicate baskets were assembled by the Shakers who learned much of this technique from the Mohawk Indians. The instructors of this Work Group recently visited the Mohawks and learned the method directly from the Indians, as did the Shakers over a century ago. It is often difficult to distinguish an Indian basket from one made by the Shakers.

The Shaker Village Groups who appear at the Shaker Museum Festival are only a part of the Shaker Village Work Group at New Lebanon under the direct and personal supervision of Mr. and Mrs. Count.

Ulster County Residents Make Annual Pilgrimage to Canadian Shrines

Completing an annual pilgrimage to the many shrines in Canada were the residents of Ulster County. Some of the points of interest were St. Joseph's Oratory, Notre Dame Cathedral, Expo, guided tours through old Montreal and Quebec, St. Anne de Beaupre, and Cape de Madeline. Highlights of the trip were Father Prandel of St. Alphonsus, who said mass for the pilgrimage at St. Joseph's Oratory, St. Anne, and Our Lady of the Cape; and also Sister Jean Carmel, daughter of Gilda and Alfred Iaonne of Saugerties, who carried the procession tossel. Others who carried the procession tossel were Mrs. Gilda Iaonne, mother of Sister Carmel; Susan Clausi, and Mimi Korob. Martin Keller carried the procession banner. Arrangements for the pilgrimage were made by Teresa L. Mayone, Route 4, Box 244, Saugerties.

Area residents on this pilgrimage included: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clark, Mrs. Tad Weber, Mrs. Mary Krulder, Mrs. Barbara Caton, Mrs. Mary Cook, Mary Senerchia, Elsie Cesen, Virginia Cave, Helen McGowan, Mrs. L. Chirolo, Martin Korob, Penny Korob, Mimi Korob, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Iaonne, Sister Jean Carmel Iaonne, Susan Clausi, Josephine Guido, Nicoletta Amieone, Felicia Lutz, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Keller, Mr. and Mrs. William Connell, Father Alfred Prandel, Mrs. E. Burke, Mrs. Josephine Doyle, Mr. and Mrs. Julia Peuta, Ethel Aitsogeorge, Patricia Turgeon, and Millard and Mary Rowe. Bus driver was Arthur Mulligan.

Residents are planning trips to Palisades Park on July 27, Monticello on August 3, Atlantic City on Aug. 9-11 and Niagara Falls on Labor Day weekend.

Hints From Heloise

By HELOISE CRUSE

Dear Folks:

To all you dolls who buy carpet with the rubberized backing and try to cut and fit it wall-to-wall in your bathrooms or anywhere else.

Did you know the easiest way to cut it is not wih a pair of scissors, but with a single-edge razor blade? Of if your husband has one of those cutting knives that hold replaceable razor sharp blades, they are even better.

Just turn it over and cut from the BACK side. This means cut through the backing.

Want to know why?

You are not cutting the nap on the carpet itself. Furriers cut sable and ermine furs from the back (skin) side. And that's where I got the idea.

You still have kept all the nap along that cut edge, and it will fluff out against the wall.

Heloise

* * *

Dear Heloise:

I was having quite a bit of trouble trying to slice some ice cream after removing it from the carton. My son was watching and suggested using the electric knife.

It worked beautifully. So easy and smooth.

* * *

Dear Heloise:

I've been told my method of cleaning house is a crazy one. But I always say not to knock it 'til they've tried it.

Instead of concentrating on one room at a time, I concentrate on all. Example . . .

When I wash windows and framework, I do it in every room taking as much time as needed. I tackle only one thing but do it in all the rooms. The same goes for curtains, floors, closets, drawers, etc.

By using what I call this cycle-method, no room is cleaner or dirtier than another. And I find it most rewarding.

Outdoor Living Has Electrical Dangers

By GAY PAULEY
UPI Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UPI)—Summertime and the living is easy in the backyard. Summertime and the living also can be dangerous outdoors.

Outdoor living is "in" and as eating, swimming, playing, even dancing and singing have moved out, so has electricity. And with outside power go more hazards than with use of electricity indoors.

The biggest danger in the backyard turn-on is the possibility of electrical shock due to accidental grounding. With moist earth all about, a faulty tool or appliance can send a surge of lethal current through a person by way of the ground. All electrical equipment should be in good repair and properly grounded.

Another common outdoor danger is the use of extension cords and "octopus" connections that overload circuits.

These are just two of the hazards cited in the current Family Safety, a publication of the National Safety Council. Family Safety lists these other suggestions for a safe summer outdoors.

Don't use a hedge trimmer or other tools near water, or in the rain. Never stand in water when using an electrical tool. Stay on dry ground. If an electrical appliance falls into water, unplug the power cord before retrieving.

Be sure that extension cords are in good condition. Replace them when damaged.

Don't overload extension cords with high wattage appliances.

Makeshift wiring outdoors can be dangerous. Better to have a qualified electrician install permanent, waterproof outdoor outlets.

Be careful not to cut the cord when using an electric mower. Don't splice cut cords—replace them. Power mower cords should be bright color to make them visible against grass.

Don't use radios and television in wet areas, especially at pool-side where bare feet and wet ground or concrete add up to hazards.

Use of electric amplifiers at water's edge also can be dangerous.

Beat the Heat With Cool Strawberry Bowle

STRAWBERRY BOWLE

Take a plain, white wine. Add fresh, crushed fruit. And you have a refreshing summer drink that has served Europeans well for centuries.

It's called a "bowle." Almost any fresh fruit can be used in this light, bright drink.

The continentals make bowle when strawberries first arrive and go right through the summer, using all the fresh fruits of the season in their turn.

Hhere's a sip of the first bowle of the summer.

* * *

STRAWBERRY BOWLE

1 quart strawberries, washed and hulled
1 pound sugar
½ cup bottled lemon juice
3 bottles Mosell or Rhine wine, well iced

Place strawberries in a bowl and add lemon juice and sugar. Shake bowl slightly to mix ingredients. Refrigerate for approximately eight hours. (Chilling with sugar and lemon juice releases the strawberry juice and heightens the fruit flavor.) When ready to serve, put the strawberry combination in a large punch bowl and add the wine. Do not add ice.

SUMMER COOLERS

Summer nutrition is easy with these delicious, easy-to-make summer beverages. Designed to slip down easily, they contain an abundance of well-camouflaged vitamins and minerals.

OLIVE SANDWICH SOUP

A Ripe Olive Sandwich in Your Soup

It had to happen. Just when you think you've seen everything you see your sandwich IN your soup. This ripe olive creation has the charm of the famous French onion soup and is possibly more versatile and variable. It's not a joke nor a reached-for recipe. It's the latest word from the sunny Mediterranean by way of California and in the best of taste. Good cheese, good bread, good California ripe olives—even better than the salty Italian ones—fresh green peppers, tomatoes, onion and garlic. How can you go wrong with these beautiful foods?

The chunky ripe olives and cheese help to make it a really satisfying and warming. The topping keeps well in the refrigerator for quick sandwiches, broiled or not. And And there's no telling what you might add to change it's character. Here it's spread on thick slices of oven toasted French bread. Float the sandwiches in the soup and run under the broiler to melt and brown the cheese.

California ripe olives come canned with or without their pits. Select which of the nine sizes best suits your purpose.

Sandwich Soup

1 (No. 1) tall can pitted California ripe olives
1 large green pepper
1 large tomato
1 large onion
2 crushed cloves garlic
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups grated Fontina cheese (or other good melting cheese)
6 thick slices French bread
Olive oil
2 quarts hot stock or onion soup
½ cup grated Parmesan cheese

Cut ripe olives into quarters. Cut pepper and tomato in half; scoop out membrane, seeds and juice. Dice coarsely with onion. Mix with garlic, ripe olives, salt and Fontina cheese. Let flavors develop while making croutes. Brush both sides of bread with oil. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 25 minutes, turning once. Arrange croutes in large tureen or individual bowls filled with hot stock. Top generously with ripe olive mixture and Parmesan cheese. Broil until cheese melts and top is golden. Makes six servings.

Try Towels as Chair Covers

As midsummer approaches, the outdoor furniture that looked so new in June begins to take on a faded, slightly shopworn appearance.

Director's chairs are among the easiest items to refurbish. From Springmaid comes the notion of covering the faded canvas cover of a director's chair with a pretty bath towel.

The technique is simple. You can either take off the old cover, and use it as a pattern to make the new one or you can sew the new towel right onto the old cover.

Either way, one large bath towel will do one chair. If you have a design requiring special placement make the back from a hand towel and the seat from a bath towel.

To make back cover: Both sides of the back will be covered with towel material. To make back section, simply cut toweling the same depth as the old back cover, and to the measurement between the lines of stitching at each side of the old cover. Stitch along top and bottom edges to join the two pieces, giving ½-inch seam allowance.

A DIRECTOR'S CHAIR gets a glamorous coverup from Springmaid's Japanese-patterned bath towel.

Position front section of towel, and cut 3 inches deeper (1½ inches each side) than the old cover. Cut side measurement long enough to go around old cover to meet new toweling section on back. With right side of front section facing wrong (or back) side of back section, stitch top edges together with ¾-inch seam allowance, starting and ending stitching at vertical stitching line of old cover. This will give you an unstitched section at each end. At each end of stitching line, clip towel section 1½ inches down. Stitch across bottom edge and clip in same way. Turn right side out.

Turn in ¾-inch top and bottom seam allowance of side sections. Wrap side sections to back, to cover raw edge of back covering. Turn under seam allowance and topstitch in position or finish with a close zigzag stitch.

Thank-You Cards with Wedding Portraits

Dear Mrs. Post: Too many of the finer points of etiquette go unobserved as short cuts are taken to please relatives and friends who send gifts to brides and grooms. I have received cards including pictures of the bride and groom as expressions of appreciation during the past several years. They are charming momentos of the great day, BUT due to the photographer's delay in delivery, these notes arrive one and two months after the wedding or receipt of the gifts. Please, Mrs. Post, remind senders of the MUST in acknowledging gifts as promptly as possible. Maggie.

Dear Maggie: I have just recently become acquainted with this growing custom and I, too, find it charming. I do agree that promptness is most important and the solution lies in a letter I received from one of the photographers who sells these cards. He gives the bride the pards without pictures as soon as she places her order, and then slides the pictures into the slots provided when they are ready.

I would also like to stress the importance of her personal note. The card — with its "thank you" and picture — is lovely, but it does not replace the handwritten note of appreciation which must be written on the inside.

Inviting Co-Workers To Your Wedding

Dear Mrs. Post: For a year I have worked in an office with 14 men and one girl. My mother thinks I should invite only my boss to my wedding. I feel that I should invite all the men (naturally the girl will be invited). My father and she are both inviting the people they work with.

I will be working after I get married, and I would like them to come. If I do invite these people, should they all get separate invitations or should I send a general one to the office? Louise.

Dear Louise: It is not incorrect to send one invitation to a group addressed to "The Members of the Office Staff" or other pertinent wording. However, it is far more personal and therefore more complimentary to send individual invitations if you can spare that number.

I don't agree with your mother. You should invite the men you work with, especially as you plan to continue in your job.

ROOTING PACHYSANDRA

Japanese Spurge or Pachysandra is one of our best ground covers. It spreads fast if given ample water, but be careful about over watering, as it may cause wilting. You can fill in bare spots by digging up clumps and dividing the roots. Or you can start new plants from cuttings. One way to do this is to cut some stems for indoor "greenery." Kept in water they'll root, and then plant them outdoors. Or you can take cuttings about three inches long, and insert them in soil to which some peatmoss has been added. They'll root in two months outdoors, and the job can be done any time now.

Some gardeners tell me they have good luck by digging up clumps, tying each stem in a knot, and planting them back in the soil. They say that the knot idea helps them to root faster.

Pachysandra gets a leaf spot disease. Keep the plants dusted with Captan, if you happen to see brown spots developing. Cut off seriously infected leaves and burn them.

VOODO LILY

Sometimes called the sacred lily of India, Devil's Tongue, or stinker plant, this item has a blossom which gives off a disagreeable odor, hence the name stinker plant. If you happen to have one of these and want to get rid of the odor, cut out the sadix (flower structure) to remove the scent glands. Another "Voodo" plant is the Sauromatum of Monarch of the East. Give both a bright window and a soil with equal parts of sand, peat and loam. Grow these items outdoors in sumer and bring inside in fall.

Free—How are your house plants doing? Send me a self-addressed, stamped envelope and ask for a copy of my bulletin, HOW TO GROW GOOD HOUSE PLANTS. It's packed full of good tips to help you grow better plants.

* * *

SAVE YOUR COMPOST

The only way to build up and improve "problem" soils is to add plenty of humus, organic matter, and the one way to do this is to save your grass clippings, potato peelings, leaves, etc., and put them on a compost.

Cover the compost with a sheet of plastic, after you've watered it and see how fast it breaks down. A dry compost pile will not break down as fast as one that's moist.

GREEN THUMB CLINIC

A reader writes: "Our peonies had nice foliage, but no blossoms. What fertilizer do they need?"

Answer: It's not a matter of fertility. Your plants have a fungus disease called "Fireblight" or botrytis blight. Cut off the dead leaves and buds. In fall cut the stalks down and burn, then drench the whole bed with Captan. Next spring, keep the new growth covered with Captan and be sure to spray or dust the buds as soon as they form.

Store Tools Properly And Prevent Accidents

By MR. FIX

One trouble with garden tools is that one tends to be tripping over them all the time. It does little good for one's limb or for the tools.

Hanging them up out of the way will prevent accidents, save room and save wear and tear on the tools. Hanging them up in a makeshift manner, however, may be worse than leaving them about — especially if there are children around.

Children, and adults too, can be injured by pulling down tools that are hung on nails or hooks. When you hang your tools along a garage wall, provide a means of keeping them from falling. A strip of wood nailed across garage studs can serve as a retainer.

Tools on hooks can be kept in place with bits of light chain hooked over the handle and placed high enough to be out of the reach of children.

Use a fence staple at one end and a screen door hook at the other to hold the chain in place. Nails or hooks can be used to hold the tool itself—a pair of nails for a rake, for example.

Small tools—clippers, trowels and the like—can be held securely in another manner. Make a shelf out of scrap wood and nail it between joists of a garage wall. Instead of placing the tools on the shelf, cut holes big enough for the tool to fit in but not big enough to fall through.

Sharp tools, such as a scythe, should be hung high and out of the way and be retained with a chain.

Pails, sprinkling cans and similar containers can be hung overhead. Do not use nails. The items can be too easily knocked off. Use hooks instead.

Fuel for your power mower should be kept in a tightly capped metal can. Keep it up on a shelf out of the way. Insecticides should also be kept in tightly stoppered and breakproof containers. Keep in a locked cabinet.

Put tools away clean and they will be ready to use instantly. Clean off all dirt after using a tool. Then scour with steel wool.

If tools are not going to be used for awhile, wipe with light coating of oil before hanging up.

Keep the cutting edge of tools sharp. Use a file. Always sharpen from the back side to the beveled edge.

Keep wooden handles smooth. A light sanding will prevent painful splinters. Treat unpainted handles with a coat of linseed oil well-rubbed in. Thin the oil first. Oil prevents the wood from drying out.

Keep pruning shears and clippers oiled. Tighten the screw that holds the blades together. Sharpen occasionally with a sharpening stone.

Cadillac Sales Hit 6th Record

Cadillac domestic deliveries of 17,880 in June — the sixth consecutive monthly sales record — resulted in divisional highs for the half - year and second quarter, according to Calvin J. Werner, general manager of the Cadillac Motor Car Division and vice president of General Motors. A year ago June deliveries were 17,649.

"For the six months, January 1 through June 30, Cadillac domestic deliveries at 115,045 are more than seven per cent above the 106,839 former record for the same period in 1967," Werner reported.

"Second quarter new car sales are 57,563 compared to the former second quarter record of 54,313 established in 1967.

"In addition, Cadillac dealers set an all - time June daily selling rate of 790 in the June 21 - 30 period when they totaled 6,324 domestic deliveries compared to the 752 rate last year in the same period," Werner said.

Plant Origins

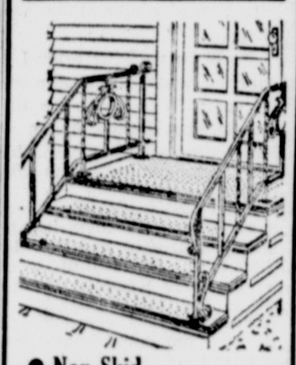

A cultivated plant's origin can be best ascertained by finding the place where ancestral forms still grow wild. For example, the riddle of the watermelon's origin was solved when David Livingston, the explorer, found wild watermelons growing profusely in central Africa.

THE SCENE AT 118 HUGUENOT STREET

New Paltz Residents Protest Something New on Old Street

By CHARLES BERMPOHL

The residents of 118 Huguenot Street in the Village of New Paltz may soon be forced to leave the premises in compliance with a July 10 order, issued by building inspector George W. Jayne, charging the owner of the house with numerous violations of building ordinances.

There is some question, however, as to the validity of the order in that some people feel it is discriminatory, that it is aimed only at the residents of the house.

For some time now, the large wood frame house has been a source of irritation to area residents, the reason being that the place is inhabited by some 15 young people villagers refer to as "hippies" or "beatniks."

At the heart of this irritation is the fact that the two-story house looks like no other in a neighborhood which, several years ago, was declared a national monument.

On the porch of the house is a large club chair with its stuffing pouring out.

Shabby Appearance

There are signs, inscriptions, and varied art work on the inside walls of the structure and the place, in comparison with other homes on the street, has a general shabby or sloppy appearance.

Of course, the inhabitants of the house itself, with their long hair, beards, worn dungarees, and sandals add to an atmosphere which villagers feel detracts from the general beauty and spirit of the most famous street in the county.

The July 10 order, issued to Frederick Kimlin Jr., owner of the house, states: You are commanded to remove yourselves and any and all occupants from the premises and to keep the premises vacant until said violations are remedied.

The most significant violation, according to Jayne is that the village zoning ordinance prohibits multiple dwellings in the historical district.

Steve Lifschitz, who lives in the house, made the discrimination charge and cited several homes on the street which could qualify as "multiple dwelling units."

Rented to Students

According to Mrs. Edward Marks, wife of the landlord of 124 Huguenot, the house next door, six students rent rooms in her home, all members of different families which would, in the opinion of Lifschitz and others, make 124 a multiple dwelling unit.

Mrs. Janet Bracken, owner of a house at 115 Huguenot—across the street from 118—also rents to students.

Mrs. Bracken, librarian of the Elting Memorial Library, said that, "The people in this village worked for years to make Huguenot Street a national monument," and she added that many of these people would be annoyed at the general appearance of 118 Huguenot.

"So many of these people are concerned only with appearances," said Lifschitz. "They want to preserve the historical pretentions of the past at the expense of a truly progressive present."

Lifschitz, a New Paltz State University College graduate, said, "We represent a progressive present. We represent our generation."

Several of 118's residents claimed that they are, in fact, one family, living in a communal atmosphere, helping one another with problems of mutual consequence.

Elliott Blackman, a medical student, claimed that, "We are a oneness, a unity. We are seeking true health. We are true artists, seeking a balance of heart and mind. We are all growing together."

Mrs. Bracken, on the other hand, would question the "health" aspect. She said, "Nobody paid any attention to them until they parked their cars in front of neighbors' homes. That, and the fact that they were noisy at night and they threw garbage out of windows until it reached window height."

The Elting librarian also said, however, that the five children in the house (ages 16 months to seven years) were "very sweet," and that they rarely cried, that the residents were child oriented, always willing to care for youngster's needs.

Cites Other Violations

Lifschitz went on to cite further "discriminatory" violations in the Jayne order, which he said was issued on July 10.

"On page two (of the order) it says house trailers are prohibited. Okay, we have a trailer next to the house but so do the people next door."

A check of the house next door, at 116, showed that there was, in fact, a house trailer on the property.

The general attitude of the residents is that they are being ousted because they do not conform to what standards villagers would have them live by.

One member of the household said, "Everyone has a life style. We have ours. We don't hurt anybody. We don't attempt to force our opinions on others. It is they (the villagers) who would force and coerce."

Lifschitz went on to claim that, "We are attempting to rid ourselves of all the neuroses our parents and their society forced on us."

One of those neurotic elements, in Lifschitz's view, is clothes, and he claimed that nudity itself was important.

"We should be able to bare ourselves, to show ourselves to one another as we really are."

He said that some of the 15 adults at the house are "still copping out of the nudity scene," but that it is the only way to "cleanse themselves."

A State Law

Village Police Commissioner Harold Phillips said that there was no village ordinance against nudity but that there is a state law.

"Once they step out into the street without any clothes on, they will be arrested," Phillips said.

The question of the Jayne order, if a question exists, may soon be dealt with, but until that time, those who live at 118 declare that they will continue to reside there until they are able to find other quarters.

The fate of owner Kimlin may hang in the balance. Jayne indicated to The Freeman, before he left for his Florida vacation, that the owner, who does not live on the premises, could be subject to a jail sentence.

A Merchant's Viewpoint Of Parking Situation

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN

What's wrong with parking uptown?

I can tell you in a few thousand well-chosen words said Louis Kaye, president of Kaye Sportswair Inc., and prominent uptown merchant.

Kaye speaks with some authority on the subject. He recently resigned as chairman of the Traffic Committee of the Uptown Business Men's Association. He said he felt he was banging his head against a stone wall.

Kaye's discussion on the topic covered the type of meters, lack of sufficient parking space between meters, inconsiderate parkers, merchants and employes using valuable parking spots in front of businesses, and a traffic signal promised by the city more than 1½ years ago.

These are all ills which hurt business and discourage the customers from shopping the uptown business district. This chases the customer out-of-town to stores and malls that have large parking areas.

Some of the merchants are to blame for the situation, says Kaye. They park their own cars for many hours in front of their stores and keep putting nickels in the meters. They also permit their employes to do the same, thus cutting down the number of spaces a customer can use and reducing the turnover on any one parking meter spot.

Space Too Short

Kaye also said the space between meters is too short. The meter parking spots were lined when cars were 16 feet or less. Now most cars are much longer and it is extremely difficult to park in these spots especially for women. The lines drawn to designate a parking space are marked incorrectly, Kaye pointed out. The line is drawn some distance in front of the meter. Most motorists pull their cars up even to the meter. This tends to make the spot for the car in the rear much too short for parking. Many times this creates a wasted space.

These parking space ills also cause some parkers to be inconsiderate. They pull in leaving the back of their cars in the line of traffic thus creating a hazard. This also makes motorists park too far from the curb and even some overshoot the parking spot markings, he observed.

Although these problems are general in most communities, Kaye pointed to these ills along Wall, North Front and Fair Streets in the uptown business section of the city.

Kaye stressed that repeated insertions of nickels in the same meter is in violation of the state law. This law is constantly being violated. The law distinctly states that a motorist may park only one hour at any one parking spot, and then presumably must find another spot.

These parking meter problems exist despite the fact that the uptown area has three parking lots adjacent to the business district. One is on John Street and two on North Front Street.

Kaye suggests that the parking meters should permit two hours. This is normal for shopping. If a customer requires more than two hours, there are parking lots in the immediate area where customers may park and have the parking stub validated in any number of stores.

Edict Not Working

The free parking edict for Friday nights is not working well, he claimed. On Friday nights all the parking spots are full of cars and the stores are empty. The answer in most cases is that some merchants and their employes are using these prime parking spots in front of the stores to park their own vehicles.

Kaye also scored the one-cent, nickel meters. The day of the penny meter is at an end, he said. Every city that has meters now charges five cents for a half hour and 10 cents for an hour. This helps the turnover of each parking space, he noted.

Another point brought up by Kaye was the habitual parking violator who collects a number of parking tickets issued by the local police. The law should be changed so that motorists with a great number of parking tickets should be fined accordingly. This might deter the habitual violator and scofflaw.

The system of policing the parking meters has its deficiencies also, Kaye noted. The way the police operate it is difficult for them and for the system. The big difficulty for the police is to identify the constant violators of the meters, Kaye observed.

Policemen Not Aware

Policemen patroling the streets are moved about all over the city and do not have fixed posts. In this way they are not aware of those who are constant violators.

In other cities, especially Poughkeepsie, they have parking meter men on steady duty and they get to know the area and soon learn who the overtime meter parkers are and how to deal with them, Kaye said.

These parking meter men operating efficiently create a greater turnover for parking spaces.

Another big factor in the traffic and parking problem of uptown is the very large buses that must load and unload passengers in the shopping area. Kaye said one fixed zone should be established where these buses may stop.

The blinker light at the intersection of North Front and Fair Streets was also scored by Kaye. He said the city promised the merchants that a regular traffic signal would be installed at this point about 1½ years ago and still nothing has been done. Some of these difficulties may seem insignificant, but if each one is alleviated, conditions would improve and this would be a big help to the economic climate uptown, Kaye concluded.

Fires 4-Under Par 66 in PGA

Year Later–Marty Fleckman in Same Spot

By JACK WILKINSON
UPI Sports Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—Young, good-looking Marty Fleckman burst into prominence a year ago when, as a amateur, he grabbed a two-stroke lead in the first round of the U. S. Open.

That's all history now, an although he led after the third round, too, he faded badly in the final round and finished in a tie for 18th. Today, Marty Fleckman's back in the spotlight—again with a two-stroke lead, this time in the first round of the 50th PGA champi.

Fleckman, now a promising professional with as long a drive as there is on the circuit, tamed the treacherous terrain of Pecan Valley Country Club's 7,096-yard, par 35-35—70 layout and ignored the roasting 92-degree heat Thursday to shoot a four-under-par 66.

That gave the muscular, 24-year-old Texan a two-shot advantage over Frank Beard, who carved out a 68 despite a bogey-bogey finish, and a three stroke lead over three others—Trevino, Mason Rudolph and part-time tour player Don Bies of Seattle, Wash.

Five Break Par

Those five were the only ones to break par, but seven others came in at even par 70. These included former champ Al Geiberger, Miller Barber, Dan Sikes, Charles Coody, Johnny Pott, Frank Boynton and Laurie Hammer.

Pre-tournament favorites Jack Nicklaus and Billy Casper stayed in contention with 71 and 74, respectively. Arnold Palmer, who has never won the coveted PGA championship, also shot a 71. Defending champion Don January was far back at 78.

Fleckman was not worried that history would repeat itself.

"I feel no pressure about being the leader," he said. "And I have more confidence now in what I'm doing than when I played the open at Baltusrol."

However, he was bothered last month when he failed to make the cut at this year's Open. After making an auspicious professional debut by winning the first tournament he entered as a pro, the Cajun Classic last December, his game went downhill.

A late starter, Fleckman calmly took the tight and tricky Pecan Valley course in stride with five birdies, including three in a row, against a single bogey. He opened his onslaught when he chipped in from 25 feet for a birdie on the 437-yard, par two second holem Then he birdied No. 3 with a six-footer and No. 14 with a seven-foot putt.

Fleckman, who ranks 65th on the money-winning list with $14,520 earned this year, also birdied the 12th from six feet monstrous 607-yard, par five and the 16th from four feet. His sixth hole when he three-putted lone bogey came on the from 20 feet.

Fleckman passed the supreme test of the day when he easily handled the two closing holes, which had proved the undoing of potential leader after leader. It was this wicked windup that cost Beard the possible first round lead when he bogeyed both 17 and 18. They also ruined Miller Barber's earlier bid for the lead when he also bogeyed them both after going into No. 17 two under par.

Pros Tab Pecan's 18th a Monster

By DARRELL MACK
UPI Sports Writer

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—Arnold Palmer says its "ridiculous." Don January, the defending champion, and Frank Beard gave it a terse "no comment."

Billy Casper and Sam Snead questioned the tee placement.

They were all talking about the 18th hole, the monster of Pecan Valley. It rose to conquer three potential leaders—Beard, Miller Barber and Laurie Hammer.

They all took bogeys, sending Barber and Hammer from a tie at 69 back to par 70's and sending Beard from 67 to 68, two shots behind the leader Marty Fleckman.

The 458-yard par 4 hole has the Salado Creek slanting sharply across the fairway about 260 yards from the tee. Only Jack Nicklaus was able to carry the creek, unleashing a 280-yard drive. Big George Bayer's drive hit a footbridge and bounced across. Countless others fell in the water.

Many, like Palmer and even George Bayer, played it safe with iron shots. Did Palmer consider driving across? "No chance. I mean hell no," Palmer said. "I might be foolish, but I'm not stupid. Jack Nicklaus hits it farther than I do. He is the only man who could do it.

"The way they're playing it, it's a ridiculous hole," Palmer said. "The hole is much better if you have a chance to drive across. If they had the markers up 30 yards to the front of the tee so you had a chance to go across, I think it would be foolish not to try it.

I think it makes a difference of a stroke a round," he said.

Nicklaus said he drove it because the wind was calm. If it would have been against him, he said he wouldn't have tried. Palmer said he had a slight wind in his face.

Snead and Casper agreed the tee should be forward so it would give the players a chance.

The crowd would like it better, too, if the players were trying to get across," Snead said.

But there are no plans for any changes. Nicklaus has the advantage and the others are going to have to gamble to keep pace.

Jack Nicklaus—"How can you get inspired in this weather? I wasn't concentrating."

Lee Trevino—"I should never have made the double bogey. I could have reached the green with a 7 or 8-iron. I could do it with a 9-iron, too, if they'd let me have the shot back.

White HR Tops Nats For Yanks

NEW YORK (UPI) — Roy White's two-run homer capped a three-run seventh inning rally as the New York Yankees defeated the Washington Senators 4-1 Thursday night.

Jake Gibbs led off with a walk off loser Bob Humphreys, was sacrificed to second by Charlie Smith, moved to third on Stan Bahnsen's fly ball and scored the tie-breaking run on Horace Clarke's single to right. After Clarke stole second, White belted his 10th homer of the year into the right field stands.

Jim Hannan started for the Senators and allowed only seven hits and one run before leaving for a pinch hitter in the seventh. The run came in the first with one out on singles by White, Mickey Mantle and Joe Pepitone.

The Senators tied the game in the fourth on Cap Peterson's single, Frank Howard's double and Mike Epstein's sacrifice fly.

Bahnsen, who won his eighth game against six losses, went 8 1-3 innings allowing eight hits, walking none and fanning four.

With one out in the ninth Ken McMullen and Bernie Allen singled and Steve Hamilton replaced Bahnsen. Pinch-hitter Hank Allen blooped a single to right field, filling the bases and Lindy McDaniel replaced Hamilton and struck out pinch-hitter Bill Bryan. He retired pinch-hitter Ed Stroud on a bouncer to the mound to end the game.

Seaver Checks Bucs On Fourth Shutout

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Tom Seaver pitched a six-hitter for his fourth shutout of the season and the New York Mets combined four singles and a walk to score three runs in the sixth inning Thursday night and beat the Pittsburgh Pirates 3-0.

Seaver, the Mets' "hard luck pitcher" during the early part of the season, scored his sixth victory in his last seven decisions and raised his record to 8-6 while striking out 10 and walking one. It was the 15th shutout by the Mets' staff this season, tying St. Louis for the league lead.

Al McBean matched Seaver's shutout pitching for five innings but the Mets rallied for all their runs in the sixth after filling the bases with none out on Bud Harrleson's single, Cleon Jones' walk and a bunt single by Art Shamsky.

Ed Charles struck out but Harrelson scored the first run of the game as Ed Kranepool hit into a force play at second and Jerry Grote and Phil Linz followed with run-scoring singles.

The loss was the ninth against seven wins for McBean, who yielded eight hits, all three runs and walked two in 5 2-3 innings.

Marichal Deals 3-0 Deck to SL

By HERSCHEL NISSENSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Juan Marichal has finally caught up to the St. Louis Cardinals. If the rest of the San Francisco Giants can't say the same come Sept. 29 they'll be playing for a new manager next spring.

Just before Marichal blanked the Cards 3-0 Thursday night and evened his lifetime record against them at 15-15, Herman Franks confirmed reports that he would retire as manager of the Giants if they don't win the National League pennant.

Owner Horace Stoneham shouldn't have long to wait before applications start pouring in since the Giants still are in fourth place, 13 games behind St. Louis, after ending the Cards' winning streak at six games.

Elsewhere, Atlanta walloped Houston 7-1 and the New York Mets downed Pittsburgh 3-0. Los Angeles was rained out at Cincinnati and the Philadelphia Phillies and Chicago Cubs were not scheduled.

"Four years is enough," Franks said. "Change is good for everybody. I just made the statement that if we couldn't win the pennant this year, then I would resign. It's that simple."

Marichal, the NL's top winner, ran his record to 17-4 with a four-hitter and even drove in a run with a second-inning single. He retired 17 batters in order over one stretch until Lou Brock singled to open the ningh.

The Giants scored twice off Steve Carlton in the second on singles by Willie Mays, Jim Hart, Hal Lanier and Marichal. They added a run in the eighth when Mays walked, stole second and scored on a single by Jesus Alou.

The Cardinals saw their league lead chopped to nine games when second-place Atlanta beat Houston behind the hitting of Tommie Aaron and Pat Jarvis' two-hit pitching.

Aaron broke a 1-1 tie with a bases-loaded triple in the third inning off Dave Giusti and knocked in another run with a single in the eighth. Not to be outdone, big brother Hank singled home a run in the ninth.

Jarvis, 10-6, has never lost to the Astros and beat them for the fifth time. He allowed singles by Hector Torres in the first and Doug Rader in the seventhm

Muller Shoots Pistol Loop 284

Ernest Muller fired a 284 to once again pace the action in the Ulster County Summer Pistol Shoot League, holding a winning margin of 11 over Norman DeWire.

DeWire's 273 was just a point over John Tverdak's 272, and five over fourth-place Tom Sommer's 268. Rounding out the top five was William Morse's 265..

DiMaggio-Idol of Two Generations

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Writer

NEW YORK (NEA) — The baseball glove lay flapped on the stool in front of his locker. Beside the stool, with his hands dug into the pockets of his green Oakland warmup jacket, stood Joe DiMaggio. A white cap with a green letter A was hunched on his gray hair and the bill tilted down his sloping nose.

The A's carpeted dressing room at Yankee Stadium was nearly empty. The players were on the field. DiMaggio took a few steps toward the door, talking with a visitor. Johnny, the clubhouse man, called, "Hey, Joe, don't forget your glove." DiMaggio smiled at the solicitousness. "Thanks, Johnny," he replied. "And Johnny, get me some tea, wouldya?"

DiMaggio, the only executive vice president in baseball who doubles as a coach, now ducked his head as he emerged into the dugout, carrying a hard-paper cup of tea. Several people from the Yankee organization happened to be standing around with sports writers.

"Hey, Joe, how are you?" "Boy, we could sure use you now." "Why don't you grab a bat and change uniforms and get in the other dugout?" "Joe, how you been?"

Some Small Talk

There was a lot of small talk, enthusiastic, but not overly familiar. None of the good-natured profanity often associated with dugout banter. Joe sat on the leather-cushioned bench. He crossed his legs, covered with green-and-gold stockings, and sipped tea. He scanned the park. When he looked to the side his ruddy neck wrinkled thin white lines.

"Sure makes a difference," he said, "with the seats painted that light blue."

"Couple other things different around here, too, Joe," someone said.

"Yeah," replied DiMaggio, with a knowing grin, "they put steel girders under the scoreboard." He drained the cup and placed it under the bench.

Pleased with Youngsters

A reporter asked about the A's. DiMaggio's mood changed, from casualness to business. He seemed, someone remarked later, like a man who smokes three packs of cigarettes a day. He spoke low, but rapidly. He chopped the air with emphatic hand hacks.

"It's a thrill, no question about it, a thrill," he said. "A tremendous satisfaction to see some of these young hitters I work with improving. And the enthusiasm is something. They were in last place last season and now they're way up in the first division. I don't know how long it'll last, but, by God, it's good to see.

"You can feel it on the bench. All these guys talking it up and patting each other on the back. 'Don't let those runs bother us,' they say. 'We'll get 'em back.' They do, too. They came from four runs back, oh, let's see, in Boston, I think, or one of the other clubs. Down something like 9-5, or maybe 9-6. And won.

"But it's a young club, and they make mistakes. You got to be patient. Most of the hitters have only been in pro ball a couple years. Almost no minor league experience, either. No Triple A. No Double A. Well, maybe half a year Double A. They need to see more pitching. That's what I've been saying all along. They need to see more pitching."

He bolted off the bench. In the days before cushions, it might have been blamed on a splinter.

Can't Teach Hitting

"You can't teach someone how to hit," he continued. "He has to see a lot of pitching. You can teach an outfielder how to chase a fly ball, which base to throw to. You can teach a pitcher how to work on a hitter. But you can't teach a hitter how to hit. If you could, I'd still be playing. It's the reflexes that count. You can show him little things like improving the stance, though."

He was asked if he had taken batting practice yet. "No," he replied. "My back hurts. But sometimes I shag balls in the outfield. I think I'll swing the bat only once this season. In the Mets' or Yankees' old-timers game. If I play at all. I'm 53 years old now. And my back hurts. I retired 17 years ago and hardly saw a game in between. I went once to Candlestick Park to see the Giants. Sitting in that wind hurt my back. I never returned.

"But I like what I'm doing very, very much. And I still get stacks up to here of mail. You'd think fans would forget and let me fold up. But the kids read magazines and their mothers and fathers tell 'em about me."

For Home Folks

An Oakland radio announcer came over and asked Joe to tape an interview. "This is for the home folks," DiMaggio told the group around him. "You know I've got to do this."

The interview was held alongside the box seats. A gaggle of maybe 150 fans gathered. When Joe finished, he was hailed by shouts and waving scorecards and pencils. He went along the rail signing autographs.

One youngster complained, "Hey, get off me, everybody." Another frantically tried to borrow a pencil to have his lumpy, brown lunch bag signed.

A graying, middle-aged man in red polka dot shirt stuck a piece of paper in front of DiMaggio. "What about the kids?" Joe admonished gently.

"You've been my idol all my life," he replied. "And I'm still a young boy at heart."

County Tennis Tournament Expects Record Field

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

GOOD GUY ON RAMPAAGE — Floyd Patterson, the former world's heavyweight boxing champion, lets the "bad guys" have it while making a guest appearance in the TV series "Wild, Wild West." Patterson played the part of a cowboy involved in a fight. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

The Kingston Area Tennis Association (KATA), the area's only organized tennis association, announces that its Ulster County Tennis Tournament, open to all players residing, working or studying in the county, is now accepting entries.

The tourney swings into action Aug. 7 and lasts for some 18 days, winding up with the final round on the weekend of Aug. 24-25.

Competition in four classes, Men's singles, Men's doubles, Women's singles and Mixed doubles, is slated and tourney chairman, Bill Spangenberger announces that the deadline for entries is July 31.

On the entry blank is a set of dates. Each player has a choice of dates to begin and continue on should he win, and court appointments will be scheduled via times marked by the participants. The committee will make all assignments using these dates as guidelines.

The tourney, referred to as the Ulster County Championship, will be played at Forsyth Park's courts on Lucas Avenue, Kingston.

The fee for participants is $1.00 and a can of USLTA approved balls. All matches are slated for best two-of-three sets.

Once the entries are in, a draw for positioning and pairings will take place. First round action commences at 5:30 the night of the seventh.

Entry blanks are available from Spangenberger, and in Kingston at Potter Brothers, and Kaye's Sportwair, at Roger Jones in Woodstock and at the State University College at New Paltz.

This tournament is the last of seven scheduled by the association this summer. Other tourneys were the men's and ladies ladder tournaments, the member and association championship, the Inter-Club, and the Jaycee district and state tourneys.

The inter-club schedule finds matches against the Poughkeepsie IBM Club and the Redwood Tennis and Swim Club of Middletown. The association's officers are also trying to book a match against the Powelton Club of Newburgh.

A host of regularly scheduled non-classified, intra-club go-rounds continue all summer long.

Defending champs in the "County Championship", are: Men's singles — Pete Zeeh; Men's doubles—Dick Smith and Pete Zeeh; Women's singles—Kitty Ann Samuels; and Mixed doubles—Jim Frederick and Kitty Forle. All are expected to return as well as a host of newcomers. Spangenberger predicts the largest field in the tournament's history will be in the fold for the 1968 version.

Chairman Spangenberger says early response indicates a larger entry than the record 102 in 1967.

Kingston Legion Is 4-1 Victor

The Kingston American Legion Junior Baseball team staked pitcher Charlie (Jesse) Janes to a four-run first inning lead and Janes fired a one-hitter, striking out 12 as Kingston defeated Green Island, 4-1, in a Legion exhibition contest yesterday at Dietz Stadium.

Janes was the master throughout, limiting the visitors to three singles and a double while his teammates parlayed wildness by his counterpart, Gary Tymeson, to build up the first-frame bulge.

Gary Schatzel, Greg Rios and Mike Weishaupt all drew walks from Tymeson, loading the bases with one away. Charlie Moore then singled to score Schatzel and Rios. Rick Sorenson walked to fill the sacks again, and then Tymeson issued his fifth base on balls of the frame to Vin Gorman, after Janes had made the second out, forcing in the third run. A passed ball scored the final tally.

The double by Rich Polare, his first of two hits, came in the third. He moved up on a passed ball and scored on a ground-out to spoil Jane' shutout bid

The game was a tuneup for the District 3 finals slated for Albany's Bleecker Stadium, August 2-4.

Florida Comets Due At Stadium Tonight

The Kingston Braves, way behind in their schedule because of early season rains, and washed out Wednesday night thanks to a man-made flooded field, take on the Florida Comets tonight at 8 at Dietz Stadium.

Take on, hopefully that is, because Dietz, not known for its great drainage system, might still have the track that encircles the diamond, under water.

Veteran Ron Thomas or Ted Bream will get the call against the Comets, last year's Hudson Valley Rookie League second round winner and overall titlist.

Charlie Janes, the fastballing righthander that was slated to go against the Newburgh Atoms Wednesday, gets the call against the Comets, last year's Hudson Valley Rookie League second round winner and overall titlist.

The Comets, a team that carries some powerful bats in Bob Lattimer, Bruce Bell, Gene Scheuermann, Jim Jennings and many others, will have to overcome the pitching strength of Janes, a recent free-agent draftee of the Philadelphia Phils.

Alyea's Homers Doesn't Earn Win

By United Press International

Although Brant Alyea's home run production continues to rise, the Buffalo Bison's winning percentage continues to fall.

Alyea, selected to the International League All-Star team last Saturday, hammered his 29th homer of the season Thursday night, but Buffalo lost again, this time dropping a 6-5 decision to Syracuse for its ninth loss in the last 12 games.

In other IL action, Richmond defeated Columbus 5-4, Jacksonville tripped Louisville 6-4 and Rochester at Toledo was rained out.

Bill Denehy, now 8-5, took the loss for the Bisons who dropped to seventh place. Bob Lasko, with relief help from Rich Beck and Hal Reniff, evened his record at 5-5, as Syracuse spurted to a five-run first inning, highlighted by Jim Lytle's two run homer.

Chuck Harrison slammed his 19th homer of the season and Mike de la Hoz and Sandy Valdespino also homered as Richmond and Skip Guinn beat third-place Columbus.

Chuck Estrada won his first game of the season after four losses and Billy Sorrill hit a two run homer in the fourth inning to lead Jacksonville over Louisville and pin All-Star pitcher Galen Cisco with his sixth loss against 11 wins.

Sharp Cat Returns To Winner's Circle

MONTICELLO—It's been a long time, exactly six races and eight weeks since Sharp Cat last tasted victory at Monticello Raceway. Last night, Al Burton rated the four-year-old brown horse by Sharpshooter from the rail, and won coming down the stretch with a tremendous finish in 2:05.

The race, the featured fourth, was worth $4,500 to the field of six trotters and Sharp Cat, no worse than third throughout the mile came from behind to triumph by more than a length over Nevele Song (2) and the even-money favorite, Jamie's Beauty (6).

Co-owned by Burton's wife, Ruth, along with Alma Pagano, the brown, out of Kitty S. Volo by Tru Volo, let Jamie's Beauty and Nevele Song battle head and head for most of the mile, then swooped by both three-wide down the homestretch, coming the final quarter in :31.4.

Laurie's Mon (4) with newcomer Duncan MacTavish, led at the first quarter in :30.3, but Jamie's Beauty was on top on the outside at the half in 1:02.2.

Nevele Song and Jamie's Beauty swapped the lead twice before the three-fourts, which the latter hit on top in 1:33.1. That set it up pretty good for the Cat, who put a new lifetime mark on, clipping four-fifths of a second off his last victory.

Sent off at 4-1, Sharp Cat returned $10.00, 4.80 and 3.40. Nevele Song was worth $4.60 and 3.00 for place while Jamie's Beauty paid a $2.60 show price.

Black Lightning (2) won the first race and Tallulah Eden (6) the second to form a $39.80 daily double.

Rain Delays Clay Singles, Top-Seed Doubles Triumph

By TOM DROLSHAGEN

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—Rain juggled the schedule of the National Clay Courts tennis tournament Thursday and turned the spotlight over to doubles competition, with predictable results.

The top-seeded men's duo of Davis Cuppers Stan Smith and Bob Lutz toyed with Milwaukee players Bob Stuckert and Pete Bronson, gaining the quarter-finals. Maryne Godwin and Laure Roussow, top seeded among women, turned back Ann Lebedeff and Pam O'Shaughnessy.

Quarter-finals in men's and women's singles were postponed until today with the top attractions expected to be duels between No. 2 men's seed Charles Pasarell of Puerto Rico against Jim Osborn of Honolulu and Nacy Richey of San Angelo, Tex., seeking a sixth consecutive clay courts crown, against Tory Fretz of Los Angeles.

Arthur Ashe, the No. 1 men's seed, was beaten Wednesday by Chile's Patricio Cornejo.

Smith, Pasadena, Calif., and Lutz, Los Angeles, never were extended in whipping Stuckert and Bronson, 6-1, 6-1. Their opponents in the quarter-finals will be Pete Fishback, Great Neck, N.Y., and Brian Marcus, Detroit, who defeated Mike Marcin, St. Gabriel, Calif., and Chris Bovett, London, 6-4, 6-0.

Three other men's teams also advanced to the quarter-finals while rain halted three matches involving seeded pairs.

Dick Dell, Bethesda, Md., and Dick Leach, Arcadia, Calif., gained the quarters with a 6-4, 8-6 win over Ramathan Krishnan and Premjit Lall, both of India.

The other two teams gaining the quarters were Sherwood Stewart, Baytown, Tex., and George Seewagen, Bayside, N.Y., and John Brown, Australia, and Tom Gorman, Seattle Wash.

In other results, Nancy Richey and Valery Ziegenfuss, San Diego, beat Marty McLean, San Antonio, Tex., and Lulu Gongora, Mexico, 6-1, 6-1; Peaches Bartkowicz, Hamtramck, Mich., and Stephanie de Fina, Hollywood, Fla., beat Andrea Sanders, Tulsa, Okla., and Dena Garcia, Knoxville, Tenn., 6-0, 6-3.

Seven-Inning No-Hitter in Rondout League

Tigers and Pirates battled to an 7-inning 1-1 tie, as Tom Duncan and Bob Cooke of the Pirates combined for a no-hitter in the Rondout Valley Little League. The game was called because of darkness and will be re-scheduled.

Pirates collected four hits, one a double by Ernie Cesana, off Cory Schoonmaker and Ed Jasinski. Cooke of the Pirates struck out 15 before yielding to Duncan in the 7th.

An error and successive singles by Cooke and Duncan sent Pirates ahead 1-0 in the third. Tigers tied it in the fourth on a walk to Ed Jasinski and two wild pitches by Cooke.

Triumph Gives Hotel Shanley Runner-up Spot

Hotel Shanley took advantage of a half - dozen very costly errors by Wright's Service Station and moved into second place in the Ellenville Softball League, beating the Garagemen, 6-3, last night.

Hotel Shanley, triumphant two nights in a row, the other night a 12-0 upset victor over league leader Schrade Walden, now trails by just a half-game, last night's win making them 7-4 on the year to SW's 7-3.

Wright's, who needed the victory to tie SW for the top spot, fell to third with a 6-4 charting.

Charlie Cotton's two-run double in the second put the Hotel on top, but Wright's matched that in the bottom of the frame. Both added a run in the third, Dan Duff's double and Art Jackson's single making the Hotel's tally. Phil VanDeMark's homer knotting it for Wright's.

In the fifth, Duff and Leon Julian both singled.

Three miscues by Wright's let both score and Buck Farmer, the late - arriving Hotel hurler, held Wright's hitless over the final four stanzas, giving the Hotel the victory and the runner up spot.

Costello Big Hitter For Grills

Returning to action after an extended layoff because of injuries, Bill Costello of Royal Grill knocked in the winning run in the bottom of the first extra inning, as the Grillmen nipped Yallum's 5-4 in eight innings.

In the opener of the City Softball League doubleheader, Yallum's were the beneficiaries of a forfeit from Perry's Grill which apparently has dropped out of the league.

Bill Stokes got the decision in relief of Costello. Rich Hoffman was the loser on a 7-hitter, despite 11 strikeouts. Batting in the No. 4 slot, however, Hoffman slammed a homer and single for the losers. Costello slugged three singles off Hoffman. Shorty Amato hit two singles for Yallum's.

Don Ferraro's leaping stab of a line drive by Stokes in the seventh inning was the fielding gem of the contest.

Dear Abby

Wife Needs Protection

[© 1968 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.]

DEAR ABBY: My daughter is married to a man who has her completely buffaloed. He doesn't let her see any of the bank statements. They are all sent to his office. She has complete faith in him and believes everything he tells her.

He spends money extravagantly but he keeps her spending to a minimum. He handles all the finances while she is kept entirely in the dark.

Since there are no children, how can I fix my will so that I can leave everything to my daughter, and her husband cannot get his hands on any of it? If this cannot be done, I shall leave everything to charity. I must make some decisions soon as I am getting along in years.

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: If you leave "everything" to your daughter, "Everything" could end up in her husband's hands. Explore with your lawyer a trust of some kind, from which your daughter alone can draw the proceeds. That way she would be provided for in the event that "Big Spender" moves on or passes out.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I have been dating a young man steadily for 4 months. I am 23 and he is 27. During this time he told me he loved me and wanted to marry me. I told him I "thought" I loved him, but I wasn't sure I wanted to marry him.

Last week - end, after much thought, I decided I did not love him enough to marry him, and therefore we should quit dating.

He was very hurt and asked me to continue dating him in order to give him a chance to "fall out of love" with me. I have positively made up my mind not to see him anymore as I know how these dates will end up, and I want to discontinue our relationship.

He is persistent. I don't want to hurt him further. How should I handle it?

KATHY

DEAR KATHY: Be even more persistent than he. Tell the young man that it's more painful to cut off a puppy dog's tail an inch at a time. Better to do it with one clean whack. And don't accept any more dates with him.

DEAR ABBY: I wouldn't miss your column for the world. It's better than the comic strips.

But Abby, I am getting a little weary of those idiots who write to you and ask, "How can I tell my friends and neighbors not to just drop in to visit me at odd hours when I want to nap, or do something around the house, or just be alone?"

I will tell you what I do. I hang a sign outside my door which reads: "I am napping. Please do not ring or knock unless it's an emergency. Come back at 4 p.m." Then I go about my business, reading, napping, painting, or doing whatever I want to do in privacy.

NO DUMMY

CONFIDENTIAL TO "SECOND CHILDHOOD": Just put it down to the very old wine and the very young man. He may not be old enough to know better, but you should be.

Today's six club contract would be a cinch had West opened anything but a spade. Declarer wouldn't like a diamond opening but he would take a heart finesse at trick two. When that worked, he would simply play out ace and another club and eventually run the hearts to take care of his spade losers.

New Jersey expert Ira Rubin was declarer when West opened the three of spades. Ira won the first trick with the queen over East's jack, cashed the ace of spades and ruffed his last spade. Then he finessed his jack of clubs and played the ace. The king failed to drop and Ira threw East in with that card.

At that point, Alvin Roth, one of the greatest players in the world, who sat East, made a really brilliant play which did nothing to make things easier for declarer. He played his eight of diamonds!

Ira ruffed. It would have been rather silly to play Roth for the ace of diamonds so early in the play, when there was still a really good play in hearts left.

Now Ira ran off all his trumps. West let one heart go somewhere along the line. Two hearts were played from dummy early and, finally, the last diamond. Roth, sitting East, hung on to his nine of hearts, ace of diamonds and a spade.

The next play was the king of hearts, to which everyone followed. The four of hearts produced the eight from West and the moment of decision had arrived. The three missing cards were the queen of hearts, a spade and the ace of diamonds. West still held one card. It was the ace of diamonds or the spade. Ira could rise with the ace of hearts and drop East's quen.

Ira knew that Roth had been capable of underleading his ace of diamonds, so there was no clue there. Finally, Ira decided to play general percentage. West had started with more hearts than East, therefore he was more likely to hold the queen. Ira finessed and made the slam.

Tom Smothers

No More Directorial Ambitions

By TOM SMOTHERS

EDITOR'S Note—The older of the Smothers siblings may act like some kind of a nut before the CBS television cameras, but beneath the comedy there is a very serious young man with a mission. Instead of taking a holiday from show business, Tommy is working as coproducer of what is confusingly called "The Summer Brothers Smothers Shows," where, as in the winter shows, the medium is the message.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — As soon as Dickie and I began to do situation comedy, I began thinking about what comes next—and my first thought was directing, with producing after that.

Now with four "Summer Brothers Smothers Shows" behind me as a producer, I don't have directorial ambitions any longer—and I can see why.

It's because content has always been of utmost importance to me. New ideas, new ways of doing old ideas, getting television involved with what is really happening in America and the world.

Reacted As Hoped

And how do you get that? As a performer, you have to persuade directors, producers, sponsors, networks. And sometimes, as you may have heard, my efforts in that area haven't been regarded as friendly persuasion. But often enough, we bulled our way through so audiences and critics did feel we were a happening thing. The alert, young audience that was being turned off by old-fashioned television reacted as we hoped it would.

The easiest way to get this excitement to happen is to be part of the establishment and subvert it. A producer can do this. I still get argued with, but it's on a different level now—and there's less of it because of our track record.

None of this would work if I hadn't done the producer's main job: surrounding himself with creative people who won't take "no" for an answer.

25-Year Average

I want people who threw off ideas like sparks from a wheel. Our writers for the summer show average 25 years old. When they make a comment on the draft, they don't strike the false note that "Establishment-type" writers do. Our comedy and our commentary won't strike false notes, because it won't be one generation commenting on another—it'll be today's people making a statement about today's problems.

My big job was to resist pressures to go the safe route and hire a staff of people who'd been around a long time and "knew how to do it." I feel judgment and creativity can take the place of experience. The creative people know I'm on their side—but not in their hair.

A burly restaurant patron left this note on his expensive new hat: "This hat belongs to a champion heavyweight, and I'm coming back in a moment."

When he returned, the hat was gone and in its place was this note: "This hat was taken by a champion runner, and I'm not coming back."

Mr. Brown—Does this house have a good view?

Mr. Blank (the agent)—Well, you can see Howard's Service Station from the porch, and part of the Johnson ranch, but outside of that there ain't much to look at 'cept lakes and mountains.

Mrs. Long—No, dear. I am still with you.

Ray Returned to Memphis, Sent to Heavily Guarded Jail

By JAMES K. CAZALAS

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI)—James Earl Ray was flown in secrecy today from England to this Mississippi River port where he is charged with killing Negro leader Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., three months ago.

Ray arrived aboard an Air Force C135 plane at Memphis' Naval Air Station at 4:37 a.m., EDT and was hustled into a blue and white armored car by federal agents.

With blue dome light flashing, the armored car sped to the heavily guarded Shelby County Jail in downtown Memphis. Seven patrol cars and seven motorcycles flanked the armored car.

Several minutes before the car arrived at the jail, more than a dozen sheriff's deputies, several armed with shotguns, lined the back entrance to the building. One minute later, an unmarked car roared up, and five men leaped out with submachine guns and stationed themselves at the entrance.

A county bus, purposely parked in front of the entrance as the armored car pulled up, obscured the view of newsmen, kept across the street by the strict security.

There were garbled shouts and a flurry of activity around the armored car. Then four minutes after it arrived, the car pulled away.

Ray, 40, whose arrest in London last month climaxed the most intensive manhunt in modern American history, was lodged in a four-cell suite in the gray, five-story jail in downtown Memphis. The windows of his third-floor suite were steel-plated and air-conditioning was installed, along with closed-circuit television so guards can watch his every move.

State troopers, sheriff's deputies, and policemen ringed the jail, some 20 blocks from the motel where King was shot down by a sniper last April 4 as he stood on a balcony. Authorities said the killer fired the rifle shot from the bathroom window of a flophouse across the street from King's room in the Lorraine Motel.

"Every possible measure is being taken to assure security during his (Ray's) incarceration and the upcoming trial," said Charles Holmes, public information director for Sheriff William Morris.

Attorney Barred

Ray's attorney, former Birmingham, Ala., Mayor Arthur J. Hanes Sr., complained in London that he was not allowed to accompany his client on the flight to the United States.

Hanes said he didn't want Ray "grilled, cross-examined and interrogated" on the plane and he advised him to "keep his mouth shut and not answer any questions—not even talk about the weather."

Hanes said he would return to the United States later today. He said he expected Ray to be tried in "probably October or November."

JAMES EARL RAY

Ray was arrested at the London airport on June 8 while awaiting a plane to Brussels. His passport identified him as Ramon George Sneyd. Then he was charged with murder in the slaying of King and with escaping from a Missouri prison earlier.

Ray's handover to U.S. authorities came Thursday night after British Home Secretary James Callaghan signed an extradition order handed down July 2 by London's Chief Magistrate Frank Milton, removing the last legal obstacle to the fugitive's removal from Britain.

In a new aspect of the case, the London Daily Sketch reported today that fingerprints of Sneyd had been matched against that of a gunman who robbed a London bank six weeks ago of about 100 pounds ($240).

If it is provde that Sneyd (Ray) had robbed the bank it would support U.S. claims that Ray acted on his own and was not part of a conspiracy, since it would explain how Ray got enough money to live in London before his arrest. A Scotland Yard spokesman refused comment on the report.

Reject Claim

BANGKOK (UPI) —Malaysia Monday rejected the Philippines claim to the Borneo state of Sabah and warned that Filipino persistence on the issue will endanger the future of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations. The territory has been disputed for years.

Teamsters, Robie Resume Fight

Pickets Greeted With Sign at Rondout

By Hugh Reynolds

The Teamsters Union and Robie Construction, which has projects at Rondout Gardens and Colonial Gardens, are once again at odds over labor problems. The teamsters have set up pickets, just as they did this winter, but Robie has responded with a form of picketing of its own, a sign outlining the position of the company.

The disagreement ostensibly reverts to the question of hiring a shop steward, which caused a brief strike at Rondout Gardens this winter.

At that time the teamsters charged that there was trucking activity on the Rondout Gardens project and that a teamster should be on the job. After a number of meetings Robie acquiesced and hired a teamster shop steward who also worked as a truck driver.

Robie, however, is apparently not going to give in as easily this time and has taken its case to the National Labor Relations Board, reportedly with charges of featherbedding and secondary boycotting.

Robert Marx, persident of Robie Construction, told The Freeman yesterday that the "unqualified heavy construction contract" which Marx interprets as requiring a shop steward on any and all heavy construction jobs whether he is needed or not. The contract would cover the five-county area of Rockland, Ulster, Dutchess, Orange and Sullivan

Would Set Precedent

Marx says any such contract would set a precedent whereby any and all projects would have to employ a teamster shop steward. The rate of pay for a shop steward is currently $6.50 an hour.

Anthony Alecca, president of Teamster Local 445 which is involved in the dispute with Robie, agrees that his union wants a contract, but his definition of that contract and the reasons why he wants it vary somewhat with Marx's statements.

Alecca emphatically denied any charges of featherbedding by his union and added that the opposite was true. He said his shop steward covers two projects, Rondout and Colonial Gardens and "does a good day's work." Alecca added that he and Robie had agreed to waive the prevailing rate for the shop steward ($6.50) and in fact, pay him $5.35. "That's hardly a case of featherbedding," Alecca said.

Alecca further added that his union had no intention of forcing any contractor to hire unnecessary help. "We will take each job on its merits," he said. "The job itself will determine whether a shop steward is needed."

Alecca said a recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling was what led to his union's demand for a signed contract with any and all contractors. The High Court, Alecca said, recently ruled that a contractor could not pay a worker's health, pension and retirement benefits unless the worker is a member of a bonafide union.

Alecca noted that Robie had no contract with his union to cover the shop steward working on the two Kingston projects but had been paying benefits to the man. "Even if Robie wanted to pay benefits, he couldn't under the new law," Alecca said. "That's why we want a contract."

Expects Swift Action

Marx says he expects swift action from the NLRB, which has a reputation for speed, and hopes to quickly resume work on the two projects being built by the Kingston Housing Authority.

Meanwhile, the Teamsters picket and Robie pickets the pickets. Robie's sign which is directed to the public says that Local 445 is "unfair" in demanding "featherbedding conditions" to create "do-nothing jobs" the cost of which will ultimately be borne by the public.

Robie then goes on to say that the company "will not give in to such outrageous demands" and seeks the support of the public, all contractors, all employes on the projects, all agencies of government and all interested persons.

In a final blast at the teamsters, Robie's sign says, "Ignore the teamster picket line and pressure tactics and denounce these actions."

Alecca, upon learning of Robies sign, said his union would have some countercharges of their own in the immediate future.

Calls for Fighting Cease

ABA, Biafra (AP) — Lt. Col. Odumegwu Ojukwu, leader of secessionist Biafra in Nigeria's civil war, said Thursday his government has proposed two land corridors for the transport of food to the starving Biafrans.

But Ojukwu reiterated that the "quickest and most realistic" means of sending relief to his besieged territory is by air. Talking to foreign newsmen, he repeated his offer to set aside an airport or a daylight airlift under supervision of relief agencies.

The Nigerian government in Lagos contends that direct airlifts would allow the Biafrans to get arms disguised as food cargoes. Ojukwu estimated that 1.75 million persons are destitute in Biafra but declared that his rebel state is not finished militarily or otherwise.

Ojukwu said the road corridor proposed by Lagos was blocked by fallen bridges and choked channels, and that clearing them would give federal forces a clear path to what is left of Biafran territory.

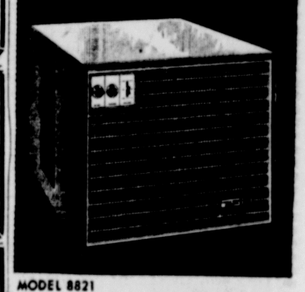

He also repeated charges that food which found its way to Biafra through Nigeria was poisoned.

Ojukwu called again for "immediate cessation of fighting on land, sea and air" and said he was prepared to discuss with Nigeria "the terms rather than the conditions" for a cease-fire.

The Biafrans have been seeking an "unconditional" cease-fire. The only public contact between both parties—at Kampala, Uganda, last May—collapsed over the cease-fire issue. Some observers saw in Ojukwu's phase "terms rather than conditions" a hint of a possible easing of his stand. But Biafran sources said this did not seem to be the case.
